Third graders observe Patriotic Day at Jensen Elementary

The Iran crisis, the recent observance of the birthdays of two great American presidents, and the local God and Country Day observance have all been in the news lately, and have sparked patriotic feelings among many.

Included in that group are a bunch of third grade students at Jensen Beach Elementary School, who last week expressed their feelings with a Patriotic Day program of their own.

The students made red, white and blue "flag" hats, sang patriotic songs, gave presentations demonstrating they already know a lot about American history, and even conducted a mock version of "To Tell the Truth" by having three students posing as Abe Lincoln try to outfox a panel of classmates.

Students posing as George and Martha Washington also made an appearance, and students having the best essay on "What American Means to Me" got to read them to classmates and parents. The essay winners were Jon Fedele, Michael Colemen, Michael Findlan, Laura Collins and Anita Wiley.

Though there was an occassional bashful student who seemed uneasy making a presentation before classmates and parents, for the most part, the students were exuberant and filled with a patriotic spirit.

GUEST SPEAKER—The Right Reverend Charles L. Burgreen, Episcopal Bishop for the U.S. Armed Services, was the guest speaker at the Sixth Annual God and Country Day ceremony at Florida Institute of Technology on Sunday. Bishop Burgreen urged those in attendance to keep a good perspective of history in order to preserve the greatness of the nation and pass it on to future generations. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Colorful ceremony highlights sixth God and Country Day

Faith in our nation and in God were stressed during the sixth annual God and Country Day at the Florida Institute of Technology campus in Jensen Beach Sunday afternoon.

The weather turned out beautiful and the ceremony was highlighted with much pomp and circumstance.

Sponsors of the event, All Saints Episcopal Church and Jensen Beach American Legion Post 126 termed the ceremony a fine success.

The Martin County High School band gave a concert prior to the grand procession, and their music was well received by the hundreds who attended the event.

American Legionnaires from all over the state, the Halpatokee Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a number of veterans groups, and many church, civic and social organizations participated in a colorful and impressive grand procession of flags.

The featured speaker at the event was The Right Reverend Charles L. Burgreen, Episcopal Bishop for the Armed Services. He reminded the audience to keep a perspective of history when assessing the events which are shaping our nation. "Look at history and take lessons from the positive things of the past. Not a one of us stands alone. Those who came before us gave us what we have and we must keep a perspective of history and give to those ahead of us what we have been given," the Bishop said.

"The United States is aware of its responsibilities. The United States is alive and well and we are still a great nation, made great by what we've done, are doing, and shall do," he said, though he noted that the time has passed when "all we had to do when there was trouble in the world was to send the Marines in and solve things."

He received a standing ovation following his address.

The God and Country Day ceremony was dedicated to the American hostages in Iran, and prayers were offered for their safe and speedy release.

A Martin County High School Student and an FIT student, who each won an American Legion sponsored essay contest in conjunction with God and Country Day, read their essays and stressed the importance of maintaining a faith in both God and country.

And, the Martin County High School Choral Group, directed by Ron Staley, received a thunderous standing ovation for outstanding performances.

Additionally, Richard Campbell, emcee, provided the audience with some happy news when he announced that the U.S. hockey team had won a gold medal in the Olympics.

Smith promoted to lieutenant

Joyce F. Smith, whose husband, Capt. William K. Smith, lives in Columbus, Ga., recently was promoted to Army first lieutenant while serving as an assistant operations officer with the 24th Medical Battalion at Hunter Army Airfield, Ga.

The appointing orders for this promotion stated: "The President of the U.S. has placed special trust and confidence in this officer's patriotism, valor, fidelity and abilities."

The promotion was based upon these qualities and the demonstrated potential for increased responsibility.

Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace W. Fletcher, live at 3353 N.W. Indian Drive, Jensen Beach, Fla.

Parrot Fever

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

The newest panic over pit bull attacks is fast being replaced in Martin and St. Lucie Counties by a new and even more ominous phenomenon– killer parrots.

Eighty-four year old Warbla Grouse of Port St. Lucie will be physically scarred for life, and the depth of her emotional injuries is not yet known.

Warbla had been innocently perched in her yard last week when she was suddenly rendered helpless by a rush of beak and claw and a flurry of feathers.

Warbla Grouse was the victim of a parrot attack– an event which has reportedly reached epidemic proportions in Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

The giant South American strain of parrot alleged to be responsible for the recent attacks may reach 48 inches in height, is characterized by its luminous green color and has been known to utter obscenities in Spanish.

Local Audubon spokesman Ima Fowl said, however, that parrots are not normally birds of prey and that these attacks are very out of character.

"I have never heard of a parrot attacking," Blocked Fowl. "We get an occasional vicious seagull or pigeon that has to be put to sleep, and I've met some downright ornery snobirds; but parrots? It just doesn't make sense."

Fowl did offer some guidelines, though, for determining if a parrot is going to attack or if it is merely bluffing.

PARROT 1– Snarling beak, upraised feathers, mean sideleng glint to eyes.

This bird means business. Avoid direct eye contact, but stand your ground. If you turn your back on this bird, you are a dead duck. (No pun intended.)

PARROT 2– Hunched shoulders, quick back and forth motions to the tune of "La Cucharacha."

This bird is simply trying to act macho, still, he may be dangerous. If the bird is female (orange stripe across beak), try flapping your arms as though they were wings. Do not attempt to use this technique if the bird is male (no stripes), as he may interpret it to be a threat to his masculinity.

PARROT 3– Lying on back with head tucked under wing.

It is doubtful that a bird in this position would attack. Nevertheless, avoid direct beak contact and back away into the nearest building.

As with other attacks by usually sedate animals, Fowl believes that this "parrot epidemic" has been created by humans who teach their pets to be nasty. Fowl cited that this is particularly true in this case, as most of the owners of the offending parrots appear to be former northerners, and the majority of victims to be native "cracker" Floridians.

Are the attacks natural occurances or are they part of a devious master plan developed by seabirds and tourists to take over Florida?

Governor Bob Graham is trying to find the answers to these questions and he has assigned a task force valued at $3.3 million worth of state tax money to conduct the research.

Graham also announced that if the epidemic persists, he may have to call for all Florida parrot owners to put their pets to sleep.

"It's an outrage," cackled the local head of Save the Parrots, Fonda Feather. "My parrot is part of the family. He even taught my kids to speak Spanish."

When asked if the majority of Save the Parrot members would follow Graham's guidelines, should they be enforced, Feather replied that they would– with reservations.

"I suppose I would give up my Brutus if I had to," said Feather, "but my family still needs a pet to love and cherish. Maybe we'll try something less controversial next time, like a pit bull."

INVESTING IN MOTELS

QUESTION: I am getting ready to retire, and I wonder whether you think a motel would be a good investment for me. I know I will have plenty of free time, and I figure that, by investing in a motel, I am in effect "buying myself a job." What types of motels are available as investments?

ANSWER: You are correct in assuming that by investing in a motel you can "buy yourself a job." However, approach your investment with your eyes open, since operating a motel is not like the "Ma & Pa" type operation it used to be.

There are several types of motels which you might consider. For example, the strategically located highway motel is generally set near the intersection of major highways between urban areas and caters to travelers. Another type of motel is the in-city motel, which competes with downtown hotels and sometimes is almost indistinguishable from a hotel. You might also consider the resort motel which caters to guests on vacation. Finally, there is the suburban motel, a facility catering to business men and women or visitors to a particular suburb.

Because investing in and operating motels is a specialized type of business, you should approach that investment opportunity only after consulting with good business and legal advisers. If you find that you have the temperament and the expertise for this type of investment, you may also find that it fits your investment goals as well.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Gas shortage touches all

The trillion dollar social security by year 2000 mentioned last week, shook some seniors a bit, but the shortage of $1.25 gasoline bothered them the most, with many having a hardship story to tell.

Some worried about gas for make trips to airport for guests, some were afraid budget wouldn't make $10.00 for the ½ tank of gas. One was ready to leave for airport and found his gas had been siphoned off. Many wanted to know what some kind of bus service, even if they had a car, so they could save energy and money too. And so, it went.

Bus service and airport trips were the most often mentioned items, so the Airport Limousine Service was checked again. It was found that because of gas shortage they have been reduced to one trip per day. It leaves ORP at 10:30 a.m., arrives at West Palm about noontime, leaves for home around 3 p.m. Cost $13.75, call 334-5000 for home pick-up and luggage handling reservations. If it will fit your schedule, it sounds like a good deal.

The gas shortage seemed to be of most concern, so a further investigation was made. It started by a phone call from Dave Mica, Senator Stone's Staff Ass't., which was in answer to the clipping of last week's column that was sent to the senator. He reported that the Governor had a 'set aside' supply for emergencies and our local officials should be contacted. He was reminded that the seniors were much concerned that the present energy bill wouldn't have workable provisions to take care of these unbalanced use and supply situations.

Then, Chuck Nergard, Jensen Beach's state rep was contacted. He pointed out that our supply was 11 percent less than last year, but we had a 5 t 10 percent snowbird increase, leaving us in a 'bind'. However, he has worked with Dr. William Myers and Frank Wacha in getting 3 to 5 percent of the 'set-aside' last month, and suggested that Civil Defense Director Steve Wells could tell how we are fixed for this month.

So, Steve was contacted and said that he was only a 'go-between', as all he could do was notify the State Energy Agency that there was an emergency. He said it was difficult to determine how they responded as the extra gas was sent to individual stations by some weird formula. But, the 3 to 5 percent 'set-aside' had been requested again this month and although he was hoping for the best, felt that February would end up even drier than January. When, asked, about next year, he said, as did Chuck, that is up to the Federal Government. However, he said members of the Federal Energy Commission would be here this week and he was sure that point would be taken up.

Senator's Chile's prompt response indicates that some "Folks-in-High-Places are 'listening'. So, those seniors who want to be sure we have a fair allotment next year better write now and write again and again and while you're 'at-it' why don't you mention, "What's the idea of using part of the 'Windfall Profits for a tax cut, might be better to use it to subsidize the production of Gasohol".

CHAPTER EVENTS

There was a very interesting and informatory talk by Sheriff Holt and Lt. Bill Scott on 'Residential Burglary' at the February meeting. Sheriff Holt said it gave him great pleasure to see large groups of seniors assembled together as it brought to mind the enormous amount of knowledge that there was available in the community and he hoped that it could be put to good use. Next, he introduced the AARPer's old friend of Defensive Driving days, Lt. Bill Scott, who went on to point out the following, after distributing a very informative booklet on burglary.

Lt. Scott said burglars love jalousie doors and windows as it takes them less than 30 seconds to get them open, they should be changed to solid wood doors (and separate screen doors) with dead bolt locks, but putting heavy mesh screen behind the windows will help. If you have the awning type windows, removing the crank gives some protection. The chain door stop is practically worthless, as a pin and rubber band will open the door in a few seconds, better install a wide angle peep hole at the eye level best suited for the shortest member of the family.

The talk, the booklet and subsequent questions brought out many interesting points, but Lt. Scott put particular stress on making a valuables identification list with pictures and identification marking the objects. It is best to use your Florida driver's license number, as there is no way they can trace a social security number, and if you don't have a Florida the Sheriff's dept. will assign you an individual number that can be traced from anywhere in the country.

One reason this is important, is that deputies 'haul' the Flea Marts and Yard Sales, and often encounter stolen items. Time ran out before the questions, as it was an excellent talk, and Bill said he'd be glad to come back anytime or address other groups that want information on security protection.

The business part of meeting under Pres. "CMac's" guidance went along like clockwork with the different committees reporting their activities. The fair is on schedule, volunteers call Lucy Proheska, 334-0808. Bob Maurer, senior center chm. said pledge forms for 'By-A-Block-A-Month' will be in March Golden Eagle News Bulletin. This month's block drawing winner, was F.D. Tackle Shop, Stuart. Door prizes were won by Judy Herre, Emily Smith and Al Tucker.

Audubon film is Thursday

The fourth in a series of five Audubon Wildlife films will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 28 at the Stuart Women's Club building at 729 East Ocean Blvd. in Stuart.

The films are sponsored by the Martin County Audubon Society, and this week's movie, by Fran William Hall, is titled "Small World".

Fascinating sequences of the daily lives of some of our smaller creatures, particularly insects, will be shown in the film.

Audubon officials say Hall is a master of nature photography, and say his film "goes a long way to dispel the commonly held dislike of insects. Once one has taken the time and effort to study and marvel at their ways of life, it is difficult to think harshly of them."

Hall has traveled to more than 60 countries and has been a strong advocate of conservation for years. He has made many wildlife documentaries.

The public is invited, and tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Art Associates meet March 7th

Art Associates of Martin County are featuring Mr. Tom Prestogniik in "Art in Printing"; a program of silk-screening at their regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m., Friday, March 7.

The meeting will take place in the Community Room of First Federal Savings & Loan of Martin County on Commercial Street and Indian River Drive in Jensen Beach.

All members and the public are invited to attend. There is no charge.

New Officers installed for Lydia Circle

Members of the Lydia Circle were busy last week installing new officers and working on their Easter gift project during their regular monthly meeting.

President Dorothy Geehen presided over the meeting and Floretta Bartlett was in charge of the devotional period.

Genevieve Heasley acted as installing officers, and the following persons were installed: Hazel Hutchinson, president; Thelma Parret, secretary; and Floretta Bartlett, treasurer.

Rachel Estes served as hostess and March Snowdall was a guest at the meeting.

The next meeting of the Circle is Wednesday, March 19.

Timberwick pioneers thrive on native beauty

When it comes to pioneering, Betty Kusser Zieminski is Number One. She and her children were the first to move into the now-rapidly-growing luxury subdivision off Savanna Road known as Timberwick.

The new division is far from being one of those masses of look-alike houses one finds in every income level. Each has a personality of its own, and the Zieminski residence is no exception. Betty and her family, in its roomy interior, can find a spot for every diversity of activity, and they are many.

They love animals — the kids raise hamsters among other things, and the bedroom of Rocky (Goebel-Edward Shultz) has been known to accommodate as many as a dozen of the furry and frenetic beasties. The younger kids love to roller skate, and the broad cement front drive is a rink in itself.

The Tanglewood homes, brainchildren of Sam and Elaine Rhodes, all have one big virtue in common — the kitchen is literally the heart of the home, so dinner may be served as easily in the formal dining rooms as in the family rooms, and keeps the hostess in touch with her guests while she's preparing food, formally or informally.

Another of Betty Zieminski's prides is her huge master bedroom — it's big enough for her king-sized bed, sewing machine, dressers with room for a hide-away lounging spot to spare.

In the recent cold weather, the fireplace, too, has been part and heart of the home.

"Fireplaces are becoming more and more of a must for househunters," Sam Rhodes told The Mirror after the tour of the Zieminski home. "They're realizing again that if everything else goes off, with a fireplace you always have heat and a place to cook, if worse comes to worse."

Betty, who is musical, has a well worked-over grand piano in her living room, along with dramatically decorated comfortable chairs for listening and conversation. And when the weather is pleasant, the large screened patio makes it part of a contiguous whole for parties or just wide-open, gracious living.

The formal dining room is on one side of the open kitchen, and at the other, the family room which is ideally placed to open into the children's bedrooms, so they may come and go or relax in front of the TV without interrupting any of the adult socializing at the other end of the house.

But in the Zieminski home, you find little need of such separation. Betty, 21-year-old Rocky, 11 year-old Bobby and 12 year-old Kim (both Kussers, by another marriage) are a together bunch. Right now the family mania is raising vegetables from seeds, and you'll find all over the place tidily potted and labeled carrots, watermelon plants, pushing their way into existence. The Zieminski household is one of shared enthusiasms.

In sports, particularly. Betty is the big bowler. She's been the darling of Jensen Lanes so long that she and her late husband Ted were married there. Bobby's the hockey player, and just won a first place for his team. Kim's thing is skating, at which she also is an expert.

Betty Zieminski is more than a little thrilled about her new home. Coming here in 1975 to open the children's shop the "Yellow Closet" she first chose Port St. Lucie as the place to live. But she soon found out it wasn't the ideal place to bring up kids. You're too far from where all the action is.

"Here, we're near the school, and the shopping center is right up the road," she said. "It's perfect for everything we need."

FIRST OCCUPANT—The stone-faced house of Betty Zieminski was the first Timberwick home to be occupied by a new owner. The streets are so new they don't even yet have names or numbers.

DOORWAY TO HOSPITALITY—The big spanish double doors of the model home at Timberwick open into the hospitality of an atrium with swimming pool, among other things. And no one gets in uninvited. The whole house is burglar-proofed.

Her back-door neighbors, the second couple to move into Tanglewood, feel the same way about it. From upstate New York, they first picked Port St. Lucie.

"But we wanted to be nearer the ocean and the stores," Mrs. Louis Bifucal told The Mirror. Here they have both.

The Bifucal home is another of those dream houses with the kitchen right in the center of things. And their master bedroom out-masters any this side of the White House. The room is 20 feet long — twice the size of most ordinary bedrooms. And the rest of the house has the same feeling of vast interior space. They chose to enclose their patio as part of the already large family room, giving plenty of elbow room for Mrs. B.'s mother, who lives with them.

And Mr. B., a builder for most of his life, has his own workshop, his own escape hatch where he has all his tools and power equipment without infringing on any of the rest of the house.

Tanglewood itself is designed to neither interfere nor infringe on the beautiful natural surroundings in which it lies. The tract, a jungly area filled with beautiful old trees and a stream flowing through it, is being carefully developed to leave as much of that beauty inviolable as possible.

"One of our deed restrictions," said Mrs. Rhodes, "is that no one may remove a tree without special permission." The developers fully intend to make their brainchild live up to its name.

One of the model houses, already being eyed by several buyers, is the house to end all houses.

"Sam got up in the middle of the night one night and designed it. He showed it to me the next morning."

You walk in through big double doors and are immediately attracted to the whole home's center of attention — an atrium featuring a contoured swimming pool. It dominates the whole home. Sliding glass doors on all sides and a screen roof turn the whole house into a mecca of natural air conditioning.

Sam thought it out very carefully. Only the front "formal" rooms and the giant bedroom are carpeted. From the pool area, one can walk barefooted into the bathroom to shower on soak-proof vinyl tile, and the kitchen family room are also "drip-proof."

Its counterpart, but with a different exterior, is being built across the street. All of the lots are large, with plenty of natural landscaping to work around or rearrange, to help Timberwick live up to its name.

The Rhodes, by now well-loved and respected in the community, have been at the building business for more than a quarter of a century. Beginning in the Philadelphia area with his father after his discharge from the service, he and his wife came here in 1955, to join dad, who had settled here.

We love it here," Elaine said, "and we want to see it grow, but only with quality."

In their new project, they are evidently dedicated to that cause.

HEART OF HOME—Like so many Timberwick homes, the kitchen is the center of activity—literally. Mrs. Joseph Bifucal stands at counter which is just steps away from family room, formal dining room, and living room.

JOSEPH BIFUCAL HOME-The spacious new Timberwick home of the second family to move in sits on an equally spacious lot. The entire wing at right is occupied by a giant bedroom, dressing room and Mr. B's workshop.

FORMAL DINING—One of the loveliest areas in the Zieminskis' Timberwick home is the dining area, surrounded on three sides by kitchen, patio, and fireplace and of living room. Mrs. Zieminski, an artist, has done her own decorating.

Better communications pledged when next hurricane hits here

BY BOB FRYER

Just when Hurricane David was bearing down on Martin and St. Lucie counties last Labor Day, there was a significant drop in information on the giant storm, prompting a lot of bitter complaints after the blow passed.

Dr. Neil Frank, head of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, came to Stuart Monday to answer those complaints and make a personal pledge that he'll do all he can to make sure we're not left in the lurch when the next hurricane comes.

Two basic commitments were made by Dr. Frank. The first is to personally make direct reports to this two-county area when a storm is coming our way. The second commitment is to send personnel from his office to our area this Spring to help conduct public education programs about hurricanes.

"I can see how it would be easy to perceive a great dropoff in communications and that all of a sudden nobody was interested in Martin and St. Lucie counties," Dr. Frank said, later adding, "There was a drop of information (to our area) at a critical time. That's a fact, and whether or not it was intended is immaterial."

But Dr. Frank said the drop of information was not intentional and that his office did and does care about the welfare of these two counties.

He laid much of the blame in the drop of information coming to our area on the fact that a television pool in Miami disbanded after the storm was no longer a threat to the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area.

The Miami area stations formed a pool and were giving excellent, live coverage, Dr. Frank said. "A man would come in from flying through the hurricane and they'd interview him, or they'd have live interviews with me. But when the storm passed their area, they disbanded and the stations went back to normal programing," Dr. Frank explained.

The pool disbanded just as the storm was bearing down on Martin and St. Lucie counties, just when winds were getting high and local communications were going out. Thus, the supply of information to this area decreased markedly as the threat grew worse, he said.

Additionally, he said there were electronics foul-ups at his office which caused delays in getting some information out. He said this was the result of converting operations in his office to a computer system, but added that he feels most of the bugs have been worked out of the system now.

Since it is likely that the Miami television stations will again disband their pool when the next hurricane is no longer a threat to their area, Dr. Frank proposed to give direct reports to this area to make up for the loss of the information from the Miami t.v. pool. He said in order for this to happen, local radio and television stations would have to get together to form their own pool, so the information he would be giving could be distributed to the various stations at the same time, rather than having one station get the information first.

Representatives of WSTU and WMCF attended the meeting and agreed that they would have no problems in forming a pool.

Direct communication between Dr. Frank and the local pool would be made by telephone, if phones are working, and by ham operators stationed in Dr. Frank's office and in local Emergency Operations Centers would be used if the phones fail.

And, if the blow is so big that local stations go off the air, Dr. Frank said powerful stations based outside this area would be called upon to feed information to us.

Another positive step that resulted from the meeting is that local station representatives said that in the future, they will tell their listeners what stations to turn to if their station goes off the air.

Though some Palm Beach and St. Lucie County stations went out, WSTU and WMCF remained on the air throughout the storm and gave reports directly from the Martin County Emergency Operations Center. But sometimes information came late, due to electronics failures at the Hurricane Center in Miami. And, for awhile locally, phones were out at the EOC and in many other areas because a crew of workers replacing a power pole severed phone cables.

Dr. Frank cautioned the public against paying too much attention to the small details about hurricanes. He said it takes about an hour and a half to generate the information, compile and compose it and get it cleared over the wires before a hurricane update reaches the public. As a result, he said officials postulate where the storm will be an hour and a half from the time they get their information, and he said in that time, a storm can stall or change direction. And, he said the public should not lose sight of the fact that hurricanes are very large.

One complaint from this area was that the eye of the storm was reported by hurricane officials to be east of Palm Beach when it was moving over Martin County. Dr. Frank said the eye of a hurricane can be very large and its shape irregular, so that it was very possible the eye was both over the sea east of Palm Beach and making landfall in Martin County.

Dr. Frank also warned citizens that Hurricane David was a relatively weak hurricane and that they should not take the next one too lightly as a result of their experience in David.

Square dancing needs support

All that dreary, cold rain of last week is forgotten with the return of the good ol' balmy Martin County weather, but the recent gas lines have not been forgotten, especially when the visitors tell us there was plenty of gas back up there in the northland (See AARP column for more on Feb. supply).

PAST EVENTS'

Square Dancers are sorry they couldn't turn out enough sets to make it worth while for Dale McCory to come down from Melbourne, so it had to be 'Good-bye' Dale, 'Hello' Jack, as arrangements have been worked out for caller Jack Hosken to take over at 7:30 Thurs. Mar. 6, same fee $2.50.

It must be realized, says Ed Pettit who has worked hard to get these callers, that it is difficult to satisfy 3 levels of dancers: the beginners: the ol' timers, who aren't quite up-to-the minute, and the intermediates who know all the latest calls. Therefore, he urges all dancers to patronize the Tues dances (only night Jack has free) and make it a success, as otherwise there won't be any square dancing at the clubhouse. It will be worth a little patience, to have low cost dancing within walking distance, so every body, turnout and have a ball, like it was a few short years ago.

Camera Club members, 110 of them really enjoyed the novel demonstration and slide show on the art of Stained Glass Windows, by Ed Pettit. It was entertaining, it was instructive, it was great. Next week, Tues. Mar. 5, Doc Roberts will by slides take the folks to Alaska as it was done many years ago. Election officers and 4 Seasons slide show, by VP Sparky Garside, Mar. 12. Annual dinner and different of time slides of OBP, by Ed Pettit. It's later than you think, get your dollar ready for dinner ticket, see Nina, Freda, Ernie or Sparky. Remember, travel movies Mar. 25 and Apr. 1.

Shufflers did us proud again, this time at Whispering Creek, where Pete & Evelyn Hillman were first in main event and Bill Jones and Evelyn Groves were first in Consolation. The Indian River team is back in 1st place at 90, with Spanish Lakes 87, Stuart 75, and others not even close. Also, Central league team has hit their stride with a 4 win, 0 loss last week.

The Novice tournament was very exciting last week as those who had never won a trophy battled it out, with these winners: Floyd Prowl; Elsie Carr, Russ Black & Helen Naylor in main event. John Vanderberg, Lou Mayor, Dorothy Leavitt & Mildred West in the Consolation. Also, Round Robin for Feb. 23 had the following winners: Bun Miller, Evelyn Hillman, Bill Jones, Cliff Ogle, Kathy Schillare.

Coming up, Central East Coast League, Men and Ladies Medalist Tournament, at OBP, Mar. 6,7 & 8. Also, that renowned and infamous Battle of the Sexes will be held on Mar. 27 & 28, with the big pay-off, Fri p.m.

Street Fair Sun. Mar. 2 on 6th St. (Board to Pepper) from 2 p.m. to dusk is going to have everything, at least according to what we've been hearing over the PA system. First it's the folks with instrument, meet in club house, then it's the singers who are called, and often it's a general call for the March Second Committee.

While this was going on, it brought to mind, the Street Fairs of bygone days. Freda Peterkin, reminisced, "There was a great Street Fair, on the Rackus property just after Harry took it over and before the new section was built. It was in 1953. I believe and there were booths lined up about where Kumquat and Key Lime are now. There were, hot dogs, pop corn, pancakes, hot soup, games of chance and skill; even a guess your weight stand!

The 1980 committee heard about those bygone days and claim they are going to top them by a mile, so everybody better come and see, with a pocket of small change, for if there should be anything left over above expenses it will be donated to Ambulance or Fire Dept. See Sunday, March 2.

HOSPITAL & OBITUARY

Ed Sheleski, NE 10th St.; Bob McCall, Key Lime, Bill Allaire, NE 8th St. are back home in OBP and Bea Hartman, SW 6th St. is home at her sister's in Port St. Lucie.

Harry Jewsberry, Mango Dr. (rm 527); Ruth Phelps, Pepper St. (rm. 423); Nellie Smack, Kumquat Dr. (rm 235); and Honey Kryal, 6 Key Lime Dr. are still in the hospital.

Tyree Glenn Leath, Jr. of 16 Mango Dr. died in hospital last week, he was from Crewe, Va. and Don Kennedy, ExOBPer of NE 10th St. died recently in Zephyrhills.

The Golden Wedding Reception lived up to its tradition of being the outstanding social event of the season, although only four couples celebrated their '50th' this year. They were as follows: Alma and Alden Burnham with hostess, Ginny Whitehead; Lillian and Louie Dodge with hostess, Jeannie Jewsberry; Evie and Jack Faust with hostess, daughter, Mrs. George Scott from Wixom, Mich.; Althea and Dick Gladden with hostess, Mrs. W. D. McKendrick.

The club house hall was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and golden leaves and huge palm plants along the walls. The stage had a big golden '50' with a bride and groom manikin underneath, also the ladies had bouquets and the men boutonnieres. All the floral displays under the direction of Tom Hebert, who has been doing it for the last 17 years. The serving hostesses were Doris Reed and Alma O'Neil with Miriam Clay, Madelyn Ellithrope, Nellie Sutton, and as usual Joe and Ida Wisser prepared the beverages for serving in the sparkling silver tea and coffee service.

Many signed the Golden Anniversary Books, Obit & Ahit at the individual wedding cakes and left congratulation cards in the ever growing individual piles. The great affair will be long remembered.

THANK YOU' CARD

INSTALLING A POST—County workers are shown above re-installing a post which supports a picnic pavillion at Jensen Public Beach. High seas claimed a bunch of beach sand and the waves undermined a portion of the pavilion. Dumptruck after dumptruck was called upon to replace the sand around the shelter to keep it from washing out to sea. Three lifeguard chairs were swept away and found near the Park-N-Fish area nearly a mile to the south. A log railing along the sidewalk on top of the dune was partially lost, and for awhile, workers feared the sidewalk could be claimed. (Photo by Bob Fryer) drum said the park is comprised of mangroves and low-lands, ted that as a factor that will ly limit development of the compared to original ideas for ark. He also noted that beach n has taken a heavy toll on the line since the land was acquired. e state bought the land for $2.45 n in 1969 with the intention of g it for a number of years before oping it into a state park.

awhile, state officials waited on U.S. Corps of Engineers to get d with the St. Lucie Inlet ovement project, so the eroding es could be renourished before ark was developed. Conversely, orps was waiting on the state to op the park so it could justify a enefit to the public when seeking for the inlet project.

1976 a consultant was hired to op a plan for the park. Two plans proposed by the consultant, both ng high price tags and both very tionable to environmental per- g agencies. The plans called for bridge to the island, but as been rejected and it seems certain now that access will be ry.

And, when asked how persons would get off the island quickly in the event of an emergency, he said if a hurricane threatened the park, it would be closed well in advance and if someone was injured, a helicopter could be called in.

Landrum did not give a target date for full development of the park, but when that is done, it should have a capacity for 6,000 persons per day and 3,000 at any one time.

Development after the first phase would include expansion of boat dockage, fishing areas, canoe and nature trails, the tram system and utilities. And, another picnic area, swimming area, an interpretive center and a primitive camping area would be added.

Bids are opened on sections of I-95 in St. Lucie County

Representative Chuck Nergard has been in contact with local and Tallahassee Department of Transportation officials regarding the construction of the remainder of I-95 through St. Lucie County.

The construction is divided into three segments:

1) Southernmost segment is: South of Gatlin Boulevard to Martin County Line (3.8 miles). Bids opened on Feb. 20 were received from four companies out of 16 eligible bidders. Although some corrections are necessary on these bids, the apparent low bidder at bid opening at $8,186,227.49 is S.T. Wooten Construction Company, with Dickerson, Inc. second at $8,277,810.15.

2) Northernmost segment is: South of SR 70 to south of North Port St. Lucie (5.5 miles). Bids opened on Feb. 21 were received from four companies out of 17 eligible bidders. The apparent low bidder was Jasper Construction with $23,768,718.72, and S. T. Wooten Company second at $24,941,925.64.

3) Middle segment is: South of North Port St. Lucie to south of Gatlin Boulevard (5.7 miles). Bids on this section will be let Feb. 27.

DOT officials will have the bids on the first two segments tabulated by Monday, March 3. The awards need federal approval, and state DOT officials have been moving and promise to continue to move full speed ahead in their contract award process, so that contractors will have as much time as possible to get work ready.

If bids meet the federal requirements, the northernmost and southernmost segments of I-95 in St. Lucie County should be under construction no later than April 14. The middle section should be under construction start no later than April 28.

BEACHED—High winds blasted the Indian River last week, causing some moments of anxiety for the owners of this catamaran sailboat. A man and his 15 year old son were aboard when the winds and rains hit, and the blast resulted in tattered sails and some moments of anxiety before the boat beached itself behind the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Storick. The Storicks said they didn't get the full names of the boaters, but said they were lucky not to get injured. "The river was just black and very treacherous. It's a good thing they got blown ashore at high tide or they would have hit rocks on the bottom," Mrs. Storick said.

Bruce Harrison has his woes, Sandpipers have golf feast

Playing with full handicap allotments, 98 of the 146 players who competed in "Beat the Pro Day" scored well enough to outscore Assistant Sandpiper Pro Bruce Harrison Thursday with play on the championship Saints course.

Harrison, playing from the long "blue tees" recorded a 78, four over par, but couldn't withstand the onslaught by the members who enjoyed a "golf feast" at the expense of the likeable young pro who had his putting woes on most of the greens.

There were nine deadlocked at net scores of 67 including Bob Crane, Dave Kennedy, Joe Monte, Tom Wood, Denny Sullivan, Denny Long, Harry the Horse Hendron, Bill Griffin and Fred Gradishar.

Another shot off the pace with tallies of net 68 were Danny Smozanek, Jake Prestopnik, Tom Chapman and another new member, Henry Vision.

Leading the onslaught in the gross scoring department (totals without handicap) included the Break Eighty" clubers—Huncharek, 79; Bob wilson and Smozanek, 78; Tom wood and Col. Jim Healy, 77; Rickenbach ,8 ,Dave Kennedy, Denny Long, Tom Chapman and Bob Crane at 79.

Tournament chairman for the month, Col. Healy, announced next Thursdays play will be "One Best Ball of a Foursome" and he indicated another large entry for the event which will be played on the Saints course.

Tennis, golf events planned at Crane Creek

Six activity-packed days will fill the calendar of events at Crane Creek at MartinDowns from Thursday, Feb 28 through Tuesday, March 4.

For the second consecutive year, the Crane Creek Golf Club hosts the PGA Club Professional Tournament Series on February 28 and 29, and on March 3 and 4.

A full field of 120 top golf professionals from across the country will compete for a purse of $30,000 in each of the two-day, 36-hole tournaments. The first prize is $3,000.

Local entrants for this event include Randy Cavanaugh of Hobe Sound and Jay Norton of Stuart.

The public is invited to attend all four days of the tournaments. Tee off times are 8 am and admission is free.

Saturday, March 1 and Sunday, March 2, marks the Grand Opening Celebration of the million dollar Crane Creek Racquet Club and the new Crane Creek Model Homes.

Saturday, March 1, is the mixed doubles round robin tennis tournament at 8:30 am, open to all levels of players. Interested players can enter by calling the Crane Creek Racquet Club at 283-4416 before Friday, Feb 29.

Sunday, March 2 at 10 am is Target Tennis, a fascinating test of court accuracy. At 1 pm is the Fast Serve Contest in which the speed of your serve is measured in miles per hour by a "radar gun".

Both days there will be refreshments, balloons, games and prizes.

Crane Creek, the first phase in the 2400 acre recreation-oriented residential community of Martin Downs, is located west of Stuart in Palm City at Exit 52 of the Florida Turnpike.

Jai-Alai passes million

The Fort Pierce Jai-Alai Fronton passed the million dollar mark during last Friday's evening performance (Feb. 22), an event which dramatically marks a successful beginning to the 1980 Jai Alai season.

It only took eight performances for a total of more than a million dollars to pass through the fronton's betting windows. Last year the million dollar mark was reached in the 12th performance.

Despite the economy, the decline in tourism for the area and the gasoline problems, it appears that Jai Alai is more popular than ever with the fans. The Fort Pierce Fronton is off to the best start in its seven year history as evidenced by its growth in attendance and betting handle.

The introduction of the new trifecta bet at the Fort Pierce Fronton is one reason for the increases. Fronton officials say the fans are enthusiastic about the bet in which you must pick the exact order of the first three finishers. The payoffs are larger too because of the trifecta. On just the second day of the 1980 season the fronton broke its own payoff record by issuing $4,268 on a winning ticket.

Ervin to speak to PSL Anglers

The next meetings of the Port St. Lucie Anglers Club will take place on Tues. evening March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the North Port St. Lucie Marina on Prima Vista Blvd. program director Ray Mink will introduce Mr. Dick Ervin from the Fishing Rod Company on Seway Drive in Ft. Pierce, who will speak on "What's A Fishing Hole".

Nettles Island Scramblers

On Feb. 17th, another misty day, the group of Scramblers was small but we enjoyed 18th holes scrambling with determination. Low gross scores for the day were John Zinser and Doris Radtke 64. Second low gross was John Kilday and Ellie Mercier, 69. The low score figured on the peoria system was 51 scored by John and Ruth Master.

On Feb. 24th, a beautiful typical Florida day, everyone was out. Low gross for the day was John Zinser and Ruth Martin, 67. Second low gross was a tie with John Master and Eleanor Roly and Pat Hawthorne and Bob McIntosh with 68.

Prizes were given to the closest to the pin on the 2nd hole and John Zinser was the winner. Closest to the pin on the 12th was Russ Roly.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

Lots of tennis action on the island this week, so this column will be, a potporri of lets, faults, aces and good shots.

Visitors to Jensen Beach should know about the nice course at Langford Park. Lights are there for night play and all is free.

Ernie Maltz, from New Jersey, winters in Jensen Beach and is one of the finest fishermen around. If any are out there, he will catch them. Then he heads for IRP for some tennis to keep him young. Ernie celebrated his 79th birthday February 21, playing tennis.

Another Jerseyite, David Buck, is spending his two weeks at IRP tennis courts so that he can feel young at 77. Buck told me a great story. He was walking down the boardwalk in Atlantic City with a 95 year old friend who quipped, "Look at those chicks, what I wouldn't give to be 75 again."

In the Martin County Heart Tournament on March 1 and 2, Sally Campbell and Lucha Gale are the team to beat in the ladies' A division.

On Saturday night, the juniors have a ball. Fun and games for 22 aspiring young tennis players. Laura Harnagel came in first in the doubles round robin. Jimmy Strauss was second, with Richie Prentiss and Ben Richardson tied for third. Mike Duffy came in fifth.

Richie Prentiss and Joey Diffenbach were the last two contestants in the round the world contest, making them the winners.

Jean Harnegel treated all the juniors to hamburgers, cokes and a tennis decorated cake.

If you haven't entered the Heart Tournament yet, do it now. There are men's A B C division doubles. First Federal of Martin County will host a cocktail party for all contestants on Saturday night, 7 p.m.

Nettles Island hosted their 1980 tennis tournament and 76 avid tennis players from 35 to 72 entered. The ladies' A division was won by Audrey Sax over June Farage, 6-2, 6-3. Ladies B winner was Rose Ostrander over Sue Boswell, 6-2, 6-3. In the men's A it was Matty Vogel over Tom Doersan, 7-6 (5-2), 4-6, 1-3 (retired).

Ladies' A doubles winners were Anita Blumenfield and June Farage over Betty Hagan and Monika Hundall, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4. B doubles winners were Helen Newville and Betty Owen over Lee Vogel and Dottie Winter, 7-6 (5-4), 7-6 (5-4), a defeat by only two points.

Men's A doubles winners were Don Fogelsong and Tom Doersan over Evan Sax and Ralph Briggs, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. The B division was won by Lyman Hall and Walt Bryon over Bill Hall and Tom Walsh, 6-4, 6-1.

In mixed doubles, the A division was won by Nyme Farage and June Farage over Bob Tuft and Monika Hudnall, 6-3, 7-6. The B winners were Joe and Liz McDermott over Bob and Helen Newville, 6-4, 6-3.

Whenever your club or condo has a tennis event, how about letting me know so that all your friends and neighbors can follow your exploits in The Mirror.

FIT Campus News

By Daniel M. Saskowsky

FIT's community

BY DANIEL M. SASKOWSKY

This is the fourth in a series of articles on the impact that the Florida Institute of Technology has on the communities of Jensen Beach, Stuart, and the tri-county area of Martin and St. Lucie.

In this ever changing world where everything is moving forward at such a rapid pace, it is becoming more and more important for people to have a good education.

But, after high school or college graduation, where does a person go to enrich their education? They have learned the basics, reading, writing, and arithmetic (or is it called modern math?). They have been trained in some field of endeavor and are now working in the world hopefully as productive citizens. Is that all there is?

Fortunately, there is more.

Many communities have continuing education courses through the local high school or university. These courses are designed for learning a secondary trade, updating an education, or for the just plain curious.

As the only private college in the area, FIT has recognized its responsibility to offer various courses to the community. For example, a Master of Business Administration degree is being offered primarily for local industry people. Companies such as Pratt and Whitney, Florida Power and Light, and Grumman Aerospace are taking advantage of this and sending their people to FIT.

In the field of Real Estate, FIT offers various courses from Real Estate principles to license updating. Refresher courses are being planned.

In its constant effort to assess needs in the community for additional educational benefits, FIT now has active investigations going on to determine the feasability of offering these additional programs: Bachelor of Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in Nursing, Surveying, and Diesel engine and outboard inboard engines.

Other off-campus workshops courses are in the planning stage. This includes courses in Photography, the Humanities, Natural Science, Marine activities, and Applied and Physical Sciences.

FIT has recognized the fact that it is a vital part of the community and, as such, shoulders the responsibility to provide to the community the opportunity to learn. FIT has embarked on an aggressive development program that will meet the needs of its students and the community.

Next week: "The next ten years."

Beach clean-up this Saturday

In an ongoing attempt to keep Martin County beaches clean, the Naturalist Society of FIT will be holding its quartly beach clean-up Saturday, March 1st at 10 a.m.

The command center for this worthwhile project will be the Martin County Park N. Park, immediately south of Jensen Beach on A1A.

Students, armed with plastic garbage bags and ecological determination will be picking up debri from the beach starting at the Martin St. Lucie county line and traveling south to the Rand's Pier. Aluminum cans will be separated from the rest of the trash and will be recycled.

A beach party will be held after the clean-up with free beer, soda, pop and fruit juices.

Anyone interested in helping to keep Martin County beaches clean is urged to attend.

A 25 day seminar on Underwater Photography and Marine Ecology will be held at Andros Island in the Bahamas next summer, according to Dr. William R. Gehring, FIT's Dean for Academic Affairs.

The Andros program will provide students an opportunity to earn 8 college credits, 5 in underwater photography and 3 in Marine Ecology. The classroom for this unique program will be the barrier reef at Andros, the third largest barrier reef in the world and considered by some to be the most diverse.

FIT and Dowell start program

Arrangements have been completed for a joint educational program to be established between the Dowell Division of the Dow Chemical Company and FIT.

Within the program, Dowell will hire up to 9 FIT students for 12 weeks during the summer of 1981 to work at its Berwick Center. FIT will provide instructional personnel to teach the students who will eventually be considered for permanent employment by Dowell in the petroleum oil well treatment process. In turn, Dowell will place on permanent loan with FIT the major specialized equipment needed for the Petroleum Technology Program.

A public hearing will be conducted before the City Council of the City of Port St Lucie on March 11, 1980, at 9:00 a.m. City Hall, City Hall Plaza (Corner of Airoso and Port St. Lucie Boulevards) Port St Lucie, Florida, on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 80-7

AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PURCHASING OF AND CONTRACTING FOR SUPPLIES, MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT; PROVIDING FOR THE DISPOSITION OF OBSOLETE AND SURPLUS SUPPLIES, MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT OF THE CITY; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE

THE CITY OF PORT ST LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. The City Manager of the City of Port St. Lucie, or his designee, shall serve as the authorized Purchasing Agent for the City. The Manager may designate a department head as Purchasing Agent for his individual department, as provided hereinafter.

SECTION 2. No member of the Department of Finance, including the City Treasurer, shall approve their own purchases of supplies, materials and equipment. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to diminish the responsibilities of the City Treasurer under the City Charter of the City of Port St. Lucie.

SECTION 3 PROCEDURE FOR PURCHASING. The following procedures shall be used for the ordering, contracting or furnishing of materials, supplies, equipment or contractual services for any City department, office or agency.

(a) Any Purchasing Agent may purchase any supplies, materials or equipment in an amount of less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, by complying with procedures for making such purchases provided by the City Treasurer. The procedures shall be approved by the City Manager.

(b) Orders or contracts to furnish any supplies, materials, equipment or contractual services to any City department for five hundred ($500.00) dollars or more, shall be requisitioned by the user department, and the City Treasurer shall certify the availability of funds prior to the placing of an order or purchase.

(c) At the end of each month, the City Treasurer shall certify to the City Manager and each department head designated as a Purchasing Agent, the amount of funds remaining in each department's budget for purchases under this Ordinance. Any designated Purchasing Agent shall be individually and personally responsible for purchases made on behalf of his department in excess of the amount budgeted for such purchases, and shall reimburse the City and save the City harmless for the amount of such excess.

(d) Orders or contracts to furnish any supplies, materials, equipment or contractual services in excess of twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars shall not be permitted unless the competitive bidding procedures are followed as set out in Sections 4 and 5 hereinafter.

SECTION 4 COMPETITIVE BIDDING. Prior to making any purchase over twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars, the Purchasing Agent or designated Purchasing Agent shall invite competitive bidding under the rules and regulations set out in this Ordinance.

Each Purchasing Agent shall be responsible for comparing prices on regularly purchased small items.

SECTION 5 COMPETITIVE BIDDING. PROCEDURE. On all purchases in which competitive bidding is required, an advertisement for bids shall be published thereon in a newspaper of general circulation in the City, once a week for two consecutive weeks, the first issue thereof to be not less than ten (10) days prior to the reception of such bids, provided, that the City Council shall have the power to reject all bids and advertise again. Bids shall be opened at a public meeting and the lowest responsible bidder shall be awarded the contract. Any Purchasing Agent found to be dividing purchases or contracts into separate transactions of less than twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars each, if in their entirety the amount of the total divided contract or purchase exceeds twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars shall be in violation of this Ordinance.

SECTION 6. STATE CONTRACT PRICES. Contracts for equipment, supplies and materials amounting to twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars or more may be let without publishing an advertisement of bids thereon if said contract is with a person, firm, organization or corporation whose offer to sell to the City is at a sale price for said commodity equal to or lower than the then existing State Contract Price for the same or equal commodity as established by the State or any department, board or commission thereof, and the commodities are available to the State.

SECTION 7 AUTHORITY OF THE CITY MANAGER. In respect to any contract entered into under the provisions of this Ordinance, the City Manager shall have the power and authority to increase or decrease the same up to and including the sum of twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars for extra service, work or labor to be performed or for the deletion thereof. Any charges in excess of said sum of twenty five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars may be made only when authorized by the City Council. The City Council may also otherwise alter or extend the terms of any such contract upon the written recommendation of the City Manager.

SECTION 8 PERSONAL SERVICES. Nothing contained in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the City Manager, with the approval of the City Council, from employing labor for public improvements, necessary extensions of public services, employing specialized professional services and negotiations of policy premiums for various insurance coverages.

SECTION 9 DISPOSAL OF SUPPLIES, MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT FOUND TO BE OBSOLETE OR SURPLUS. The Purchasing Agent may designate City property as obsolete, surplus, unused, outmoded, unservicable or waste material. If the Purchasing Agent is not the City Manager, his approval shall be required. Records shall be kept by the City Treasurer of property of the City so designated. The record shall contain the reason the property was so designated and a description of the property. After designation, sale or trade may be conducted with or without a public notice, provided the value of the property is determined by the City Manager to be less than one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars. Where the value of the merchandise is in excess of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, the City Council shall find the supplies, materials or equipment are obsolete, unused, outmoded, unservicable or waste materials, and unservicable or waste materials, and authorize the manner of disposal.

SECTION 10. CONTRACTS AND EXPENDITURES PROHIBITED. No Purchasing Agent or designated Purchasing Agent, or employee of the City shall, during any fiscal year, expend or contract to expend any money or incur any liability, or enter into any contract which by its terms involves expenditure of money, for any purposes, in excess of the amounts appropriated for that general classification of expenditure. Any contract, verbal or written, made in violation of this Ordinance shall be null and void. Any officer or employee of the City who shall violate any provision of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall cease to hold his office or employment and he and his sureties shall be liable to the City by reason of corrupt or improper approval of any claim or account against the City.

Nothing in this Ordinance, however, shall prevent the making of contracts or the spending of money for capital improvements to be financed wholly or in part by the issuance of bonds, or for the making of contracts of lease or for services for a period exceeding the budget in which such contract is made, when such contracts are permitted by law.

Tarpon Bay opens with $1.3 million

Only open one week, Tarpon Bay Villas in Port St. Lucie reported that 17 of 38 model homes have been sold and there have been $1.3 million in sales for the kickoff of the condominium development.

Tarpon Bay, a short distance from Sandpiper Bay Resort, held an impressive open house just last Thursday, with the models open for inspection at a party that featured a steel band and included many of the area dignitaries.

The two story, two and three bedroom California style townhouses total 38 units, with the first phase sold out and the second phase well under way. There is a completely furnished model open for inspection to the public.

Plantation sales up in '79

Sales of condominiums at Indian River Plantation rose 35% to nearly $23 million in 1979, according to company president F. I. "Pete" Nebbut, Jr.

Nebbut said sales for the year totaled $22.8 million, about $6 million above 1978 and higher than the company had anticipated for the year.

The Plantation executive attributed the increase to strong buyer interest throughout the year, continued confidence in the Plantation on the part of lending institutions and the introduction of two new condominium complexes that expanded the variety of floor plans and locations available to purchasers.

Nebbut said the Plantation sold 209 one, two and three bedroom condominiums during the year, including the remaining units in River Village, a cluster of apartments on the Indian River, as well as those in the golf-oriented Fairway Villas and the centrally located Tennis Villas. In addition the company sold 60 apartments in Lakeside, a 75-unit complex located between a lake and the golf course, and 20 of 32 apartments in the Ocean Terrace condominium on the beach.

Nebbut declined to issue a sales forecast for 1980, but noted Indian River Plantation had started construction of 127 units in Riverwood.

Insua named Art Director at The Impact Group

Andres Insua has been named an Art Director at The Impact Group, Inc. The announcement was made by Kip Myers, president of the company, from his office here today.

Myers explained that The Impact Group is a full-service agency providing all aspects of advertising, marketing, sales promotion and public relations for its highly diversified clientele, and that Insua is integrally involved with many of the firm's most important projects.

Before joining The Impact Group, Insua was an art director at Jackson & Best Advertising, Inc. and Burton Cardpbell, Inc., two of Atlanta's most prestigious agencies. In 1978, he was the recipient of the Phoenix Award from the Atlanta Advertising Club.

50% turnout predicted for primary Tuesday

BY BOB FRYER

Martin County Supervisor of Elections Peggy Robbins is predicting a 50 per cent voter turnout for next Tuesday's Presidential Preference Primary election.

Mrs. Robbins noted that about half of the county's registered voters went to the polls in the Presidential Preference Primary four years ago and that she feels the turnout will be similar this coming Tuesday.

On the Democratic side of the ballot, the county's 16,034 registered Democrats will have a choice of five options in voting their preference for President, though only four of those five options are actual candidates.

Listed along with Edmund Brown Jr., Jimmy Carter, Richard Kay and Edward Kennedy is a space for Democrats to vote "no preference". Mrs. Robbins was asked why Democrats could vote no preference when there is no such option open for Republican voters.

"That's because this is a party primary, run by the parties, so they control how the ballot is set up. The Democrats decided to allow a no preference vote and the Republicans didn't," she said.

Mrs. Robbins said she didn't know what the consequences would be if "no preference" won, but said she has ribbed some local Democrats about that remote possibility and good naturedly kidded Republicans for not being bold enough to allow Republicans a chance to vote no preference.

For the county's 15,884 registered Republicans, there will be nine persons vying for their vote in the election. They are: John Anderson, Howard Baker Jr., George Bush, John Connally, Phil Crane, Robert Dole, Benjamin Fernandes, Ronald Reagan, and, of course, Harold Stassen.

In addition to voting their preference for Presidential candidates, Democrats and Republicans will also be voting on state committee men and women.

Additionally, there are two proposed state constitutional amendments that all registered voters, including the 1,940 who aren't listed as Democrat or Republican, can vote on.

The first amendment proposes granting a $25,000 homestead exemption on property taxes for schools. This exemption would apply only to property taxes levied for schools, and not for any other purpose.

Currently, anyone who owns a home as of Jan. 1, 1980, can qualify for a $5,000 homestead exemption, and those who have lived in the state for five or more years and who have one spouse age 65 or older can qualify for a $10,000 "exemption. If the measure passes, the $25,000 exemption on school taxes would apply to all homeowners who have lived in the state five or more years, regardless of age. For those who have lived in the state less than five years, the $25,000 homestead exemption on school property taxes would apply when they achieve five year residency.

The amendment also proposes that, contingent on future action by the state legislature, some form of rebate could be given to permanent renters.

Local state representative Chuck Nergard said that if the amendment passes, he imagines a move will be made by the legislature to grant a rebate to permanent renters, "since about 35 per cent of the state's residents are renters and since, in the form of rent, they are paying property taxes."

The second proposed state constitutional amendment on the ballot would modify the jurisdiction of the state Supreme Court. This would have the effect of reducing the case load of the Supreme Court.

Proponents of that amendment say the court has a large backlog of cases and that this would reduce the case load and result in quicker decisions. Opponents say this would eliminate some persons from being able to have their case argued before the Supreme Court.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, and voters are urged to bring their voter registration cards to their precinct. To determine what precinct to vote at, look on your card for the appropriate precinct number. Jensen area precinct locations are: Precinct One, Langford Park on SR 707; Precinct Two, First United Presbyterian Church in North River Shores, 1715 N.W. Pine Lake Drive; Precinct 10: Sewall's Point Town Hall, Sewall's Point Road; Precinct 14, Ocean Breeze Park, N.E. Indian River Drive; Precinct 15, Rio Civic Center, SR 707; Precinct 19, Jensen Beach Community Church, 409 N.E. Skyline Drive; Precinct 21, Jensen Samaritan Ambulance head quarters, off SR 723 (Savanna Road); and Precinct 22, Elliott Museum, A1A, Hutchinson Island.

Gluckler reelected mayor, Barton, Strubell are victors

Mayor Ed Gluckler won reelection to his post with 220 votes in the Town of Sewall's Point election Tuesday. William Barton was top vote getter in the light turnout with 305 votes. The other newcomer, Gilbert Strubell, had 235 votes to gain the third seat on the commission.

Dana De Windt was unopposed in his quest for the two year term left by John Guenther's resignation.

The new commission will face many problems, according to Gluckler, who said he was pleased with the election results.

"There is a lot of work. We have had a good board, and they did many good things," he said.

However, Gluckler said there are many things yet to be done, including development of a fire department, completion of North River Road, expansion of the police department, developing bike paths and resolving the problem of what to do with the lot across from the city hall that is owned by the city.

"The new board seemed to support completion of those things," Gluckler said, adding, "it will be a big job."

North County water plan is outlined

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Residents of the north county area have a choice of "a proliferation of small, private systems over which we have little or no control, or a main water system under our control" according to Frank Wachs, District One county commissioner.

Wachs told Jensen Chamber of Commerce members Tuesday morning that the $8 million north county water system would provide water to Ocean Breeze Park, Sewall's Point and Hutchinson Island in the beginning, adding new developments as they come.

Present well and septic tank systems would remain in use until "local wells go out. Then people could tie into the system at less cost than replacing their wells."

He outlined three alternatives to funding the system. The first, a revenue bond plan, would issue funds from existing water buyers in Sewall's Point, Hutchinson Island and Ocean Breeze Park to retire the bonds.

The county will spend $950,000 to buy the Southern Gulf Utilities system. SGU has a contract to buy water from the already hard-pressed City of Stuart system. That contract runs out in 1984, and the north county well field would replace the Stuart supply.

The county is also looking into a low-interest loan from the Farmer's Home Administration, but would have to include the homes along the Indian River, from the Crossroads area to the Jensen Causeway, if the loan is obtained.

Also, the county is looking to developers of the land to donate what it would cost to put in their own water system to help fund the expansion of the water system to their developments.

"Does anyone here think that the land from the top of the hill in Jensen to U.S.1 is not going to be developed?" Wachs asked. "We must plan for it. People must realize that growth is inevitable."

Wachs said that he had hoped, two years ago, that the well field would be in operation in 18 months. Now, his estimate is that if the bonds are authorized and sold by May or June, the well field, treatment and transmission systems would be developed eighteen months later.

He added that a second well field west of the St. Lucie River would be a backup to the north county and Stuart well fields.

"[illegible] is plenty of water. The cone of the well is a radius of 1,000 feet, not lost from the well itself." He added that the well field would not affect private wells in Jensen Beach.

Wachs said the choice was between a water system and a sewage system.

"You can't keep using the ground as a septic tank and keep drinking the water. Supplying water is a lot cheaper than supplying a sewage system," he said.

The commissioner was the speaker at the Tuesday morning Chamber coffee, held at First Federal's Hoke Hall.

He discussed planning for traffic solutions in Jensen Beach, deferring to presently conducted traffic counts of the Department of Transportation that will eventually bring suggestions for solutions to traffic problems at several Jensen Beach intersections. They include the intersections at Indian River Drive and Commercial, U.S. 1 and Commercial, Indian River Drive and Causeway Blvd., and Causeway Blvd. and A-1-A on Hutchinson Island.

He was critical of state and federal control over such matters as the bulkheading of the causeway, septic tank and sewage plants, and traffic, citing the delays by the Department of Transportation, Department of Environmental Regulation, Department of Natural Resources and Corps of Engineers in getting things done.

"How [illegible]e lets us put up street lights, [illegible] can't improve things that need improving without a lot of delay," he said.

He added that property owners of the area near the proposed well field had promised, two years ago, that they would donate the land for an eighty acre regional park there, and looked forward to some relief for the already filled Langford Park, only twenty acres.

Martin County Anglers Club opposes IRP marina proposal

The Martin County Angler's Club voted Monday night to oppose a request by Indian River Plantation to build a 60 slip marina in the Indian River near the Ernest Lyons Bridge.

The club voted to authorize president Bob Hemberger to write to the permitting agencies involved to request a public hearing on the matter.

Hemberger said plans call for two piers to extend around 400 feet out from the Indian River Plantation project, with 110 foot docks running north south at the ends of the piers. He said the plans also call for some dredging work to be done.

He said the grounds for objecting to the project are that the area is an aquatic preserve that should be preserved and that "there is a very useful bay in the area the marina is planned.

He added that there is a hole in the river bottom in the vicinity of the planned marina which fishermen refer to as the "wreakfish hole". He said some persons expressed fear that the large boats that would dock at the marina may interfere with fishermen at that hole.

Art festival a success in spite of the weather

"In spite of the weather, it was a good art show. Most of the artists sold paintings," said Dr. Richard Penick, chairman of the Jensen Beach Art Festival, held in rainy, blustery, wintery weather last weekend at Langford Park.

Penick said that the show was well attended and represented in spite of the weather on the open park area.

Of artists who signed up, there were only sixteen no shows, according to Penick. Of the ones who showed, thirty came back amidst chill winds on Sunday to continue the show.

"Many just packed up and left. They recognized that we couldn't do anything about the inclement weather, and said they would be back next year," Penick added.

The committee of Penick, Jayne Peterson, Dr. William Hogan and Ernie Baker announced that they planned new ideas for the 1981 art festival. They plan to meet to decide their direction, but would submit recommendations to the Jensen Chamber board that would expand the scope of the festival, possibly making it a week long celebration next year.

"Despite the weather," Penick said, it was a success.

Jensen man dies in wreck Sunday

A Jensen Beach resident was killed early Sunday morning when his pick-up truck ran into a tree along SR 707 about three tenths of a mile north of the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Bob Dees said that the victim, Lyndon Kinney, 32, of 1377 Indian River Drive, was only about a tenth of a mile from his home when the accident occurred.

The accident was reported at 12:40 a.m. Sunday and was investigated by Troopers Dees and Jim Shaw. They report Kinney was driving north on SR 707 when, for an unknown reason, the truck veered across the southbound lane onto the road shoulder and into a tree. Dees said Kinney was not wearing a seat belt and said he had been wearing one and had not had a seat belt in the back of the truck, he might have lived. He noted that when the truck hit the tree, a large tool box in the back of the truck, weighing approximately 400 pounds, moved forward and struck him against the front of the cab. He said Kinney was conscious and breathing when he got to Martin Memorial Hospital, but died of complications suffered in the wind pipe.

New feeder line should solve power problems next winter

BY BOB FRYER

If we have another cold snap as chilly as the record-breaking one we had Sunday and Monday, chances are your electric power will do its on again, off-again routine, but if that was the last cold spell of the winter the power outages should not occur next winter.

Throughout Jensen Beach, Rio, portions of Port St. Lucie and in the Spanish Lakes and Spanish Lakes Riverfront areas the power failed early Monday morning, when temperatures were well below freezing.

At the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department newly installed weather equipment recorded a chilly 26 degree reading Monday morning.

That was apparently cold enough to create too much demand for electricity to keep folks warm and get them off to work.

Gene VanCuren, manager of the local Florida Power and Light Company office said the problem was not with generating enough power but with getting that power to the people.

The power started going out around 6:15 a.m. Monday and in the Jensen and Rio areas the cumulative total amount of time it was out was around half an hour. But between 6:15 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. the power would go off for a few minutes come on then go off again. I kept getting frustrated trying to make toast. The toaster would start heating up, then go off," said one Jensen Beach housewife.

In Port St. Lucie some areas experienced longer outages, and in Spanish Lakes Riverfront, some mobile homes had their power deliberately turned off by FP&L workers as they tried to balance electric loads and give everyone at least some power.

Van Curen said the demand for electricity started rising as folks woke up and began turning on appliances to prepare for work. That, coupled with a power demand for heaters that had run high all night, was enough to overload feeder lines.

The problem in the Jensen Beach and Rio areas was that the lines coming from the sub-station were just not capable of carrying the load. And since those areas are at the ends of the lines, a lot of people experienced an on off situation," Van Curen said.

He said when feeder lines get overloaded, circuit breakers would trip off then a short time later would trip back on. But when demands built up again, the breakers would again trip off.

In Port St. Lucie and the two Spanish Lakes parts, the problem was basically the same, but in those areas, longer outages were experienced.

And Van Curen said in Spanish Lakes Riverfront some workers turned off power to homes to "swat the (power) load around."

He said Western Port St. Lucie areas had the longest outages, but said in all areas, the power problem was over by 10:00 a.m.

Van Curen said all three of FP&L's nuclear power plants were going during the cold snap and said there was adequate generation of power.

As for solutions to the end of the feeder line problem, Van Curen said the company is working on it and, if we can get through this winter without another bad cold spell, the situation should be better next winter.

A new feeder line, to come down SR 707A to Pinecrest Lakes, then to run behind that development to Savanna Road, is to be installed by next winter, probably by November. He added that if electric demands for air conditioning become excessive there could be outages in August.

In Port St. Lucie, a new feeder line is to be installed down Port St. Lucie Boulevard to Midport Road. He said this should relieve problems for western Port St. Lucie. The line was to have been in by January, but the firm could not get any cable by then.

SECONDARY MORTGAGE MARKET SPURS HOME SALES

Who owns your home mortgage? It's quite possible that the bank or savings and loan association which lent you the money to buy your home no longer holds that mortgage, having sold it and others in a secondary leader with cash to invest in sound, secured mortgages.

Though little known and often misunderstood the secondary mortgage market plays a key role in keeping home loan dollars liquid. Without it, mortgage money would be much harder to find than it currently is.

The term "secondary" should not be confused with second mortages, which are additional loans made to home buyers, usually for home improvements.

"The secondary mortgage investor might be, for example, an insurance company with surplus fund." "Leading institutions faced with a dwindling supply of funds to lend home buyers might sell $1 million worth of mortgages to the insurance company, thus gaining dollars to lend to people shopping for a home."

Knowledgeable, sophisticated Realtors such as myself agree that the present "tight money" situation might well be even tighter without this source of needed cash for loans.

"In most cases, a home buyer will not even be aware that his mortgage has been sold." "Usually the original lending company continues to collect monthly payments, forwarding them to the mortgage buyer."

Leading institutions having access to such secondary sources are better able to make loans for people mooting housing, "and this is particularly helpful to transferring families moving from one community to another and seeking housing."

Regatta spirit should prevail

There is a spirit of volunteerism that prevails in our area, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with it. That spirit has given the people many bonuses in living.

One of the bonuses is the Stuart Sailfish Regatta. It is a community-wide event that offers both entertainment and personal reward to the many volunteers who make it happen.

The regatta is now threatened. Police officers of Stuart who had previously volunteered, like the many others who make the regatta more than a dream, do not feel that they can volunteer any longer. They want to be paid for their work policing the regatta area and directing traffic.

We cannot blame them. Everyone wants to be paid if they can be for work they do.

But, the spirit of the regatta is one of volunteerism. The many merchants working to produce and direct the regatta spend many hours that could be more profitably spent in dollar return to their businesses, but they enjoy being a part of a community service project.

The regatta committee cannot allow the spirit to fade.

If the Stuart Police cannot do the job on a volunteer basis, then it is time to get someone else to do it...on a volunteer basis.

Perhaps the sheriff's auxiliary, or the Kiwanis Club, or Rotary Club, or another service organization might wish to see the volunteerism and civic pride continue.

Whoever volunteers to direct traffic and patrol will be rewarded with a feeling of offering something to the community. And, the community will keep a major attraction that offers an opportunity for the people to do something for themselves.

Will a sales tax replace homestead

There are too many "ifs" inherant in the proposed constitutional amendment to increase homestead exemption to $25,000 to allow the amendment to pass.

On the surface, the amendment is like motherhood and apple pie. It offers persons with five years residence a chance to get $25,000 homestead exemption on their school taxes. Persons with $25,000 homes will pay no school taxes. It is estimated that there are 1.1 million homes in Florida assessed at less than $25,000.

Persons with homes above $25,000 could save up to $160 on school taxes, depending on the school millage.

It sounds like a great idea, a tax cut. Who would vote against that?

But where would the tax money to support the schools come from? There is $220 million to find somewhere.

The Florida Legislature has not answered that question, nor has Governor Bob Graham. The state says it will make up the difference.

From where?

The strongest possibility is an increase in the sales tax, which would hit the smaller income families the hardest.

Without a stated plan of where the money is coming from to make up the difference in lost school income from the tax cut, there is no way we can support the constitutional amendment to increase the homestead exemption to $25,000 on school taxes.

The amendment should be voted down on March 11.

Lost Weekend?

Did you ever have a weekend drop out from under you? Pieces of it, maybe. But a whole weekend?

It's a mind-blowing experience, believe me. I know, because somebody pulled the plug on mine.

I should have known something dire was going to happen, when I looked at my calendar Friday morning. It wasn't just clogged — it was jammed. The only answer obviously in sight was a plumber's helper.

"Fred—intvu with SG—10 a.m.

Intv with evanrudes 4 p.m.

"Sat.—save whole day for NFPW sem.

"Sun—intvu w visiting min. community ch—10 a.m.

church (if poss.)

eye art sho.

Things started out tamely enough. On Friday I intvued SG all right and had intvu with evanrudes, who just happen to be the most charming and cordial people God ever made. But then things started to go downhill and never quit.

Slip one. I discovered before I got home, that I'd left my notebook, filled with copious notes on both a series I'd covered that day — filled with irreplaceable direct quotes from both parties concerned.

Conceding myself with the fact that — hopefully — the notes would be retrievable, I hied myself home right in front of the first raindrops also which had failed to be in my schedule. Part of my home project has been refinishing a little antique table — a job you don't do at all unless you have a particular fondness for eating walnut dust. So there went the evening.

In order to understand the debacle of Saturday, you have to realize my order of arising on a Saturday morning. What you do is wake up at a fairly normal hour, like 9:30 or 10, roll over, groan a lot, and sleep until noon. Hence, for me to make an appointment anytime before the sun has slid over the zenith on Saturday is like setting a convenient date with Armageddon.

Yet there on my calendar it was: save whole day for NFPW sem, and I was determined to make the sacrifice. Especially because I was Number One member to sign up for this potentially valuable new chapter of Florida Press Women's Association, and I was eager to see it get off the ground in these parts. So eager, in fact, that I let its founding mama Shirley Wagener and major spearheader Josephine Grund talk me into being a panel member at this virgin seminar. We hoped to get a meeting of minds among news and public communications weirdos, to help each other out and to expand our horizons on the values and responsibilities of the media in general.

So I grumped out of bed at 9 a.m., opened my first eye at 9:30 a.m., my second one at 10 a.m., and by 11 I'd begun to put my head screwed on straight. Which for this dollar-a-dollar scholar was a minor miracle.

I arrived at the Grunds' beautiful McArthur Boulevard home almost exactly at noon. Knocked on door. Josephine came flying to me in response to my quest for entry with a scream of "It's tomorrow!"

The bottom, it seems, had fallen out of my calendar. I can only blame it on Leap Year, which has been fouling me up in one way or another for several decades. Not a single millionaire I proposed to has accepted.

Geraldine, gracious lady that she is, invited me in for a cup of tea, and filled me in on what, in general was going to be happening the next day (when as it looked then I couldn't possibly make it despite the fact I was to have been one of the panelists) and it turned out to be quite a nice non-meeting just between the two of us.

The part of the next day's seminar in which I was to be a featurepreacher, she said, should be beginning about 4:30 p.m., so I decided all was not lost — I'd get the visiting VEEP minister, church, the Lions Pancake Day and the art show all out of the way, and still have time to arrive by 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Daweth Sunday, bleak, blowy, and COLD. Minnesota should be so cold. I hauled the recumbent corpse out of bed, clothed it haphazardly, and aimed it in the direction of the Community Church. It must have been the sanctified atmosphere, because this time no pieces fell out. Got photo, took in the service at All Saints to ask for all the help I could get, and headed in direction for Langford Field looking for art show.

No show. Lots of people bundled up in field house eating stacks of Lions Pancakes, but not a sign of the much publicized Art Festival in sight. The wind and the rain had blown the whole show off the map.

Dejectedly, and frostily, I bought a paper and headed home. The world was a louse-up, and I the louser upper. Finally, about 4 p.m., I braved the elements again to get to the seminar at Elliott Museum in time for my part in it.

I walked in, just as the final lines had been spoken and adieus were being said. Because of the light attendance, I was abjectly informed by Josephine, everything got ahead of schedule, and as a result, I got there just in time to take a picture and leave.

Thereby endeth the tale of my Lost Weekend. And pray God I never find it again. I couldn't take two of 'em in one lifetime.

Everything changes in age

When my sister Pat returned from a visit to the home folks in St. Louis, she was filled with nostalgia. She showed me pictures of kinfolk I didn't know existed, though she remembered them and knew all about them.

Pat is that kind of person. She remembers.

She remembers when I stole the money off my Dad's dresser at six in the morning and went out in my pajamas to the corner store, bought four quarts of ice cream and had a party in the middle of my bed with Bob and her. I was about four at the time.

She had some pictures of St. Louis, too. The tenement we lived in on Salisbury Street was torn down and is now a parking lot. The last time I was there, in 1972, it was condemned, but not torn down.

The old Lutheran Church across the street was still there, though the heavy padlock on the front door didn't show in the post card. Kreig Packing Company was still there, but Hyde Park Brewery was out of business and a lot full of rubble.

Sportsman's Park, where I saw the Cardinals and Browns play (I was a member of the knot hole gang) is gone, and a youth activities complex is there.

She had a picture of the waterfront, the levee with the Eads Bridge in the background. Riding high in the water was the Admiral, an excursion boat that brought back memories of the early 1940s. I exclaimed, "There she is!"

I played trumpet on the Admiral with our high school swing band, directed by Carlos Camacho, who said he was a cousin of the president of Mexico. He had a daughter with long black hair and a too thin figure who sang "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" every time we played a dance. Lord, she sang badly, kinda squeakey, straining for the high notes and missing the change of keys after the bridge.

I kissed her on the Admiral, near the lifeboats. It was my second kiss. A girl named Marian, who lived down the block and whose mother I took piano lessons from, was my first kiss. She said I did it real well. Maybe it was because I played trumpet.

Anyway, I read in the Miami Herald that the Admiral may be scrapped. My heart stopped.

Is there no justice? Is there no feeling of history? How many young men, aged thirteen, had their first kiss by the lifeboats on the Admiral? What memories will go into oblivion, never to be regained with the sight of a post card of the St. Louis riverfront with the Admiral sitting in front of the Eads Bridge?

I can remember when the Admiral replaced the President as our excursion boat in St. Louis. The President went to New Orleans, where it stayed. When I went there a few years ago on a press meeting, there the President was, at the foot of Canal Street.

The ultra modern (at least it was then) Admiral just got the deep six from a bank. A bank. Remember the television commercial of the guy walking through the door of a vault saying how the bank was working to help business grow, help people make it in the free enterprise system, help revitalize downtrodden areas? A bank.

It seems that the Admiral needed $750,000 in repairs to its hull. The Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis agreed to finance it. Then, when the Admiral was hauled in New Orleans, it was discovered that an additional $500,000 in repairs to the hull were needed. The bank refused to go along, saying that the Admiral could not generate enough revenue to justify the loan.

The bank did it.

Is there not feeling of respect for the thousands of second kisses in the life of the millions who went "down on the levee, way down on the levee, in good old St. Louie, I mean old St. Louie, on the good ship, Admiral I'm talkin' 'bout."

I'm sorry, I get carried away.

Imagine the gall of that bank. They are going to junk the Admiral, with no more than a second thought, or second mortgage. Like, it will go away, and soon no one will remember it.

I'll remember it. Every time I look at that post card that Pat brings down when she comes to visit, I'll remember that daughter of Carlos Camacho, cousin of the president of Mexico, and her long black hair and skinny figure, and our kiss by the lifeboats.

True, she couldn't sing too well, but she could kiss. My second kiss.

They can't take away my memory of that night. Playing in the band as the Admiral chugged up the river, the sun beating down on the many who strolled near the lifeboats.

That's nostalgia. That is memory. I just wish I could remember her name.

No matter. Remember the Admiral, and all the memories it stands for. The Admiral cannot, and should not be scrapped.

(What was her name?)

Bring back the trains

Sometime ago the Federal government discontinued an Amtrack train from Chicago to Florida, the Floridian.

The elimination of the Floridian and several other long-distance trains was a matter of economic necessity, according to federal authorities who said there just weren't enough passengers using the trains.

For years, the use of passenger trains has been on the decline, and it wouldn't surprise me to see passenger trains soon become as rare and out-dated as street cars are now.

If that's to be the case, I think it's a shame.

Some of my fondest childhood memories are of riding the Silver Meteor from Jacksonville to Savannah Ga and back. My grandfather worked for Seaboard Railway (which eventually merged with Atlantic Coast Railway to become Seaboard Coast Line).

I was too young to know or care about ticket prices back when I rode the Silver Meteor, but I think my grandfather's employment by Seaboard meant I got to ride free or, if not free, cheaply. I do remember though that I loved it. When summer rolled around and school let out, my brother and I used to get on the Silver Meteor and ride up to Savannah to spend a vacation with my grandparents. It was quite an adventure, and every aspect of the trip was enjoyable. The food on the trains was delicious. The train was clean, and the conductor was friendly. The train stations in Jacksonville and Savannah were gigantic, with ceilings about 100 feet high and they contained enough of a hustle and bustle of activity to keep my brother and I fascinated.

But all that has changed now. The train stations, architectural wonders are gone. And so, too, are the passengers.

I suppose the increased popularity of air travel and the trend for families to own more than just one car contributed to the decline in train passenger service. But whatever the reason is, the number of persons riding trains has declined steadily since World War II. With the decline, railway firms found it more profitable to eliminate passenger trains and concentrate on freight trains. Naturally, with fewer passenger trains running, people found the passenger train schedules of those that did continue to operate just weren't competitive in terms of departing and arriving at convenient times.

So, the decline of passenger service fed on itself.

But is it necessary for the trend to continue to the point where passenger trains become extinct?

I hope not, and if we take lessons from our European friends, I don't think it has to.

The folks in Europe have a very efficient, well developed train system. I've been there twice, and on both occasions I found the trains were heavily used by people from all walks of life. I found the trains ran on very reliable schedules. In fact, they were so reliable that I had a few mad dashes to catch trains that, of all things, left on time. Also, the service on the trains was good.

In America, what few trains there are are almost invariably late. Our tracks are in disrepair and the trains are generally unclean and feature poor service.

I don't know why the Europeans have succeeded where we have failed, but I've heard one reason is because as our burgoning economy was allowing us to hop out of trains and into cars, many Europeans couldn't afford the hop.

Now that our economy is looking less than rosy and the cost of fueling our cars is skyrocketing, maybe it's time to return to our train system.

If that's to be the case though, it will have to be done in a big way. The American public is not willing to ride on trains running hours behind schedule, on rail beds that are unsafe and in dirty cars with poor service. But if offered safe, clean trains that run on time and feature good service, the American public just might buy it.

V&C offers high fashion

Givenchy, Ship n' Shore, Trisal, Leon Levin, Alex Colman, Charlie Grunbaum?

No, Charlie Grunbaum's name is not among these top-flight New York and Paris fashion designers because he is one of them. But this Jensen Beach man makes it possible for the brand name fashions these designers create to reach local shoppers at greatly discounted prices.

Grunbaum, along with his wife Vivien, owns and operates V&C Fashions, a discount outlet for ladies' sportswear and golfwear.

New York natives, the Grunbaums moved to Jensen Beach and opened their first store in Stuart in January of 1979. The venture was such a success that they were able to open a second store in Ft. Pierce several weeks ago.

"At the time I came here, there was a real need for this type of thing because prices were extremely high and there was very little competition," said Grunbaum, "there are a lot of high-priced boutiques, but I wanted to try to carry brand-name fashions at discount prices."

Grunbaum mentioned that anyone else starting this type of business would have to expect the first 10 years to be "hit and miss," but due to the fact that his father has been in the garment business for 30 years, Grunbaum already has the "contacts" he needs for success.

Grunbaum deals with the New York, Florida and California markets. As he does his own buying — usually in large quantities — Grubaum realizes a great savings, which he passes on to his customers.

One of the major factors Grunbaum attributes to the success of V&C Fashions is that no high-pressure sales techniques are employed. Customers are asked if they need assistance and then are left alone to browse.

Grunbaum reported that a number of new customers from Spanish Lakes, Port St. Lucie and Vero Beach are frequenting his new Ft. Pierce store.

Because he is now operating two stores, Grunbaum said he can sell items for $1 less than their already discounted prices.

The business gives me a lot of satisfaction," commented Grunbaum, we saw the market, found a need and filled it."

For area shoppers, that means high-quality brand name designer merchandise at affordable prices.

Jay Horton Sandpiper Bay Pro-Am win

A trio of vexatioseing northern pro feamonals grabbed the lion s share of purse money in the bi-monthly Sandpiper Bay Pro Am golf event Friday on the Saints championship course with Jay Horton a Long Islander taking the top award with a four under par 68.

Deadlocked in second place only one shot off the pace at 69 were Hans Merrel and Mike Mallon, both New York staters. Tied at two under 70 included local pro Steve Cunningham with another pair of visitors, Jim Bood and Jim Tuller. Bud Harston of Stuart finished well up the ladder at 71 with Mal McMullen and the veteran Walt Seena.

The team led by Sandpiper pro John Jay LaFlair walked off with the top four-man team prize with a tally of 25-under 119. Team scoring consists of two best ball of a foursome with the pros playing at scratch while the three amateurs utilize their posted acrred nted handicaps.

Friday's event attracted the largest entry since this feature was inaugurated 16 years ago by the late Chuck Johnson Sr. Forty nine four-man teams competed and there are indications by Chuck Johnson Jr., head pro at the Sandpiper resort courses, that the event scheduled for Friday, March 17th, also at the Saints course, will again smash all entry records.

Johnson urges those interested in competing in future events to sign up as early as possible in order to insure themselves a spot in the tournament. Pros and amateurs alike are urged to make early visits to either of the golf shops at Sandpiper Bay.

Jimmy DeLerme, a former assistant pro at Sandpiper paved the way for his team to capture second place with a 23 under score. The amateurs on the team included Clyde McFarland, Bill Meyers and Maz Maldbilig.

Alone in third place at 22 under par included pro Bill Miller with simon pures Ken Snow, Jim Stark and Warren Parker.

Five teams finished in a tie at 21 under par 123. They included pros Harvey Bostic, Mike Mallon, Tom Hanlon and the Knebels brothers, Chuck & Carey of Manner Sands. The amateurs who shared in merchandise awards were Wade Sunderland, Terry Chapin, Bob Hbsson, Leon Peao, Bill Rader, Jack Early, Hank Lenninger, Fred Lasko, Tony Broadway, Nevis Sutcliffe, Max Douglas, Sam Perry, Sam Zmach Harold Goldman, and Dolf Ciferi.

Johnson also reported that all other winners will be posted at both the Saints and Sinners pro shops.

VILLAGE LIFE—IN PEWTER—By Robert Radin, owner-manager of Collectibles Ltd. of Harbor Bay Plaza points out the detail of the village square, part of an entire town being done in miniature by Michael A. Ricker, an artist whose work has drawn increasing national attention. The artist will be here until the [illegible].

If you want to take lessons in building a Lionel railroad [illegible] you'll just [illegible] to be content to [illegible] at Collectibles Ltd. at Harbor Bay Plaza from March 20 through 22, with all the equipment to show how it is done.

The creations of Michael Ricker, a Coloradan with a vision, are three-dimensional counterparts of Norman Rockwell's—the village square, the courthouse, the parapets of the Fourth of July parade, and peopled with characters out of middle America's remembrable past. The authenticity of his workmanship is so great that it has attracted customers of high degree and exquisite appreciation for the arts.

The uniqueness of sculptor Ricker's work is that it is all in pewter, that alloy of lead and copper so popular during the early days of this country. Its malleability makes it possible for the artist to work out in fine detail the houses, trees, and expressions on peoples' faces to the point of refined caricature. The results are astoundingly lifelike.

As has been said, his goal is an entire village, and he has already [illegible]

Matus makes another attempt to sail surfboard to Bahamas

If everything goes as planned — and that's a big if — Erse Matus of Jensen Beach will make sailing history today.

At 7 a.m. today (Wednesday, March 5) Matus was to have set sail from Riviera Beach to the Bahamas on a 12 foot long, sail powered surfboard.

If he is successful, you'll probably be reading about him in "Sailing", "Yachting", "Southern Boating", and "Sea" magazines. And, Matus is also hoping his feat will be listed in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Nobody has ever sailed such a craft from Florida to the Bahamas before, but Matus feels confident he can do it, in spite of a failure to do so in January.

His first attempt was made on January 9th, and it ended only a few hours after it was begun. The problem then was there simply was no wind to sail with.

Also sponsoring the attempt is Bill Donohue of Barnacle Bill's Sail Emporium, local dealer for Sailriders.

Donohue said when the first attempt was made, Matus had a rough time just getting past the surf because there was no wind. "We had announced to all the press and to our sponsors that that's when we'd do it, so we went ahead and tried. But there just wasn't any wind. We decided after that to just go when it looked like the winds would be favorable. Tomorrow morning, it looks like we'll have good winds, though it might be a little chilly," Donohue said Monday.

Matus, who has 10 years of sailing experience, will wear a wetsuit and will have a backpack containing bottles of a glucose solution so he can sip the liquid for nourishment and energy along the way.

With good winds the trip should take six to 12 hours, and once he arrives, the plan is for him to hop aboard a chartered boat and return home Wednesday night.

Donohue has chartered a sportfishing boat from Palm Beach, the Gulfstream Diver, to go along for the trip. The boat captain, Mark Rose, will do the navigating and Matus will follow. A photographer and freelance writer will be aboard the boat to document the attempt.

Kilts and Bagpipes featured in Sandpiper Bay golf play

Some will take the high road and others will take the low road when members of the Sandpiper Men's golfing group tee off in the Chapman Scotch Foursome event Thursday on the Saints championship course at the Sandpiper Bay resort.

There are reports that several of the members will be playing in their plaid kilts and accompanied by a couple of Scottish bagpipers.

A low score of 53 took the top award in Thursdays play which was labeled Best Ball of a Foursome. Included in the winning combination were Tom Naughton, Cal Graeser, Bob Crane and a blind draw member, since the scheduled fourth cancelled out as a late "scratch".

One shot off the pace of the winners found a pair of teams deadlocked at 54 all under par. Wes LaCour, Jim Johnston, Vernon Ferrar, John Welsh, Dan Smozanek, Marv Waldbillig, Bob Heller and Richard Wilson were on the two teams.

Another shot off, at 55, found three teams in a tie. These linksmen included Frank O'Beirne, Denny Sullivan, Will Ferrara, Gene Allison, Art McDaniel, Dick James, Seymour Fleming, Jim LaMont, Cal Heathman, Bill Jahn, Dr. Andy Virtuoso and Pat LePore.

Danny Smozanek led the individual gross scoring parade among the Break Eighty clubers when he flashed with a 75, followed on that grouping by Doll Cifelo, Jim Johnston and Joe Shulte at 78. Sam Dewhurst and Lloyd Thompson shot 77. Marv Waldbillig a 78. And Tom Bonne, John Hunchareck and Ken Simmons each shot 79.

Crane Creek hosts Martin Memorial Hospital benefits

Local sports enthusiasts will gather this weekend to participate in the Martin Memorial Hospital Golf and Tennis Benefits at Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Clubs at Martin Downs in Palm City, Saturday and Sunday, March 8 and 9.

"All proceeds from these benefits will be used towards the purchase of a Recovery Room Monitor for the hospital," said Klas Tuschmann, Director of Recreational Activities for Crane Creek. Tuschmann is coordinating the events with the Martin Memorial Hospital Ball Committee.

First place division winners will receive a $50 gift certificate for the Crane Creek Tennis Pro Shop, runners up a $25 gift certificate. The tax deductible entry fee is $25 per team.

Tee-off times begin Saturday at 8 a.m. featuring two man best ball — with handicap. The hole in one prize is a 1980 Firebird Esprit courtesy of Ames Buick Pontiac of Stuart. The first place team wins one year golf memberships to the Crane Creek Golf Club. Sinner of the closest to hole #8 [illegible] courtesy of Jetson Appliance Center, and the longest drive on hole #15. Winner receives a gift certificate to the Crane Creek Golf Pro Shop. The tax deductible entry fee is $60 per team.

Said Tuschmann, "Crane Creek will host an elaborate reception for all the participants in the golf and tennis benefits Saturday, March 8 from 4:30 to 7 p.m. in the Crane Creek Golf Club Restaurant."

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

The Weather was lousy March 1 & 2 but at least we didn't have a tornado like Pompano. Thermometers dropped and winds increased, but the finals of all divisions in the 4th Annual Heart Fund tourney were completed.

Most importantly over $900 was raised for a very worthy cause. Saturday nite the First Federal Savings & Loan of Martin Co., hosted a cocktail party for all contestants, and nearly 100 people braved the steady rainfall.

Now, I am going to reverse the order of importance in most sports reporting and start with the Ladies 'C' division. Two brave ladies, Louise Colton & Hale Van Zandt made their debut in tournament play and still had smiles when they reported the results. "We had a very good match, but lost 6-0, 6-1 to Ivy Walsh & Lish Doersam."

The Men's 'C' division was a closer affair with Sheldon Clark & Roger Butler defeating Mike Tonnacliff & John Oliver 6-3, 7-6, 7-3 in the tiebreaker.

Timing is everything in tennis. Judy Goodman and Sandy Stevens timed their holidays in Stuart by chance and teamed to win the Ladies 'B' division. Putting up a windy battle were Helen Duval & Hilde Pate 3-6, 7-5 6-2.

The Men's 'B' division drew a very strong field, and produced some good tennis. Len Polanski & Doug Johnson had it all their way in the finals defeating the upset kids, Alex Estabrook & Brian Richardson 6-3, 6-1.

Have you ever heard the expression, taking the gas? Here is a perfect example. Dick Campbell & Dan St. Onge won the first set 7-5 against Homer Greene & George Stanislaw. Then proceeded to lose the next two sets 6-0, 6-2.

The Ladies 'A' division also had a strong field. Timmy Socker & Gloria Hackard pulled an upset by defeating #1 seed Sally Campbell & Lucie Wade 4-6, 7-6 (5-3), 6-4. In the other semi final, Kathy DeWindt & Marina Koerd defeated Laura Harnagel & Beth Grossnickle 6-4, 6-1. Kathy & Marina then had less trouble with the wind and defeated Timmy & Gloria 6-1, 6-3, to win the 'A' division.

Ransom Pilkin & Charlie Church gained some revenge over Lee Abraham & Bill Tate 1-6, 6-3, 6-1. They lost last month in the I.R.P. Doubles Championship.

Heiko Voges & Bill Scherer won a touch match over two good juniors, Mike Duffy & Ritchie Iverniti 6-4, 6-4. Enjoy that win men, next year will be a different story.

The most unusual match of the tournament came in the Men's 'A' final. Played before a new crowd all bundled up. Jim Grossnickle & Ronnie Ponder had long rallies and their ads an age in each of the first 2 games, including 4 adds in the third game, only to lose the first set 6-0 to Scott Oughterson & Ken Rickson. Then a complete turn around. Jim & Ronnie came back in the second set to win 6-1. The final set was very close & exciting for the last point when Ken dove on the ground for a Ponder bullet at match point. Jim Grossnickle & Ronnie Ponder emerged the Men's 'A' Tile Annual Heart Fund Champions.

The Heart Fund Ball Tennis Chairman & Tim Falkenburg tournament director would like to take this opportunity to thank 1st National Bank, Penn Tennis Balls, Brunos Sporting Goods, 1st Federal S & L of Martin County, A.I.R.P. for helping to make this all worthwhile and especially all you fine tennis players without whom I would have been impossible. Thanks.

Sandpiper winners

Two from IRCC win basketball team positions

George Ramsey and Archie Baker of Indian River Community College have been voted to the All-Division IV Basketball team.

The All-Division team is composed of the top 10 players in the division, which includes eight teams.

Crackdown on boat speeders

Seventy two persons have been arrested and thousands more issued warnings by three government agencies in a crackdown on motorboaters who failed to observe speed regulations in Florida's 13 designated manatee restricted areas.

And the Florida Department of Natural Resources, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service all promise even tougher enforcement in the future to protect the endangered sea cow.

The speed boat regulations effective from Nov. 15 to Mar 31, are authorized under the state's Manatee Sanctuary Act. The gentle, slow-moving manatees congregate in Florida's warmer waters during the winter months but are frequently maimed or killed by propellers from speeding power boats.

Anyone with information about harassment, injury, death or illegal possession of any endangered species may use the toll-free Manatee Hot Line (800-342-1821) to report the violations.

Sandpiper Bay Ladies Golfers

The first round of the 54 hole President's Cup was played on the Saints golf course Tuesday, February 26th.

After 18 holes played under chilly, windy weather conditions, Helen Purcell led the field of 110 players with a net 68. Just off the pace by one shot were Jeers Bouresen and Monty Miller each with a net 69 followed by Caroline Wilhelms at net 70.

The daily tournament of low net in Flights produced the following winners:

Fifth Flight: Monty Miller, 69.

QUESTION

How and where does rust start?

ANSWER

Rust starts anywhere. Rust is formed by the union of oxygen in the air with iron or steel by a process called oxidation. Moisture is an important agent in producing the change. Anywhere you have iron or steel, metal parts, oxygen and moisture, you can and probably will have rust, but rust may not always be evident. Rust can form under paint, metal parts below metal surfaces and in the following areas:

BIG HOUSE—The main manor house of the ...udes on their Pineapple Ridge estate is caught by the ...ions in the afternoon light. The downstairs contains a suite of offices from which Mr. E. conducts his business as chairman of the board of Outboard Marine Corporation.

THE HUT—One of the exotic beauty spots on the Evinrude estate is the "hut," a spacious playroom which can accommodate parties of up to 50. It is surrounded by a lovely lake, bridges, and a man-made island rich with birds of every hue and breed.

A glamorous paradise is created by the Ralph Evinrudes

...r's note: This is another in a ... of fascinating homes in and ...d the Jensen Beach area, and the ...sting people who inhabit them.

...ny fine old families, dating back ...s 1890's, have given architectural stability and grandeur to the Jensen Beach area. But it took Ralph and Frances Evinrude to bring it glamor.

And glamor is the only appropriate word to describe the hilltop estate which affords views of both rivers in the midst of a miniature Hawaii.

The estate itself is baronial in dimension. It sits on 200 acres which combines some of the finest citrus groves in the area, waterfalls, lakes, and man-made islands peopled by every imaginable kind of exotic bird, all confidently assured that they own the place. Peacocks strut up to you; the visitor, look you in the eye, and stalk off with obvious displeasure if you have the temerity not to feed them.

The Evinrude estate is the love-child of the two beautiful people who own it. Frances Langford, then a top star in her own right, saw that incomparable piece of hillside back in 1946, and decided she had to own it.

"I'm a Lakeland girl," she said, "and my dream has always been to live by the water."

The hill's unique nature, she explained, had already been established by the former owner, a world traveler who had brought back exotica from all parts of the world. But it took the aesthetic touch of Frances and Ralph, whom she married in 1955, to turn the property into the transplanted South Sea Island it is today.

The Evinrudes, incidentally, met and fell in love in a cafe where she was working in Minneapolis, home base of the famous Evinrude Outboard Motors. They said their vows aboard the Chanticleer — the 106-foot yacht Ralph had purchased the previous year.

Through the years, life has taken the Evinrudes on travels around the world — both for business and for pleasure. But since the building of the "big house" atop the hill of "Pineapple Ridge", Jensen Beach has been their official home base, and here they have entertained the greats of the music and business world.

And they have plenty of space for that entertaining. In addition to the large central home, with its swimming pool and tennis court, the estate includes "Riverhouse," a charming chalet, two guest houses, each large enough to accommodate a sizable family the year around, and the Beach House, over on Hutchinson Island, directly across from the Outrigger Marina. The Beach House, features a fireplace built with large stones from the original London Bridge.

Many friends from Frances past in the world of music and entertainment have enjoyed these facilities. Perry Como, who lives down in the Tequesta area, is a frequent guest, and "we let Jackie Gleason use the guest house for his honeymoon."

One they were particularly proud to play host to — Princess Soroya spent two weeks with them following her divorce from the Shah of Iran.

The list could go on indefinitely — Hugh O'Brien, Mike Douglas, Lanny Ross and a score or so more who have found the assurance of hospitality and privacy in a sometimes-too-public world.

Of all the TV and screen personalities, Frances' favorite is Bob Hope, who she calls "wonderful to work with." As everyone knows, Frances was an ace tourer with Old Ski-nose on his many Yuletide visits with our men overseas. As a result of her troupesmanship in those years with USO, Frances is vice-chairman of the United Service Organization; with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

During the summers, the Evinrudes divide their time between visits to the Evinrude home in Milwaukee and touring the islands. One of their favorite landing spots is an island they own in Georgian Bay. The island is so tiny and the Chanticleer so big that, when they tie up, the ship "turns on" the island, its generators supplying the electric power for the island home.

Despite the traveling, the fact that Jensen is official home for the Evinrudes may be seen on every side, within the community. It was Frances who donated the 20 acres to Jensen as a public park — the "Langford Park" where young and old make full use of the sports and clubhouse facilities.

Frances has also served as chairman of the Heart Ball, and a few years ago made it the hit of the season by getting Bob Hope to appear as guest star.

For Ralph, his philanthropies may be found all over the area. He was on the hospital board when the physical facilities of Martin Memorial included "a little bit of a shack," and he has since given a wing to the hospital, paid for the almost prohibitively expensive CAT scan, and helped erect a dock for direct access to the hospital from the water, so water accident victims may be brought directly into the emergency room.

But of all his local philanthropies, probably Florida Institute of Technology represents his greatest benefi-cence. As a member of the board of FIT, it was Evinrude who sold the Melbourne-based college on the idea of acquiring the Jensen facility, formerly a Catholic College, as the site for a second campus. Annually, he gives countless thousands of dollars to supply special needs. In appreciation, one of the buildings is named Evinrude Hall, and the former chapel is now the "Frances Langford Little Theatre."

What are the hobbies of these two — when they have time for any?

"Fishing and boating," says Ralph.

Frances is also a fisherman of no mean repute. But at home, her first love is gardening. Although they have a half-dozen gardeners to keep the Hawaiian paradise from taking over the entire landscape, Frances is out there regularly with her own pet gardening projects.

She also loves to cook, and does the entire KP detail for her husband, herself and occasional guests.

Complimented for their many contributions to the community, Ralph disclaims special credit.

"It's not any one person," he said. "It's everybody getting together and doing as much as they can, in any way they can."

...RITE TOASTING SPOT—Fireplaces play a big role in the architecture of ...inrude estate home. Here Frances and Ralph Evinrude sit on the hearth of ...tive-material fireplace in the Riverhouse, one of their pet places of refuge ... huge acreage.

RICH RELICS—The Ralph evinrudes have a room full of trophies in their beach house living room — including a stone fireplace made from blocks of the original London Bridge. Fish trophies crown the ceiling, all of them caught by the Evinrudes on their many fishing expeditions.

...LAGOON—The birds are the bosses in the ... lake surrounded by exotic foliage, outside the "Hut" on the Evinrude estate. The peacocks are the royalty, and expect to be hand-fed by any uninvited intruder. The lake is fed by an artesian spring near the crest of the ridge.

Stuart National celebrates Northside Branch opening

More than 300 guests recently gathered at Stuart National Bank's new Northside branch to celebrate the official opening.

Located on the east side of U.S. 1, just south of 707A, Northside is designed to solve banking problems north of the Roosevelt Bridge. Continuing the policy of innovations dedicated to serving its customers, Stuart National conceived Northside to save residents of South Port St. Lucie, North River Shores and those living along U.S. 1 the inconvenience of making that "special trip" to the downtown office.

As his guests enjoyed refreshments, host Jack T. Williams, president of Stuart National, commented, "While our main objective was to make it as convenient as possible for our customers living in the area of Northside to take advantage of our banking services, we also tried to provide a spacious and attractive environment in which to do business."

John R. O'Neill, a resident of Port St. Lucie, brings 12 years of banking experience to his new post as manager of the Northside branch. "Living in Port St. Lucie, I can personally appreciate the importance of having a Stuart National branch located north of the bridge," O'Neill pointed out. "Like many area residents, I've wasted a great deal of time and burned up gallons of gas waiting for the drawbridge to come down."

The Patriotic Forties

The 1940's found all of America embroiled in The War To End All Wars. Yet in the midst of nationwide wartime efforts, people still managed to glean comfort from simple pleasures at home ... with the Jitterbug, bobby sox and evenings 'round the radio.

It was during this time of hardship and shortened supplies that the founder of Publix, George W. Jenkins, closed his first two Publix Markets. In their place he built his dream — Florida's first true Super Market. And super it was. By the end of the decade there were 19 more markets in the Publix family and Americans gratefully returned to peace at home.

THE JAPANESE KIMONO worn by Christine Wojcieszak is indicative of the type of dress these women will wear for the hospital ball, to be held at Sandpiper Bay on March 15. This year's theme is "ChinHua" meaning Japanese flower, and these volunteers will display that theme in their dress as they donate their time to serve as hostesses. Pictured from left to right are Louise Baker, Jane Irons, Christine Wojcieszak, Tina Furmanchik, and Theresa Nicholas. Not pictured are: Lois Thomas and Wendy Lumm.

China Flower is theme of Martin Memorial Ball

On Saturday, March 15, the annual Martin County Hospital ball will take place at the Sandpiper Bay Country Club.

Depicting an oriental theme, the ChinHua, or China flower, the ball will be hosted by women dressed in Kimonos amid a background of white chrysanthemums and color schemes of red, gold and white. Guests will be entertained by the Vaughn Monroe Orchestra, who are coming at the special request of Mrs. Vaughn Monroe.

More than just another black tie affair, this event represents the culmination of a year's hard work by over 175 volunteers who have donated both their time and efforts to obtain enough funds for the greatly needed medical equipment at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Eight months ago, these women gathered at a pool party to begin planning for another patients' [illegible] care, set the wheels in motion and [illegible] to be used into the nursing station, constantly reading our patients' activity.

The list is lengthy, covering items from oscilloscopes to life packs, and the bill for all of it will come to more than $100,000. Although some of this equipment has already been funded by generous residents, the remainder will have to come from proceeds from the charity ball and from golf and tennis tournaments to be held Saturday, March 8 at the Crane Creek Country Club.

The entry fee for golf is $60 a pair and $25 for tennis. Any interested participants should contact Jay Pyle or Wanda Mahora at the Crane Creek Golf and Racquet Club.

It is fitting that the four oriental ideas conveyed at the ball are happiness, good fortune, longevity, and good luck, for the phrase that all the volunteers have utilized in their fund raising efforts is, it is our good fortune to be in Martin County. Our hospital provides us with all modern facilities to help us attain longevity for much happiness. And this is our good fortune.

Audobon Society to present film on Mississippi River

The last in a series of nature films sponsored by the Martin County Audubon Society will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 13, at the Stuart Woman's Club building, 729 East Ocean Boulevard.

The final film will be "American Heartland: The Great River Story" by Walter Berlet.

The film explores thousands of miles of the Mississippi River, and focuses on a pair of loons in Minnesota. The nesting and behavior patterns of the loons are recorded, and the film follows their activities until they are ready to migrate south.

Berlet has produced more than 20 educational films and 14 television shows which are being shown throughout the world.

The public is invited.

Overeaters Anonymous meets

8,000 item collection gift to FIT

Florida Institute of Technology's drama department is now richer by hundreds of volumes on theatre lore and techniques, as the result of a presentation made Saturday evening at Elliott Museum.

The benefactor is Richard Lake, popular actor who has appeared several times at the Museum here for dramatic readings. Lake made the official announcement Saturday evening following "An Evening with Shakespeare." The gift, he explained, is being made in memory of his sister, Chiquita Lake Napier, who died Aug. 31, 1978.

The actor's mother, Mrs. James Lake, was present for the performance and ceremony. A token number of books was presented to Mrs. Greg Braunstein, who accepted them in behalf of the college.

The collection itself, which includes more than 8,000 items--scripts, technical books on theatre history, acting, make-up, programs, albums of old recordings, and many other collectibles—is now at the Lake's west coast home. It will be brought over to the Frances Langford Little Theatre (the former FIT Chapel, within a few weeks).

Lake is prominent in many branches of the performing arts. Last month he appeared in the opening segment of the new Public Broadcasting season of the American Short Story (The Golden Honeymoon) which aired nationally Feb. 4, and he has been seen recently on several television commercials for national sponsors.

In Golden Honeymoon, he starred with Teresa Wright and James Whitmore, and received praise by critics and viewers alike. He also recently appeared in "Oklahoma!" with Peter Palmer and Ando Farrell at the Showboat Dinner Theatre.

Lake began his theatre and singing career at the age of eight with the Northwestern University Drama School and the Chicago Symphony. A native of Chicago, he served in the U.S. Navy, later apprenticing with the famous Old Globe Theatre of San Diego. He attended the Pasadena Playhouse, toured two years and worked with summer stock companies.

He received his Bachelor of Fine Arts from the University of Arizona, with a master's degree from Purdue University, where he joined equity with the University's resident repertory theatre company. He returned to the Old Globe as production stage manager and guest director. He came to Florida as artist in residence at the University of Florida. It was there he put together his "Evening with Carl Sandburg."

A versatile artist, he acts, sings, dances, and has directed more than 20 plays, as well as choreographing and designing two ballets and four musicals. In his spare time, he writes poetry.

His collection is one of a man of many talents, containing reference and source material for the serious student, performer, and teacher in the thespian arts. It is a fitting memorial to his twin sister, who died at 42, following a long battle with multiple sclerosis and cancer. A graduate of the Illinois Masonic School of Nursing, Mrs. Napier had worked at the South Suburban Hospital in Hazel Crest, where she later was a patient. She had helped form the Homewood-Flossmoor girls' softball team, where the Chiquita Lake Napier trophy for the best player has been presented annually since 1972.

Of the gift, Lake said: "It is my fervent hope that the availability of my library will be an inspiration not only to the intellectual development of the students who use it, but to the growth and development of their lives—and that they, in turn, will share their enrichment with others in generations to come. The theatre always has been and always will be a vital part of life. What it teaches us can be used in most unexpected ways."

FIT's future: planning for a decade

This is the last in a series of articles on the impact that Florida Institute of Technology has had on the communities of Jensen Beach, Stuart and the tri-county areas of Martin and St. Lucie.

The past four articles of this series were intended to show to the people of Jensen Beach and the surrounding areas the different facets of a teaching institution. Not only as an institution for students but also as a source of information for the community.

FIT, just as any part of a viable community, must grow along with the community. The Jensen Beach area will be growing rapidly in the next few years and FIT is making the commitment to be an important part of this expansion.

Dean E.E. Tealey and Mr. Donald V. Stophlet, development consultant, have announced the inauguration of "The Next Ten Years" development program. A total of $4,810,000 will be spent in the construction of new facilities and the renovation of others on the Jensen Beach campus.

We anticipate an enrollment in excess of 1,500 students by the end of the decade of the 1980's," said Tealey. "If FIT is to meet the needs of these students, the School of Applied Technology must develop the necessary new educational capabilities represented by these bricks and mortar needs."

Stophlet indicated that the projects to be achieved in the order of their priority were as follows: construction of a new maintenance building - $150,000; construction of a running track in the athletic complex - $100,000; completion of new tennis courts - $150,000; construction of a new gymnasium - $380,000; expansion of the library - $500,000; expansion of the [illegible] - $400,000; expansion of the Ralph S. Evinrude Science Building - $400,000; construction of a new dormitory - $2,000,000; construction of facilities for the Ralph S. Evinrude School of Marine Technology - $750,000; addition to the Student Center - $100,000.

Being a private institution, FIT does not receive any tax support. It must rely on the private sector of the economy to provide the financial support it needs to continue its academic operations, and to build the physical facilities it needs for the future. Gifts from corporations, foundations, parents, alumni, and other friends provide this needed revenue.

The following private foundations have provided grants totaling more than $1,000,000 during the past nine years. They are: Charles F. Culpeper Foundation, Henry L. and Grace Doherty Charitable Foundation, Ole Evinrude Foundation, Ralph S. Evinrude Foundation, Jesse Smith Noyes Foundation, Alfred P. Sloan Foundation and the William G. and Marie Selby Foundation.

FIT, in making a commitment to be a vital part of Jensen Beach, has shown its responsibility in the future of this area.

FIT Campus News

By Daniel M. Saskowsky

New photography program

Dr. William Gehring, FIT's Dean for Academic Affairs, has announced that a new degree program in Photographic Technology has been established, following the development of the program concept for the past four years.

Gehring noted that the FIT photography facility is one of the best of its kind in the Southeast, with class rooms, studio, darkroom and faculty offices all under one roof.

John C. Hutchins will be the department head supervising this program. Enrollment will be limited to 24 students in the first year to preserve the close working relationship between faculty and students, a very necessary ingredient in this highly specialized field. Hutchins indicated that the program would begin in September, 1980.

Aluminum bin located at FIT

The Naturalist Society at FIT is operating the aluminum recycling bin on Indian River Drive. The bin is located 200 feet north of the campus entrance.

All types of aluminum products, from beer cans to utility sheds, are collected by the Society and taken to a central pick up area in Stuart.

The aluminum is worth 22 cents a pound and the money is used by the Society to provide funds for lecture programs on campus, grants to sophmore and senior students working on required projects, and general club operating expenses.

Pick up service for large aluminum items is available upon request. Arrangements can be made by stopping by the Society office in the Main Building on the FIT campus.

NEW SHELL—Members of the F.I.T. women's crew team try out the newly christened "Ralph S. Evinrude" racing shell. The lightweight craft is to be used in competition by the women's crew.

Rotary provides scholarship

The Rotary Club of Stuart recently provided a contribution of $750 for FIT's School of Applied Technology to establish the Stuart Rotary Club Scholarship.

In making the gift, the Rotary Club treasurer, Gene L. Van Curen, said that the contribution was intended to be applied to the tuition for three quarters for a student who is a resident of Martin or St. Lucie counties.

Evinrude gives racing shell to FIT crew team

A Florida Institute of Technology crew team racing shell was recently christened the "Ralph S. Evinrude" in honor of the businessman's support of university rowers.

"It was through Dr. Evinrude's generosity that the FIT crew team was able to compete in the Royal Henley Regatta in England two years ago," explained crew Coach Bill Jurgens.

The new 58-foot long Schoenbrod shell was christened last weekend by Barb Reid, women's crew captain. It is to be used exclusively by the women's team.

Dr. Evinrude, an FIT trustee and chairman of the board for Outboard Marine Corporation, was himself a college oarsman.

Dr. Evinrude rowed for the University of Wisconsin in the 1920's, under Coach Dad Vail, whose name is closely associated with national small college rowing championships, Jurgens said. A crew regatta held annually at Philadelphia is named in honor of the legendary coach.

FIT President Jerome P. Keuper was on hand for the christening ceremonies, and though Dr. Evinrude was unable to attend he sent word through Jurgens that he was "highly honored" by the dedication.

Aides to mark anniversary

Members of The Aides, the St. Lucie River Power Squadron Auxiliary, will celebrate their tenth anniversary at a luncheon on March 8 at the Quality Inn in Stuart.

The organization was formed in 1970 to assist the local Squadron in the development of skill and safety in recreational boating through education, and to encourage friendship among members.

Fund-raising events are held throughout the year to furnish educational needs and help defray the cost of the Squadron's monthly publication, Crossroads.

The luncheon will honor charter members, as well as new members who have joined the Auxiliary during the past year.

Officers for 1980 and 1981 will be installed in a special ceremony. They are: president, Mrs. Walter Maron; first vice president, Mrs. Gerald Stahl; second vice president, Mrs. Norman Howlett; recording secretary, Mrs. Adrian Nemeth; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jack Lipscomb; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Kiehne; representatives-at-large: Mrs. Gerald McMaken, Mrs. William Monroe and Mrs. Frederick Bickman.

First National of Fort Pierce gives course for businesses

The First National Bank of Fort Pierce has developed a two and a half-day educational program that will help local business men and women manage their businesses more profitably and assist in planning for orderly business growth and future financial stability.

Called "Managing for Profitability," this course is being offered to area businesses on March 20, 21 and 22.

"We are using a classroom setting to enhance business owners' and managers' knowledge of financial management and control techniques that will help solve some of the difficult problems associated with operating a business successfully in today's economic environment," said C. William McQuagge, president, First National Bank of Fort Pierce. "The course," he added, "establishes a common ground for communication between bankers and business men and women, and lets them know that their problems are not unique.

"This is also an opportunity for area business people to join the growing number of other Florida business men and women who have taken 'Managing for Profitability' courses conducted by other Southeast Banks," McQuagge said.

The course is being taught by a special group of Southeast bankers with extensive teaching experience that includes college level credit and accounting courses.

The "Managing for Profitability" course covers such topics as: financial analysis, return on investment, profit planning, cash flow, sources of capital, cost/profit analysis, and dealing effectively with bankers and other financial advisors. To round out the course, the instruction will include information about how to plan for the normal succession of a business through estate planning.

"Managing for Profitability" is open to the entire business community. The course will be taught on three consecutive days at the First National Bank of Fort Pierce, 308 South Sixth Street, beginning at 1:30 p.m. on March 20. Tuition for the course is $175 and includes registration fees, the three days of instruction, text, materials and meals. Enrollment will be limited for effectiveness to 35 participants on a first come, first served basis.

Chamber to begin search for bicycle path right-of-way

A complete right-of-way map for Indian River Drive, from Palmer Road to the Jensen Beach Causeway, has been obtained by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, it was announced by Dick Campbell, president.

The Martin County engineering department provided the map, listing present rights-of-way owned by the county, and listing areas where rights-of-way would be needed to build the proposed bike path and sidewalk from Palmer Road to the Causeway.

More than half the needed right of way is now held by the county, and some property owners have indicated to Campbell that they would give easements for a bike path to the county.

"We are part way now. We hope that all property owners will help us make the bike path dream come true," Campbell said.

The primary thrust of the Chamber this year is to obtain the right of way from Palmer Road to the Causeway. With the county being able to place a sidewalk bike path across the causeway on county or state owned land, a major portion of the circular route over the north and south causeway and down Indian River Drive and A1A, would be complete.

The Town of Sewall's Point has indicated interest in pushing for the two mile section of sidewalk bike path from East Ocean Blvd. to the north city line.

The sidewalk along the Indian River Drive portion would make that road much safer for persons wanting to stroll, especially during evening hours, along the beautiful Indian River. In some areas, the county owns only that portion of road that is paved, with no easements to the sides.

CUTTING Presidential candidate Phil Crane, (left) 1979 My Fair Lady Denise Dickins and Thomas Wright cut the ribbon to open the 1980 Martin County Fair. The fair is dedicated to Skinner, who designed the fair buildings. The fair runs through Saturday, March 15. Wednesday is kids day, and all students through 12th grade admitted free until 6 p.m. A marionette show and a poster contest are also planned Wednesday. On Thursday it's jail and bail day, and there will also be a music show, clogging, singing and a steer sale. Friday features a music show and the Jack Greene and Jeannie Seely Show. Saturday's events include a 4-H fashion review, dog show, music show and clogging. The midway rides will open at 3 p.m. Wednesday, at 4 p.m. on Thursday, and at noon on Friday and Saturday.

Chamber kicks off drive

Officers and directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce kicked off a community-wide membership drive this morning, seeking renewal of 270 members who have not yet paid their 1980 dues, and contacting local businesses that are not now members of the group.

President Dick Campbell said that the goal would be to increase membership to 300 during the year. The drive for renewal members will last for one week. Then, a survey of non members would be made to seek more businesses interested in joining the Chamber.

In action at the Monday morning board meeting, the Chamber directors heard the following reports:

ART FESTIVAL held recently suffered from the weather, according to Jayne Peterson, a member of the committee. However, some sales were made before rain washed out the two day show at Langford Park. The committee plans to seek another site, according to Peterson, and expansion of the event to tie in other art shows held in the same period.

BIKE PATH. (See related story on page one.)

INDEPENDENCE DAY. Directors will form a coordinating committee to bring together activities on the Jensen Beach Causeway on July 4.

FIREWORKS FUND. Solicitation for the fireworks celebration on July 4 will be made through letters mailed with statements in the Jensen Beach Bank mailing.

TRAFFIC. It was reported that the Florida Department of Transportation was making traffic counts on various intersections in Jensen Beach.

MONTHLY FORUM. The monthly coffee for members has been changed to a monthly forum. The next forum will be held at First Federal Savings of Martin County's Hoke Hall on April 1. The program will be on the possible formation of a blood bank for Chamber members.

COMMUNITY CENTER. President Campbell reported that he had met with the architect, Phil Braden, who is redesigning the center, and County Commissioner Frank Warha to discuss proposals for changes to update the center.

TURTLE WATCHES. A meeting with Florida Institute of Technology officials and Ross Witham, Department of Natural Resources scientist, resulted in establishment of a new format for turtle watches. (See related story.)

TURTLE WATCH—With Spring coming on, it won't be too long before the giant sea turtles begin crawling ashore on local beaches to deposit eggs. In past years the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has sponsored organized turtle watches. But the size of the crowds worried environmentalists and brought about a change in turtle watch plans for the coming season. The Chamber directors decided Monday to have more turtle watches, but with fewer persons per watch. Persons wishing to participate will register for a watch with the Chamber, then Florida Institutes of Technology students will serve as guides. Local sea turtle expert Ross Witham, who is conducting research on turtles for the state, will write informational packets for turtle watchers, advising them of how to watch the turtles without unduly interfering with them. NATION—Organizers of a fund drive at Outdoor of America raised a whopping $10,231 for the Area Samaritans ambulance squad recently, and d the money to the Samaritans last week. The represents the largest amount of cash ever raised for the ambulance squad by a single organization. Shown above, from the left, are: Clark Johnson, president of the Nettles Island Men's Club; Bob Body, ambulance drive chairman; Maxine Bailey, president of the Samaritans, Bob Ruth, Samaritan driver; and Rhonda Dietrich, Samaritan day supervisor.

Rev. Bauer to speak in Faith Renewal Week

Rev. R. Paul Bauer, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Moore Haven will be the guest speaker at the Preaching Mission of Trinity United Methodist Church, 2221 NE Savanna Road, Jensen Beach, at 7:30 p.m. each evening, Sunday, March 16 through Wednesday, March 19th. These services are a part of Trinity's Faith Renewal Week and are in conjunction with a program entitled "Proclamation Evangelism" being held in United Methodist Churches throughout the state and country.

This four day program, the theme of which is "Discipleship—a Way to Full Life", includes, along with the Preaching Mission, a Bible Study which will be held in the mornings, Monday through Wednesday at 9:00 a.m. at the church.

On the final night of this program, a coffee will be held in the Fellowship Hall after the service.

A nursery will be provided each evening.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Volunteers sought for turtle watches

There will be turtle watches this year in Jensen Beach. Many of them, if the committee working on the project gets the needed volunteers to handle the watches.

Naturalist students at Florida Institute of Technology will be the key, if enough are around during the nesting months of June and July. If not, other interested volunteers will be sought in the community.

This was the thrust of the meeting between scientist Ross Witham, head of the Department of Natural Resources turtle program on Hutchinson Island, FIT Dean William Gehring, FIT Advisor Joe Bridges and Jensen Chamber of Commerce President Dick Campbell last week at FIT.

In past years, the Chamber of Commerce organized large turtle watches, sometimes with thousands of visitors congregating on the beaches to watch the massive loggerhead and green turtles dig nests and lay eggs.

The problem with so many people is that they frighten the turtles back into the ocean, or damage nests. Crowd control was difficult.

Witham suggested a limited number of persons on each watch, between sixty and seventy, with two persons in charge of crowd control. In that way, flashlights could be controlled, encouraging the turtles to complete the egg laying, and nests would not be damaged.

"There is a small dome above the eggs. The newly hatched turtles scratch at that dome, bringing the sand down, and enabling the turtles to dig their way out. Large numbers of people walking over the nest, or four wheel vehicles, could crush that dome, and the turtles wouldn't be able to escape the nest," said Witham.

Smaller groups of people would be more manageable, and would do little harm to the nesting of the turtles, Witham added.

The format would have the Chamber of Commerce registering the turtle watchers. Each would be given a bit of materials outlining the nesting and informing the people about the turtles.

Each group would meet at the beach and be given a lecture on turtles, then led to a nest to view the costumes old process. Lightweight vehicles would seek out the nesting turtle and call back to alert the group, which would then drive to the nearest beach access to be led to the nest.

Interest in the turtle watches would dictate how many turtle watches would be held each week.

Carter and Reagan in primary voting

In the Democratic voting for presidential candidates, the unofficial county totals showed the following results: Carter, 3,411; Kennedy, 1,019; Edmund Brown, 285; and Richard Kay 127. There were 410 votes cast under the no preference slot.

There was a large field of Republican candidates, but only REagan and Bush collected four-digit totals. Reagan received 4,195 votes to 2,629 for Bush. Other totals were: John Anderson, 606; Phil Crane, 407; John Connaly, 59; Howard Baker, 43; Harold Stassen, 15; Benjamin Frenandez, 13; and Robert Dole, four.

In non-partisan voting, Martin Countians expressed favor for two state constitutional amendments. Amendment One, which proposes raising the homestead exemption level on property taxes for schools, was favored by a 8,108 to 4,114 margin. Amendment Two, proposing limitations on cases that can go before the state Supreme Court, was favored by a 6,746 to 4,022 margin.

In the Precinct 21 (Jensen Area Samaritans building) voting, Tom Nesson won the job of Democrat precinct committeeman by a 107 to 72 margin over Robert Makemson.

Republicans selected Stu Hershey as their state committeeman, giving him 1,893 votes. His closest competitor was Walter Bell with 1,487. Others in that contest were Fred Humberstone with 969 and Bill Waxler with 804.

Lois Philbrick was choosen as Republican state committeewoman with 2,758 votes to 2,027 for Irene O'Brien.

Prior to counting absentee ballots, the unofficial totals showed 13,680 Martin Countains went to the polls, representing about 40 percent of the registered voters in the county.

Mark of Zorro in film series

"Douglas Fairbanks' famous film The Mark of Zorro will be shown as the next in the series of great silent movies offered at the Environmental Studies Center under the sponsorship of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. Showtime is 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 19.

The film, made 60 years ago, marked a turning point in the elder Fairbanks' career. With it he established a career that made him one of the immortals of early American movies.

The action centers around Zorro's battling oppression during the days of Spanish California under the guise of wealthy young fop Don Diego. In the process Fairbanks establishes himself as the premiere swashbuckler romancing the ladies.

But Matus hopes to remedy that by another journey, this time from the Bahamas to Florida, where the target is larger. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Matus goes distance but misses the mark

"What would they do if I made no landfall?" -Jimmy Buffett

BY BOB FRYER

Eric Matus made no landfall last week.

And as a result, the Guinness Book of World Records will not recognize his achievement.

Last week Matus, a former Florida Institute of Technology student, made his second attempt to sail from Florida to the Bahamas.

His first attempt, in January, ended a few hours after it began because there simply was no wind.

Last Wednesday, there was plenty of wind, and in terms of distance, Matus achieved his goal.

Matus made it to Bahamian waters, and there is a photo of a loran reading on the boat accompanying him to prove it. His sponsor, Bill Donohue of Barnacle Bill's Sail Emporium in Jensen Beach, figures Matus sailed his 12-foot-long surfboard a distance of 68 or 69 miles.

As the crow flies, that's more than enough mileage to get you from Florida to the Bahamas.

But Matus didn't sail like a crow.

The winds were too strong from the south, and we just kept getting blown too far north to make landfall. We shot for Freeport, missed that, and shot for West End. We guessed that and missed. Memory Rock. So, we picked a point in Bahamian waters, took a loran reading when we got there, and photographed it," Donohue said.

Even though the Guinness folks say they won't list the effort in their book because there was no landfall, the story did receive national coverage.

Matus climbed atop his Sailrider at 8:49 a.m. Wednesday at Riviera Beach and ended his journey in Bahamian waters six hours and 28 minutes later.

"The wind was strong, and he averaged 10 knots an hour. He was in good shape and he'd hoped to take a southeast tack, then come back and hit a point of land, but around 3:30 p.m. the winds started to drop. He was down to six knots an hour with the wind and it would have been less than that on the tack, so we took the loran reading and packed it in," Donohue said.

There were 12 foot swells on the ocean and Matus fell from his Sailrider nine times, Donohue said, but added no sharks were sighted.

The venture was made not only to shoot for a spot in the Guinness book, but also to promote Barnacle Bill's shop, and Donohue picked up much of the tab for the try. A support boat, carrying photographers and a writer, cost him $500.

Donohue says if he can work it out, one more attempt will be made to go for the Guinness listing. But this time, the plan is to shoot for a larger target.

"Next time, we will start in the Bahamas and Eric will sail for Florida. He'll have a much bigger target that way," Donohue said, adding with a chuckle, "I'll be misses and hits Mexico or Canada, that will be acceptable."

Donohue said he has spoken with ABC sports about covering the attempt, but said he doesn't know if they will do it because they want Matus to set a day and make his attempt then. Donohue said that was tried the first time and there just wasn't any wind.

The Impact Group sweeps 20 awards at Addy gala

The Impact Group collected 20 Addys, including eight first place awards, when the Advertising Club of the Palm Beaches sponsored Addy Awards XIX at the Rosarian Academy Theatre recently.

While hundreds in the audience watched, Kip Myers, president and creative director of The Impact Group, made trip after trip to the podium to accept the honors in 20 different categories.

First place laurels awarded to the Stuart agency included: 1) Regional/National television campaign ("First Federal of Martin County - "Smart Money Account"); 2) Annual Reports ("Burnup & Sims - telecommunications); 3) Less than full page black & white ad in a local newspaper ("Village Athlete Place - "Best Kept Secret"); 4) Full page black & white ad in a consumer publication ("Stuart National Bank - "Moving to Stuart").

The Impace Group also won first place Addy Awards in the following categories: 5) House Organ Publications ("GATEWAY - the magazine of the Port of Palm Beach); 6) Farms full page ad ("Luce Farms - "What You See Isn't All You Get"); 7) Farms less than full page ad ("Luce Farms - "What You See ..." and 8) Regional/National full page newspaper campaign ("First Federal of Martin County - "The Martin County Collection").

In all, The Impact Group was the recipient of seven second place awards, as well as the eight first place designations.

Among other clients for whom The Impact Group won awards were Ocean Village of Ft. Pierce, South Bay of Orlando and Jupiter-Tequesta National Bank.

"I couldn't be more pleased," Myers said following the ceremony. "Of all the agencies represented in the Palm Beach Competition, we placed second overall in first place awards and second overall in total awards."

Addy Awards, XIX was easily the most spectacular affair staged since the inception of these ceremonies by the Palm Beach Club. Awards presenters included astronaut Dr. Edgar Mitchell, Miss America 1979, D'Kylene Brandon, Cecil B. Kelly, Jr., general manager, THE POST & THE EVENING TIMES, and Harry Gray, chairman of United Technologies, the parent company of Pratt & Whitney. Entertainment was provided by the American Hotel Orchestra of Bal Harbour, the Fusion Dance Company and the Rosarian Academy Choir.

The Impact Group is a full-service agency providing all aspects of advertising, marketing, sales promotion and public relations for its highly diversified clientele. Today, the Impact Group represents firms dealing in industry, finance, real estate, telecommunications, marine shipping, gourmet restaurants and yacht construction.

The awards garnered at the 1980 ceremony brings The Impact Group's total to 74 Addys won in five years of competition.

HONORS—Kip Myers, president and creative director of The Impact Group, had his hands full when he tried to carry 20 Addy Awards away from Sunday's ceremony. The Stuart firm took eight firsts, seven seconds and five thirds, as the Advertising Club of the Palm Beaches honored their own.

Sanibel weekend

Every Saturday morning, eight members of the Saturday Morning Tennis, Breakfast and Coffee Club meet at Indian River Plantation for a round robin match of tennis. Each week for the past year, the group of players put two dollars into a fund for a weekend away.

Last weekend, the group joined forces in a weekend at Sanibel Island, on the west coast of Florida. All brought their wives for pleasures organized under social director R.K. Jones, under the direction of treasurer of Joe Taylor.

The weekend was a success, mostly due to the organizational abilities of the above named persons.

Leaving Friday morning, in teams of four, the group arrived between three and six p.m. at the Sundail Beach Hotel and Tennis Resort, a condominium of sorts in Sanibel.

There was some tennis on Friday evening, with dinner at the local bistro following a reception in the hospitality room. On Saturday, the group enjoyed tennis in the morning, luncheon in the resort, and an afternoon of either tennis or touring the island on mo-peds or bicycles. Some enjoyed the paddling race in kayaks on the Gulf of Mexico, all arranged by R.K. Jones.

That night, all motored to the Chadwick Restaurant on Captiva Island, where they waited from eight until eleven p.m. for dinner. The golden spoon restaurant offered a fare that was much less than gourmet, though the appetisers were good.

On Sunday, all visited, played tennis, and toured the island, leaving for home after three p.m.

In all, the weekend was a success, with the sunburns dictating the degree of both burn and success.

FRISBEE—Joe Taylor, treasurer of the tennis group, showed his backhand in frisbee on the beach at Sanibel Island. Taylor was recently transferred from the St. Lucie Nuclear plant to New York.

Marina is needed

The proposed Indian River Plantation marina deserves the support of all boating minded people in Martin County.

For those who tire of waiting for the drawspans to open on Indian River bridges, the location of the marina, just south of the bridge across the Indian River, is perfect. It will mean that there will be 99 boats that won't have to have the bridge opened to get to the St. Lucie Inlet.

For those families who are of boating bent, it will mean that there will be somewhere to dock their boats. Martin County has a drastic shortage of slips for large boats that cannot be hauled out of the water for dry storage.

We have, in the past, documented the need for more marinas in Martin County, especially more marinas in areas that offer access to the wide reaches of the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers *without having to open bridges to get to the St. Lucie Inlet.

As the inlet improvement project continues toward a safe and passable inlet, that need will be emphasized more and more.

Opposition to the placement of a marina in the proposed location at Indian River Plantation seems based upon the often said, "We've got ours. No one else should be let in." That is unfair.

Planning for the marina will be based upon sound construction techniques to offer minimal disturbance to the sensitive river bottom. It is said that the Department of Environmental Regulation will support the proposed IRP marina site. Exhaustive studies have shown the presently proposed site to be a proper one.

This area is going to grow. We know there will be a demand for many boating sites for marinas. In this one case, the site is probably least disturbing to both people and the environment.

The city council of Port St. Lucie needed the information it got. It was right and proper to ask for a search to find the best possible talent for city manager.

That the choice was right here in Mike Szunyog might make some people wonder if the investment in a talent search was proper.

We think it was.

The finalists in the choice for city manager narrowed down to the four the city thought were the best. That they showed fairness in the final selection (it would have been easy to name someone else to justify the search) deserves the praise of the community.

Mike Szunyog has won the appreciation of his staff. It would be difficult for anyone to win "Boss of the year" honors in just over three months on the job.

He should now be offered the full appreciation and faith of the city council in getting his job done.

It was a good choice.

The largest fair ever

There are only a few days left to the biggest fair in the history of Martin County. The Martin County Fair has led off with an outstanding array of talent, artistic achievement, and displays that put the county's best things on parade.

The carnival atmosphere is part of the fair, but there is much, much more. There are many displays, many exhibitors who are rightfully proud of their endeavors in the county. It takes more than one day to see it all.

Getting there on time

When I die, I plan to be late for the funeral. If I plan it that way, I'll make it on time.

So many times I turn my watch ten minutes fast to be certain to get somewhere on time. Then, I forget to go wherever it is that I am supposed to go.

I am just getting absent minded in my old age. Perhaps that is a sign of reppect for age, but most of the people I stand up, or delay, seem to take me for granted.

It backfires sometimes, however.

Just last week I was talking with Marg Paris, one of the members of our board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Dog gonett, Marg, you've missed two meetings of the Chamber board. If you miss three, you are out. You've got to get to the meeting next Monday, and be there on time."

It made no difference that she was taking care of a very ill husband, through both meetings. She had to be there.

Well, she made it this Monday morning for the board meeting, getting there at 7:30 a.m.

I spent last weekend playing tennis on the west coast of Florida with our gang from Indian River Plantation. It was a once a year event we had planned for six months.

So, it was natural that I got up at 6:45, tired and sunburned from the weekend. I made some grapefruit juice, and fussed with the dogs, dressed, and picked up some clothes to take to the cleaners.

The phone rang, and when it did, I looked at my watch. It was 7:45.

I knew it was Peg. It was Peg.

"Did you forget your board meeting?"

I threw down the phone after yelping, "Good grief," and rushed out to the car.

Why people snicker, I'll never know, but it was the look on Marg's face that told me I was in trouble.

"You had me so concerned, I got up at quarter to six. Here you are, late again, and I am a nervous wreck," she said.

Barbara Torow looked at me the same way. She isn't a morning person either. Peg just laughed.

It is not that I am so disorganized, nor do I really intend to offend anyone. I'm just rattle brained.

Like last week.

I wanted to do something special for the Jensen Optimists, so I got several of them together for a picture that would promote their auction sale last Saturday. I took about six different shots of the group with various pieces of things they planned to auction.

When I got back, I had the roll developed. It was a chaotic Tuesday. When we developed the film we found that it had broken loose from the wind up, and I had no pictures at all. I lost several events on the roll of film.

But, it was Tuesday. Chaos.

We worked through the day and night, ending up at about ten thirty at night. On the way home, I realized that the page one picture of the Optimist Club auction wasn't even in the newspaper, nor was there a story about the auction. I had done it again.

All I can do in such situations is to apologize and say I hope I do better next time.

Honestly, Marg, the Optimists, and everyone else, I'll try to do better.

Their eyes are on us

If you ever begin feeling a little isolated in Jensen Beach, forget it. The eyes of the world are on us from all parts of the globe.

I'm reminded of this flattering fact quite often via the U.S. Mails. Not only are we being read everywhere in the country, they're talking back to tell us so.

My latest epistle of praise, commentary and critique comes from a Dear Reader in Eliot, Me. a very kind and voluble gentleman name of Frank MacDonald. A former winter visitor, Frank reads his Mirror from stem to gudgeon, and doesn't miss a trick about local goings-on and lack of same. He writes (to Sally Latham and others at the Mirror) with a comprehension of local goings-on unparalleled by many who've lived here all their lives:

Our far-flung correspondent says:

"For a couple of years, we've been receiving the JB newspaper, and have been prompted several times to write.

"Sally, congratulations on your cheerful fight with cancer. We have a 48 year old daughter-in law who has had the same experience, and is fighting back with great spirit, too.

(Dear Mr. Mac – how can you not fight back when you have such a wonderful troop of soldiers fighting for you — under the Greatest General of All?)

"Especially liked your article on Lent in the Feb. 27 edition. You expressed appreciation for the many things we take for granted.

"We have visited Jensen Beach several times, and we've yet to find several times, and we've yet to find more friendly people. By the way, I have two sisters at Riverside Village right now, and they are enjoying the right now, and they are enjoying the area along with their husbands, and one young chap — only 80, all from Maine. You might mention you've had a letter during this Letter Writing Week from a chap born in Windham, Maine, who is extending greetings to the relatives and special friends there."

"I follow the activity of the Lions there, as Harvey Schlemmer kindly invited me to a meeting of the JB Club a couple of years ago."

"I appreciate what Dick Campbell is doing with the JB Chamber of Commerce. My wife and I hiked from Riverside Village up to the center nearly every day, at considerable risk because of the need of a sidewalk. The bike path down that way should help if it is along the Drive.

"I enjoyed Bob Fryer's article of a few months ago, especially (of course the one on moving time is good, too) but I refer to the one when he interviewed the fourth graders there in how they would solve the world shortage/situation in Iran. We have a fourth grade teacher here, and the thought of pen pals have occurred to me.

"So glad you have given up smoking."

Deepest apologies, Mr. Mac. I slipped again. Your moving comments may give me the strength to try one more time.

He praises the Mirror for not carrying cigarette ads, a policy I also thoroughly approve of. Dear Writer says the Maine and New Hampshire papers carry full page ads on the insidious weed.

"I'm chairman of the Environmental Commission for District 41-L of the Lions here in Maine, and I rate smoking as #1 pollutant — not only the air but the butts seen everywhere."

I agree with you wholeheartedly, Mr. Mac. With efforts like yours, maybe you'll sway even us weak backsliding sinners.

My correspondent further makes my day by enclosing a church bulletin, "The Parish Post," from his Poland Community Church. It's March, and garden planning time up there in the land of the thawing north. And the note from the pastor is filled with sage advice not only for gardeners but for tillers of the soul. He writes:

I just received my seed catalogue today. While I admired the various hybrid tomatoes and corn, I began to draw up a garden plan. Oddly enough, there is no seed company that can fill my order. The following garden plan can only be dispatched from our Heavenly Father:

Plant three rows of peas:
Prayer
Politeness
Patience

Then plant four rows of lettuce:
Let us be unselfish
Let us be loyal
Let us not criticize people behind their backs
Let us love one another

Next to the lettuce plant four rows of squash:
Squash gossip
Squash negativity: i.e. always looking for other peoples faults
Squash boasting
Squash complaining

And no garden is complete without turnips:
Turn up for church
Turn up with a smile
Turn up new ideas.

These, he says, can be planted in any season, because they are now ished by a warm heart and fed by the Light of God.

And to the Rev. David Pillsbury, author of this gardening guide, it might be added that fruits of such a garden make the most fulfilling fare on earth.

How to write a release

On any given week, we get around 200 letters at our office containing press releases.

Many we toss out because they're from distant places promoting distant events. But one week I counted 75 of them, each of local interest, that found their way into our paper.

Some are written by professional writers, paid by public relations firms. However, the vast majority are written by public minded citizens who have volunteered to take on the thankless task of publicity chairperson for a religious, social or civic organization. And, while many of those folks have had no formal training in writing, most of their releases are competently written.

But regardless of how well written the press releases are, some of them can still give us problems.

That's because no matter how well written the releases are, if they're not in Mirror style, they need editing. And that can take considerable time.

So, for all you folks who write press releases, here are a few tips on what we're looking for.

If at all possible, type your releases. They're much easier to read that way, thus reducing our chances of making errors when setting them in type. If you can't type them, print them clearly.

Always leave a few inches of blank space at the top of your release, so we'll have room to write a headline.

And, please leave space between each line of type, so we can make corrections and changes when necessary. Double spacing may use up more paper, but it sure saves time for us.

When composing your release, be sure to cover all five Ws: who, what, when, where and why. You'd be surprised at how many releases we get that tell us all about a meeting, but don't say when or where it will be.

Avoid capitalizations except for proper nouns. That includes capitals for a.m. and p.m. when giving times.

When telling when an event will take place, be sure to state the day of the week as well as the date of the month.

We have a preferred style which calls for abbreviations in some cases, and excludes them in others. For example, days of the week are never abbreviated, but in some cases, months are.

If you are referring to a month without stating a specific date, don't abbreviate. But if you're referring to a specific date and the month has more than five letters in it, abbreviate it.

A similar rule applies to streets, boulevards, roads, etc. If you're giving a specific address, such as 1700 Commercial St., abbreviate it. But if you're not giving the specific address, write it out, as in Prima Vista Boulevard.

Numbers have a rule for them too. Write out single-digit numbers and give numerals for numbers 10 and higher. The one exception is for dates of the month and, of course, times. For those, always use numerals, as in 1 p.m. and Feb. 9.

In the case of noon, simply say noon, not 12 noon.

When your event includes a raffle, don't tell us about it. We can't print information about raffles without risking loss of our mailing permit. It's against the law.

When it comes to names of organizations, or institutions, write them out the first time, then you can give their initials if they're commonly known that way. For example, if you're talking about Florida Institute of Technology, write it out the first time you mention it, then you can simply use FIT to refer to the school thereafter.

Don't ever use ampersands (&) or the % symbol for percent. Instead, write them out, and, write night, not nite, and through, not thru.

All of the above tips apply to most newspapers, but here are a few that apply only to The Mirror.

We're a weekly paper, and that makes for a few special considerations.

The prime one is to remember our weekly deadline. Often we get releases announcing an event that will take place before we are published. We'd like to tell the public about your event, but can't do so when they happen before we're printed.

We make up our paper Tuesday nights and are on the streets on Wednesday. But many of our readers get their paper by mail, so if your event happens on a Wednesday, make sure it's in the edition before that Wednesday.

If possible, get your copy to us by the Friday before the Wednesday it is to appear in the paper. Generally, if it is in by noon on Tuesday before our Wednesday paper, we can get it in, but our Tuesdays are pretty hectic, and Mondays are no picnic, so it helps to have your copy by Friday.

Another thing about being a weekly paper is that it's rough to report an event and make it sound timely when it's not. So, we fudge a bit, and use the terms "recently" or, if it is appropriate, "Last week", when reporting an event that happened before the week we're printed.

One last thing: when sending us a press release, please tell us who you are, and give us your address and phone number. We need the phone number to contact you if we have any questions, and what your address for a special event we're planning for you.

Memories

by
ALLEN F. BREWER

The poet wrote: "Turn backward, time,"
It's really too again.
To let our memory wander back,
To things we'd thought forgotten.

The river boats of long ago,
In retrospect, come back
To those who knew the shore line trail,
When just a wagon track.

The whistle of the passing train,
When it was blown by steam,
Was music, in reminding, life
Is real, not a day dream.

The rattle of the wooden bridge,
Which got one there and back,
Suggested that "play safe" was best,
If one would stay intact.

So, memories are helpful,
To remind one of the past,
To realize how far we've come,
Of the good things we've amassed.

Wildlife hospital weekend at FIT

The Martin County Audubon Society, with assistance from the FIT Naturalist Society, held their Wildlife hospital weekend March 7th and 8th on the campus at FIT.

The weekend's activities were kicked off Friday evening with a cocktail party, followed by a lecture presentation. Saturday activities included a bazaar, photograph display, and a square dance that evening. The proceeds from the weekend's events go to the support of the Wildlife Hospital.

Dr. Llewellyn Erhardt, associate professor of biology at the University of Central Florida, was the featured speaker at Friday evening's lecture on Florida mammals. Combining a slide presentation with live and prepared specimens, Erhardt took the audience on an armchair tour of various Florida mammal habitats.

The professor spoke of the problems faced by some of the Florida mammals. A species of beach mouse that inhabits the dunes on Florida's east coast is thought to be extinct because of the introduction of the domestic cat. The Florida bobcat has become a target for the fur industry because of the ban on the importation of furs and skins from foreign countries.

A presentation was given Saturday afternoon by Jean Henry of the Wildlife Hospital. Henry spoke about owls and brought along three baby barn owls, two horned owls and an injured loon. Henry said that the problem with raising baby owls is teaching them to find food on their own. It is not an inherited instinct but something that is taught by the owl's parents.

Erhardt and Henry both emphasized the need for a more rational program of developing certain areas to prevent the disturbance of the natural habitats of Florida's wildlife.

Entries in the wildlife photo contest being held in conjunction with the wildlife weekend were judged Saturday afternoon.

An honorable mention went to Jackie Betts for her mating lizards photo.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Port St. Lucie voters have an opportunity on March 18th to express their opinion on charter changes Issue #1 would change the procedure of choosing council members so that you and I could only vote for one (1) council member. At present we vote for ALL.

We have worked for several years to unify Port St. Lucie. This change would go backward to division into district controls. My personal opinion is that you should vote No on Issue No. 1 so that we all choose all the council.

Sincerely,
Vaughn Lewis

To the Editor:

We want to express our sincere thanks to you, and Sally Latham, and your staff, for selecting our new homes in Timberwick and their occupants for one of your series on interesting homes in the Jensen Beach area. The manner in which your newspaper keeps the prestige of Jensen Beach foremost in your editorials, makes us very proud to have been a part of your series.

Your previous articles starting with Castle Hill have been very interesting and we are looking forward to reading many more articles about the homes and homesites in and around Jensen Beach. Its about time people stopped thinking of our town as only a transient fishing village!

Mrs. Kusser and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bifulco were pleased to contribute to the series and wish to convey their thanks to you and Sally for selecting their homes as examples for the editorial.

You and your newspaper have pioneered many campaigns with your editorials for the betterment of Jensen Beach in the past. We are pleased to have been selected as a part of this series and will do our best to maintain your confidence. Again our sincere thanks.

Yours truly,
Sam Rhodes

To the Editor:

Although only one council seat is being contested the election on March 18th is vital to the residents of Port St. Lucie. There are three proposed amendments to the City Charter on the ballot, two of which have aroused no controversy. The other proposes to amend Article III so as to restrict voting for members of the council in a manner to deprive the citizens of Port St. Lucie of any effective voice in the government of their city.

The present charter assures adequate representation to each of the city's four districts by reserving one seat on the council to a resident of each district respectively. It provides, however, that all members of the council be elected by a majority of the voters at large. This insures that the council will be conversant with the problems of every section of the city and that they will be addressed where appropriate and consistent with city-wide priorities and the welfare of the city as a whole. Members of the council know that their responsibility is to all the voters and it is to them they must answer for their action or inaction.

The proposed amendment would exclude three-fourths of the voters from participating in the election of each member of the council by restricting the vote to those who reside in the district. Based upon previous elections it would take but 200 votes, - 100 families -, to elect a councilman. He or she would be more susceptible to the domination of a small clique who could exploit our public institutions for selfish purposes. The council would be a gathering of individuals speaking and acting for the diverse and parochial interests of a bare majority of their respective districts. The interests and objectives of the city as an entity would be secondary to the limited interests of the small election districts. With political power fractionalized the council would be highly resistant to taking positive and constructive action, respect city-wide priorities and function in a statesman-like manner.

The electorate must be alerted to this effort to Balkanize the city. They must get out and vote on March 18th, and vote "NO" on the proposal to amend Article III.

Yours truly,
Albert G. Seidman

FPL seeks levelized adjustment

If the state Public Service Commission agreed with a request by Florida Power and Light Company, your electric bill will soon be higher.

Gene VanCuren, the local district manager for FPL, said Tuesday that the firm has asked the state PSC for a fuel adjustment hike of $17.99 for every 1,000 kilowatts used by consumers.

VanCuren said the average power usage per household comes to about 1,000 kilowatts a year.

Recently, FPL asked the PSC to allow a "levelized" fuel adjustment charge to be levied by the firm.

He explained that in the past, FPL fuel adjustment rates have varied from month to month, depending on the cost of fuel and the amount of fuel used in the month prior to the billing.

With a levelized fuel adjustment charge, FPL would estimate the cost of fuel and the amount of usage for the next six months, then figure an average fuel adjustment charge for those six months.

"This way, instead of having large fluctuations in the fuel adjustment charge from month to month, it would be constant for six months," he said, adding, "For the consumer, it will mean he can better budget his fuel use if he knows what the adjustment charge will be for six months."

VanCuren said the state PSC staff recommended that a levelized fuel adjustment charge be allowed and that the, PSC asked FPL to figure what that would be, then present those figures at a PSC public hearing.

FPL made the computations and announced Monday that it is applying for a $17.99 per 1,00 kilowatts fuel adjustment for a six month period beginning in April. VanCuren said the public hearing will be held next Monday.

When asked what happens if FPL guesses too high or low on what fuel costs will be and what consumption will be, VanCuren said an adjustment to the fuel adjustment charge can be made.

"When the final figures are in, then there is a 'trueup' hearing, and any discrepancies from the FPL estimate for the previous six months are made up during the next six months. If we find we charged too much, we have to make a reduction and figure in the going interest rate too, so it is in our interest to be accurate," he said.

If the PSC grants the FPL request, the levelized fuel adjustment charge will be reflected in bills going out in early April.

The bluefish and the Kings are out there, fellahs, believe it or not, but they're WAY out and WAY down.

This time last year, according to Tony at Jensen Bait and Tackle, you practically had to beat the blues off with a club, both in the river and in the surf. But this year, they're out so far that fishermen are beginning to worry they'll bypass us.

A spokesman for the Anchorage said the kings were out there in the deep water on Saturday. And Shorty of the Outrigger reports the dolphin were running in near the weekend. But with the exception of whiting, the shallow water anglers isn't too good. Dave's mistake of the week at the Jensen Bait and Tackle was Ray Elms, who came up with a 14 pound snook on "buck tail" off the bridge. Other good catches included Jim Shelton's 22 Lane Snappers, off the inlet, on live shrimp, and Ted Asher's 11 sea trout and three croakers, on a jure and live shrimp, off the bridge.

Stuart National Northside office awards opening prizes

Anthony N. Lore of Port St. Lucie was the first name drawn as the Northside office of Stuart National Bank celebrated its grand opening recently.

Lore will receive the top prize — a $500 savings account. Second and third place winners were Alice Gumbs of Jensen Beach and Norma Heitzman of Stuart. Gumbs will receive a $200 savings account, while Heitzman will be awarded a $100 saving account.

The trio of happy winners were among thousands of area residents who dropped by the lobby of Stuart National Bank's new Northside office on the east side of U.S. 1, just north of 707A, to deposit their entries in Northside's grand opening celebration sweepstakes.

Lore, a former Long Island resident who moved to Portst. Lucie less than two years ago, said: "This is the surprise of my life! I never enter contests, but my wife insisted that I fill out the coupon."

John O'Neill, manager of Northside, pointed out that Stuart National was particularly pleased that a resident of Port St. Lucie was among the prize winners.

"Our Northside office was intended to save north county and Port St. Lucie residents unnecessary driving miles and help them save gas, and long waits at the Roosevelt drawbridge. This is our fifth office with more coming."

Northside officially opened for business February 11. The structure includes a lobby, safe deposit boxes, a night depository and five drive in windows. Weekday banking hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the lobby and from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the drive in windows. Saturday hours include 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the lobby and 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the drive in windows.

Samaritans calling

BY NELLIE COOK

This is the time of year that we could well call our harvest time, for it is during the Winter months that we receive donations to keep us going for the entire year, except for the donations given by patients at the time of their transport.

Many of the areas have already been thanked for their great response, the latest being from Venture Three who have just completed their drive under the capable Chairmanship of Dorothy Seelys. Her Co-Chairman being Ray Kileen - Venture Out - St. Lucie. Co-Chairman, Lydia Mills - Venture Out Indian River, Co-Chairmen Ethel Selm - Venture Harbor. Many loyal solicitors worked on this project to make it the most successful drive We of the Samaritans only wish we could thank you individually for your donation of $1,675. Great Work.

At present I am trying to write a History of the Samaritans dating back to the organization in 1957. All the information I have so far been able to acquire are the minutes of the meetings. Well written, but do not give any information other than the Director's Meeting.

Jerry LeBarge has graciously volunteer time to help, and I hope others will join in. One notation in the 65 minutes states, "We now have 27 drivers". No names.

Now to my last, but certainly no the least in importance. We all wish to thank Riverside Village, the smallest of our areas covered, for their generous contribution of $300.00.

DEATH & TAXES

"Nothing is certain but death and taxes."
—Benjamin Franklin

This time of year there is no way we can avoid thinking about taxes. But most of us prefer to avoid discussing the topic of death.

Yet death is one of the certainties of life. It will come as surely as April 15, yet never quite as expectedly. And if you haven't had the foresight to prepare, the result is your family is left in a state of confusion as well as sadness. They will have to make tough personal and financial decisions at a time when least able to think about them rationally.

You can avoid this. Forest Hills Memorial Park has special gardens available for Veterans, Catholic, and non-sectarian, in addition to cremation niches and mausoleum interment available now. And while it may seem strange buying crypt space when you're healthy and full of life, you should make important decisions while you are calm and clear-headed. You also avoid the added cost inflation will certainly tack on to burials over the years. (If Benjamin Franklin were alive today he would probably add inflation to his list of certainties.) Procrastination will only force your family into purchasing in the future, when available facilities will surely be more expensive and less selective.

We have a trained staff of counselors who can help you with your burial plans. In addition, we offer a free Family Portfolio Record File, a guide that can help you assemble the kinds of essential information that becomes immediately necessary on death. For more information, or to make an appointment to tour our mausoleum and beautiful cemetery, fill out and mail the coupon below. Or call 287-8647. As Benjamin Franklin also said, "Never leave that till tomorrow which you can do today."

attendance of over 150 people. A stunning blue floral Hostess gown with kimono sleeves was modeled by Marylou Bernard, while Pat Donovan posed and modeled a very attractive swim suit in a print design with a cover up shirt. On display were the latest summer fashions and accessories of the coming season.

Robert and Alice Seelye and daughter Lori of Whitmore Lake, Michigan were the guests recently of Harold and Dorothy Seelye. Bob and Harold are brothers. Results of the recent election in Indian River have given us three new members for the board of directors. They are: Pat Donovan, Al DeSmit and Bill Hennessey. Congratulations and Good Luck!!!

We were all sorry to see Bob, Marge and Beau Owen leave our finger in St. Lucie this past Monday. They moved to their lovely new home in Punelake Village. Their message "You all come see us soon now."

Visitors of the Brunelles from Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada are their daughter and son-in-law, Jean Lavoie, wife Louise and daughters Annie 10, and Caroline 8. They will be with them about ten days, enjoying the beaches and Ocean waters sailing, fishing and boating in the delightful sunshine.

We are sorry to hear of the calamitous misfortune of the Brunelles. Their home in Montreal was recently destroyed by fire. It started in the kitchen walls on a Sunday afternoon and out of control before being discovered. The interior of the home, furnishings, etc. were completely devastated.

At the Annual Lot Owner's Meeting, last week, Lee Price reported that all of the permits have been obtained for the sidewalk bike path from the park entrance to the Venture Three Beach. He asked that the Vent. 3 Board give his committee backing and financing, and make this the no. 1 priority for next fall. The board is to consider his request on Wednesday, March 12 meeting.

"Bowling for fun" Come on out for Bowling on Tuesday at 1 p.m. at Jensen Lanes. This week 19 persons participated. Everyone is welcome. Men's jackpot, 1st game won by Marc Russell with 177 and the second and third went to Jack Clark with 167 and 171. Tony DePaula and Bud Knoebel returned after a short absence. Tony bowled a 166 and Bud 149. Margaret Amorosa, who has been on the sick list for several weeks has also returned. Because of the increased interest in Bowling, and the jackpot, a handicap system will be used in the future.

Blue Jeans and Calico dominated the scene at V-3 rec. hall for the "Hillbilly Hoedown" held recently. Unique decorations by Yvonne Wiencke, Dottie Seelye and Ethel Stem added to the dancing and fun. Co-Chairman Pat Belt and Betty Drinkard report that a "down home" dinner was served to 114 "mountain folk" by 8 accommodating waiters, Bill Hennessey, Al Phillips, Bob Dedaker, George Carpenter and Jess Huston. These same waiters also served as deputies who tossed many an unsuspecting guest into the Skunk Holler Jailhouse, where they had to plead with friends to pay their bail. A comedy skit on the guise of a shotgun wedding, regaled the audience as they tried to recognize the participants who turned out to be Jack Torregrossa, Jessie and Lefter Shaver, Bill Hennessey, Robbie Capurso and the Co-chairmen, Pat and Betty give their thanks to a great committee for all their fine help and most especially to Lola Bonar, Ruth Hennessey and Dottie Huston for their invaluable aid in the preparations and the kitchen work.

As you readers can observe, I, Virginia Shinski after being ill over six weeks have now returned bringing you the news each week. With the able assistance now of a few girls from Venture Three, you shall have all the news of the park until the end of the season.

Bake Sale set at Riverside

Our Bake Sale for the Jensen Beach Fire Dept. was a "Whooper of a success". With cash donations and the sale of the donated baked goods, we were able to raise $430.00 for the Fire Dept. A big THANK YOU to all who helped in any way. We especially wish to thank Florence Brynilsen and Ethel Noggle for taking charge of the event.

We heard that March Racher finally hit the "big money" playing Bingo on Saturday night. Any chance of a small loan, Mary?

Tuesday night Binge was "Delta Baker Night". Delta won over five games and then shared the cover-all with Leah Morrison.

Our Game Party or game night will be held Saturday, March 15 starting at 8:00 p.m.

Rhoade Davis was rushed to Martin Memorial Hospital early Wednesday morning. Word is that he is improving.

Uncle Charlie caught a Pompano weighing over 5 pounds last Friday and is supposed to be a T.V. star on Monday or Tuesday. Did you see him?

Fray Johnson went grocery shopping the other day and found she had an extra passenger on the hood of her car. A chameleon was watching her as if to ask "where are you taking me?"

This weather is what we came down here for! Words can't be found to describe the feeling that being in the warm sun brings. Also the sound of the birds in the morning. Spring can't be far away!

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Malin of Ashtabula, Ohio were recent guests of the Carl McClintocks of Second Street.

Betty White, Irene Bigham, Alice Klein, Deloris Myers and Gert Hume all enjoyed noon luncheon at Lory's Landing in Stuart last Saturday. The occasion was Gert's birthday.

Paul Appel and friend, Brent Laursen, both of Marlette, Michigan, took time out from the races at Daytona Beach to visit Paul's grandparents, Louise and Lester Appel, Sunday and Monday. Too bad it had to be the coldest day of the season and they couldn't try surf fishing!!

PANCAKES, NO RUM—Baby Lisa didn't care a fig for the goodies being consumed by daddy Jeff at the Lion's Pancake Day breakfast. But from the response of the rest of the crowd's appetite, she was obviously a majority of one.

The arts and crafts show is due

The Annual OBP Arts & Craft Show is open to the general public (to answer numerous queries). It will be held in the Clubhouse, Sat. and Sun. March 15 & 16 from ½ to 5 p.m. It is an outstanding event with many beautiful paintings and all kinds of exquisite craft work on display. Everyone is invited.

Folks are leaving us, shutters are up and spaces are empty in a dozen or so places, hope they didn't get discouraged by last week's miserable weather, as starting right now, Martin County will have the best weather of the entire year, May and June are wonderful too.

Don't say you were not told! The Martin County Health Dept. Blood Pressure Clinic - and Nutrition Counseling will be held this month on Fri. Mar. 21, 9 to 11 a.m. at the Langford Field House. Now you've been told; and so you won't forget, please mark on your calendar, now.

PARK EVENTS

The Street Fair in spite of the horrible weather was quite a success, according to Peg Felton (substitute CoChm.), who sent the original CoChm. Merle and Lillian Bender (who were called away by family illness) the following resume. First, they thanked the 6th St. people who allowed their lawns and carports to be used. It was reported that they cleared expenses, with some left over to refurbish equipment for bigger and better Fair next year. The food was a sell out, folks bought the donuts by the dozen. Singer was fantastic, but sorry to say, it was too damn cold for the organ recital. Next year the crab race will have a front and center spot. Street cleaning was wonderful, not a scrap was left. Com. thanks all the hardy folks who did come out in spite of adverse weather, making it success ful, after all.

Square Dancers had a great time prancing to Jack Hoskens calling, Thur. Mar. 6. Jack kept everybody dancing and taught them make me a column. Next Thur. Mar. 13, Jack will start moving the group up to a higher level by having a work shop from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. then dancing until 10 p.m., and fee is only $2.50. So let's have a big turn out to better the 6 sets that turned out on the sixth, says organizer Ed Petgit.

Camera Club members are urged by president Nina Zigelhofer to get their dinner tickets before deadline of Friday, March 14. Remember, the $1.00 buys you a ¼ of a baked chicken and each member brings a serving, for four of a salad; dessert or vegetable according to last name "A-J, salad, L-R, dessert, S-Z, vegetable. Ed Pittel is now arranging a slide show of new, old park sides for after the dinner.

Doc Roberts had a dandy show, Thur. Mar. 5, for the 100 plus members, and took them to Alaska and Cape Barrow as it was 18 years ago, beautiful slides and sparkling commentary. A good show.

Shuffleers were at it again, taking on all comers and going away with the top prizes. Fran Runyan, shuffle club reporter, and gal who has now learned to watch the score board, turned in the following: Guy Fusco was First in Main event and Bill Jones first in Consolation with Evelyn Groves third, in the East Coast Medalist tournament, held here at OBP, March 6 & 7. It was a special honor to win, this Men and Ladies Singles, as only those who had won trophies this year in the East Central Coast tournaments were eligible.

The Battle of the Sexes is the next event of importance, it is more or less a grudge match between the Buckaroos and the Petticoaters with no holds barred and sometimes strange rules enforced. It will start at 9:30 a.m. Mar. 27 and wind up at 1:30 p.m. Fri. Mar. 28, when the losers will be hanged. There will be costumes, a referee, banana act (?), balloons to puncture, see cream on stick and pie eating contests and silver dollars will be awarded all winners. Also, there is a notice up "10,000 pesos for 'El Bandito'. Everybody welcome and be sure to bring your camera.

Notice up Annual Dinner, Fri. Mar. 21, 6 p.m. at Executive Inn, Ft. Pierce, happy hour 5 to 6 p.m., tickets $7.50 for chicken or roast beef. For tickets see Syl Garing, Erma Fair, Bill Jones, Jim Ellithorp, Joe Jensen and George Dean.

Lafave, best chip, Rena Daoust, 4th hole, best Tee, D. Tyree, best chip, D. Habitzruther, 14th hole, best Tee, Rena Daoust, Thurs. Mar. 1, 3rd hole, Women chip, J. # The 'crazy show' was just that

The 226 people attending the Pavilion Church service were again thrilled with Rosalie Bryson's singing. Bob Barton conducted the Lay Services. Rev. Clark Thompson gave a wonderful sermon. Rosalie sang the offertory and closing hymns, accompanied by Grace Thau, pianist and Dee Brink as organist. We were informed that Rosalie will sing at Trinity United Methodist Church in Jensen Beach, Palm Sunday at 2:00 p.m. accompanied by Grace Thau & Irene Hamm. Next week our guests will be Grace Thau & Irene Hamm with their selections of hymns.

A capacity crowd of 192 attended Friday Nite Bingo. Many anticipating a large turn-out, came early & played cards prior to the games. However no one was turned away. Reversing the usual procedure, birthday greetings, in song, were extended to our genial caller, George Maduas. Anniversary felicitations were given to Dorothy Klaucke and a "Bon Voyage" wish for Ruth and Geo. Leonard on their planned Caribbean cruise to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. George Maduas & Bob Holden did the number calling with Lester Ullmann, Wm. McWhirk and Sonny Gramstorff taking care of the seating and card clearances. Elsie Spring won the "Bottle of Cheer". Six surprise packages were awarded to lucky card holders. The super prize, with no winner will be carried over to the following week. E. Flanagan won the large "Winner-take-all" first prize. Helen Beres, Marie Davisand & Maire Cinnamon shared 2nd prize. Millie Psiz & Marion Holden were in charge of refreshments.

Shuffleboard Notes: On Mar. 5th, H.Out visited the Stuart Team. Results were H.Out, 3 points, Stuart 1. Players were Ed Frost & Chas Ullmann, Rita Dobson, Roy Lamon & Lubee Smith, Bettie Lally & Jim Lewis.

S'n & S'n Club—Don't forget you So & So ers that a pot luck luncheon just for members will be on March 20th at the Rec. Hall. If you are not a member, come this Thurs. Pay your dollar and determine what you should bring. If you don't come you'll be sorry, fun & games for all. Maybe even prizes. We'll be looking for you!

Mon. Nite Cards for Fun—There were 13 tables - Ginny Mutschler had first with a whopping score of 7100, Mary Fitton 5650 and Vera Clinger, 5520.

The "Crazy" Show Sat. nite was just that! A laugh a minute. Mary Parker, Jean Davis, Margaret Ewalt & Peg Ray opened the show in their top hats & tails, dancing to the tune of Cah Driver. George Poor made a fine M.C. Lena was great as a prima donna. Bill Cinnamon whistled his way into everyones heart as a "birdman" flapping his wings as a bird. Evelyn Dusenberry, came on as a cleaning woman, but ended up with the finest bumps & grinds you ever saw, as Bill sang "St. Louis Woman". Mac McKeever was a great one liner comedian with a few short numbers on the piano. Tom Rosser from Cedar Point sang beautifully as usual. All 84 years young, his voice is still lovely. Tom was a singer with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra a few years back. Tom Bunn from Jensen Beach made his appearance in a gorgeous flowing gown, as a female impersonator. Many couldn't believe what they were seeing. The beauty contest was won by Joe Lang but it was a close competition as Sam Wooten & Bob McLean were just as beautiful. Steve Pointon was Joe's date for the evening. Carne & Charles Ullmann sat in their rocking chairs reminiscing to the tune of "I remember it well" & Carrie disagrees with Charlie at every point. Elaine Skropka not only directed the show but gave a fine performance as Doll Parton at the piano & honored us with a few good jokes. Al Ray, Casey Jerla & Russ Desgerich made a wonderful trio. Al played the uke, Casey did well with the bones & Russ on the Chordavox. Fred Rodes played the drums, Bill Hendrichsen the trumpet and Don Parker the banjo. It was a fine orchestra.

Many H.Out artists will be exhibiting their work at Venture 3's Rec. Hall on Mar. 15th at 1:00 to 3:00. Wine & cheese will be served. Everyone is welcome.

H.Out Shuffleboard Awards Luncheon was held at Holiday Inn on Mar. 10th. Winners were—Rita Dobson, Ed Storch were first, in Ladies & Men's games. Bettie Lally-James Lewis, Edna Eamon-Ringer, Lubee Smith-Les Ullman participated. Business was conducted. New officers are: pres. Fran O'Neill, vice-pres. Bill Mels, sec. Mary Mels, and treas. Roy Lamon.

IDERS—One of Marian Monroe's prize possessions is the concept of ders in the Sky" which won a promotional campaign for the hit record er of same nam

A gift for living

MORABILIA Two of Marian Monroe's favorite mementoes — a diver's she and Vaughn brought back from San Francisco, and the "Voice of patch she holds Vaughn was RCA's "voice" for 27 years

Photos and story by Sally Latham

To the world, she is remembered as the around the-clock wife, companion and manager of one of that big band star with a difference — the only singing leader out of the Big Band era.

To Martin County, she is "Mrs. Marian Memorial Auxiliary" — the backbone of the Pink Ladies and generous philanthropist to the hospital's needs.

But only a few know Marian Monroe, widow of the late great Vaughn Monroe as an incipient scientist, a former manager of big business, and a clever architectural designer.

Before Vaughn's death in 1973, the Monroes made their home in a huge pink dream house on High Point. They'd moved to this area, she recalls, strictly because of its fascination for the multi-Gold Record winning "Voice of RCA," who was looking forward to retirement and trying to pick the spot.

"We stayed a few days at Frances Langford's Outrigger and looked around," she recalled, and he decided 'this is it.'"

Vaughn, a lover of boating and fishing, was answering the siren song of the local incredibly beautiful waters and the access to the sea.

Marian, a city girl at heart, wasn't so enchanted, at first.

"But he'd given in to me on everything else all our lives," she said with an elfin smile. "He turned to me and said 'this is MY turn.' She agreed with no further objection.

"At first, I thought it was the end of the world," she said. "The only thing that saved me were the cruises. We were almost never there."

The cruises she refers to were those tandem and utterly delightful ship bookings aboard glefuse liners. The Monroes got the "freebee" trips in exchange for performances by the star.

"Sometimes we'd have the whole delightful trip in exchange for one concert," she remembers.

However, as Marian and Vaughn got settled in their new home, she learned it love it almost as much as Vaughn did, particularly its surroundings of sea and exotic landwaping.

Vaughn, she said, especially enjoyed working in the yard.

"He always wore the worst old clothes and sneakers," his widow recalled, "and of course we were on the showcase route — people were always coming around the circle to look at the Vaughn Monroe home.

"One day, he was out in the yard in those old beat up pants working on the flowers when a couple drove up.

"Is this where Vaughn Monroe lives?" they asked him.

He said it was. The man asked him if he'd mind stepping aside while they got a picture.

And it wasn't too long before Marian discovered she and her husband had moved into one of the world's most fascinating and convivial communities — not to mention her own two first cousins, Roland and Gen Jack Merrell.

Born in Jeannette, Pa., outside Pittsburgh, Marion was the daughter of a jeweler who was in partnership with his brother, the father of the Merrells. Vaughn first came into her life when he moved to Jeannette during his junior year. She was initially fascinated by his musician ship, because she herself is an excellent pianist and organist.

From that point, it was an on again-off again romance. Marian had aspirations to become a scientist, and with that in mind attended Pennsylvania College for Women (now Chatham, an exclusive women's institution).

"I became a hospital laboratory technician — worked two years and made all of $90 a month," she said.

With her father's permission, she went back and attained her master's degree in business from the University of Pittsburgh. After that, with little trouble she got a job in personnel with first Gimbell's in Pittsburgh, and later an important post with the Philadelphia Company, a utilities company which among other things ran the trolley system in Pittsburgh.

It was in approximately this same period that she became interested in the U.S. Power Squadron, a fascination she took seriously.

"I received the navigator rating — one of two in the state. For a while I taught advanced navigation," she told The Mirror with pardonable pride.

The random Vaughn-Marian romance blossomed in full during her senior year at the university. And their marriage on April 2, 1940, seemed to prove a lucky omen, because almost immediately his spark of fame, fanned into a full-fledge conflagration.

"We were married 10 days before the Big Band started," she said. "We built the band at Seler's, a 10 acre family dancing spot outside Boston."

(Lou Feldman, who inherited the band and who will lead the entertainment at the Martin Memorial Ball Saturday night, was one of that original group.)

Vaughn left all the business of the band — the contracts, the mikes in the places they played, everything, to Marian. He trusted all the details to her, (although "there were agents all over the place.")

"We lived together 24 hours a day," she recalls. "I was the only wife allowed to ride on the band bus — they normally aren't allowed on because wives CAN cause trouble."

Vaughn, whose voice either made them love him or hate him, skyrocketed from that first Boston engagement.

"We had an RCA contract three months later, and we were on the Paramount stage nine months later."

Vaughn Monroe, the "leader with the leather lungs," chalked up nine gold records to his credit, with such hits as "Racing with the Moon," "Ghost Riders in the Sky," "Tangerine," and many others. Known as the Voice of RCA, he was under contract with them for 27 years, including the beginning of the TV era when Vaughn's voice was used to promote the new media in its infancy.

Their recordings and personal appearances took them to every state except New Mexico, and to many foreign ports. Marian particularly remembers the glamor of the return trips on the "France." (Now becoming the S.S. Norway.)

"It was so large that after five trips I still could get lost," she smiled.

The traveling of their parents didn't seem to have any particular ill effects on their two daughters, who Marian now counts as her good friends. They are Candace, wife of Lt. Col. Jerry Wagner, now with SHAPE in Brussells, Belgium and Christine, Mrs. Paul Smith of Stuart. But the frequent tandem absenses did give the kids strange ideas of their errant parents.

"For years," grinned Marian, "They thought their father was a telephone."

The Monroes' interest in Martin Memorial Hospital began soon after their move to High Point. She was the chairman of the second Hospital Ball, and, became involved with the auxiliary. And Vaughn donated his music to its success for two years, the last time only short months before he died.

The thing that killed him, Marian believes, was a fall he took on the steps of the Boardwalk.

"After that, he wasn't feeling well," she said, "but he played the Ball here, then we had a six weeks engagement at Hyatt, and we went on to play the Kentucky Derby.

That was his final engagement. They returned to Stuart where he entered the hospital. He never came out alive.

Marian now lives in a revamp uff of an apartment, in the luxurious Hutchinson House, the eggshell and gold decor glamorized on every side by happy memories — the prize winning painting of "Ghost Riders" the original score of "Racing with the Moon" signed by the astronauts and acted by the Gold Record of that smash hit, a pair of trumpets converted to lamps and reconvertible to playable instruments, a case full of Keys to the City from all parts of the world, to name a few.

And Marian has shown her decorating ingenuity by extending the living room to include the area of the front verandah, and remodeled the kitchen with a breakfast nook the seats of which double as bins for storage, that oh so precious commodity in apartment living.

One of the major contributions Marian has made to the hospital is the memorial family waiting room, which has been comfortably furnished with the decorations including two of Vaughn's Gold Records.

"I had to wait in the hall," she remembers with sadness.

After long and faithful service to the auxiliary, Marian has stepped down and turned over the reins to others.

It's in the by-laws that I "helped write," she said. "There are many wonderful women giving their time who need and deserve the chance to run things."

But it is obvious that she misses the total absorption which carried her through the loss of her husband and best friend.

Have you ever noticed," she mused? "the world is made for couples."

Vaughn Monroe

KEYS TO THE CITY—A cabinet in Marian Monroe's den is a treasure chest full of the Keys to the City from nearly every city where her husband made personal appearances. She's holding a fat book of "Vaughniana" collected by the devoted president of the Monroe fan club.

CONVERTIBLES—A pair of lamps in the Marian Monroe household are the twin trumpets, converted to lamps but, unassembled, are ready for a concert at a moment's notice.

Partners in stableford play at Sandpiper

Every aspect of the golf game was saved in "Scotch Foursome" play Thursday when the Sandpipers alternated shots in one of the year's popular scheduled events on the Saints Championship 18 hole course. Cutting down on everything but their plaid kilts a team headed by association president Bob Wilson "shaved enough strokes to finish first with a 130 score. Other members of the top clan included Col. Sam Dewhirst, Roy Rutherford and Vern Lewis.

Things were so tight around the course, that half points became deciding factors in winning positions. Capturing the second plot only a half point off the winners included Jack Dalton, Graydon Smith, Len Appel and Carl Starnch.

A couple more colonels paved the way for a third place finish another half point away were Cols. Jim Healy and Don McConnell, Seymour Feirring and Dick Whiting.

Fourth slot was filled by the team of Fred Schumerle, Charley Duvall, Rudy Brodman and Bob Downing while a team of Denny Long, Russ Skinner, Mars Waldbillig and Fred Doesher captured fifth place with 133 only a half shot over the team of Eve Phillips, JB Anderson, Will Ferrara and Jim Edelen. Deadlocked in the last award slot was the combo of Bill Reick, Bob Marrisey, Henry Veson and Pat O'Neill.

One of the most interesting events scheduled during the season is on tap for Thursday when selected partners will compete in the Partner's Best Ball alternating tee shots from the red, white and blue markers utilizing the Stableford system of scoring for final results. Play will take place on the 18 hole championship Saint's course at the Sandpiper resort.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

o what's new in tennis, in the last years very little and a whole lot he tennis court dimensions have ed the same, the types of surfaces gone from one extreme to the r. Starting with grass, to dirt, cement, asphalt, wood, carpet, k dust, granite dust plus many thers and a few more not worth ntioning.

The newest one out, "Mad Sod" is nufactured in Canada. The first t in America was put in at Forest ls, N.Y. in 1971 or 2 and I played cho Gonzales on it to cure our omnia. Very nice, it's like a long ed outdoor green carpet with lines ted in for permanency and a erial sand, 10 tons sprinkled on top. e court is very soft, plays well, ds very little maintenance.

Australia has over 100 nos, Canada out 50, and the second one in the will be completed in two weeks in Lauderdale.

Tennis rackets are basically the me. However, the racket is the one e of tennis that is not governed by ight, size or shape. Anything goes, long as nothing protrudes beyond thickness of the strings, hence aghetti was banned. Rackets are de from every space age material, ood and combinations thereof, ings have been improved, stringing achines have made stringing rackets ch easier, but a racket is still a ket by any other name. The easure racket now accounts for a big rcentage of the trend.

Tennis balls are very similar. They ve been improved in many ways, t the weight, size and bounce are rmed by the U.S.T.A. (United ates Tennis Association) 4 oders are ormal.

Rules, scoring and T.V., these are inter related. Rules are the same ch exceptions when on T.V. The referee will tell the players when to t up and take their side, even if it is or two minutes. The U.S.T.A. rule ates one minute between changes.

T.V. had trouble scheduling ograms when a tennis match could on four hours or more and the score ght like 22 20, 7 9, 30 40, 8 10, 6 0. ence the sudden death (9 point) and ow U.S.T.A. approved 12 point ggering death. Lingering because u must win by 2 points, which could n on for 20 or 30 minutes.

The A.T.P. (Association of Tennis ofessional), U.S.T.A., W.T.A. (Women's ennis Association), Penn Circuit, and C.A.A. all have their own set of ules governing everything from uiring to discipline. Thus a local tournament director can and usually ows throw in a few more.

Random examples. A clay court tournament played in rain. Tourna ment director can move play to indoor arpet or whatever surface. Matches still now be 8 game pro sets, etc.

No T Shirts allowed. White clothes only. You must buy a player ard. You have to take a hormone test. And then for the boys and girls if your opponent does something objectionable on the court, the umpire can give your opponent a point or game. If you are 15 seconds late they can award your opponent a game. They did it last week in Vero Beach for 60 seconds late. And if you didn't hear the umpire clearly, 4 and he, thanks you are questioning his authority, before you can say "what" he will award another game to the opponent, plus a warning that one more "talk back" and you are defaulted. OUT!

Oh yes, boys and girls, if you are planning on playing tournaments, start working on your department and don't be late.

Sailfish Point surpasses 7 million mark in two weeks

Sales have begun at Sailfish Point, the exclusive, oceanfront yacht and country club community now under construction on Hutchinson Island's southernmost tip.

"Before the end of the second week, we passed the seven million dollar mark," said James R. Ottesen, vice president, marketing and sales, Dunes Realty Corporation, the exclusive sales agent for Sailfish Point.

Ottesen explained that almost immediately following the official opening of the temporary sales office, 20 condominium residences at 2001 Sailfish Point Boulevard had been sold at an average price of $350,000 per unit.

"Several single family residential homesites have also been reserved," he added, "and as soon" as the purchasers finalize their architectural plans, construction will begin on these homes which front on the marina and the golf course.

Audobon film is about Mississippi River

A film tracing thousands of miles of the Mississippi River will be the final one in a series of nature films offered.

The last in a series of nature films sponsored by the Martin County Audubon Society will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 13 at the Stuart Woman's Club building, 729 East Ocean Boulevard.

The film is titled "American Heartland: The Great River Story".

Made by Walter Berlet, the film traces thousands of miles of the Mississippi River and focuses on a pair of loons in Minnesota. The nesting and behavior patterns of the loons are recorded, and the film follows their activities until they are ready to migrate south.

Berlet has produced more than 30 educational films and 14 television shows which are being shown throughout the world.

He is noted for his outstanding color, composition and sense of the aesthetic, which he incorporates in his films.

The public is invited.

THE SOUNDS of the loon's "laughter" and its mournful cry to the coming of evening complete the beauty and the ethereal quality of the wilderness this diving bird inhabits. Film maker Walter Berlet and his wife culminate their cinematic nature tour of the Mississippi and the life it enriches by a loon summer — a brilliant study of a pair of nesting loons on a lake in Minnesota. "American Heartland: The Great River Story", an Audubon Wildlife Film presented by Walter Berlet, will be shown at the Stuart Woman's Club at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 13.

Exec fired by Chamber

The board of directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has fired Helen Richardson, 73, executive director of the Chamber for the past ten years.

The action was taken at the board meeting on March 10, and Richardson was notified verbally the same day, and a letter outlining the dismissal was given to her on Friday.

The action of the board was taken when Richardson refused to retire.

A "new and a more vibrant activity of the Chamber was cited as the reason for seeking a new executive director, according to Dick Campbell, president.

"What Helen does, she does well. She has a very pleasant voice on the telephone and meets the public well. She knows the community, but there is much more that should be done," Campbell said.

The board needs someone to go out and welcome new businesses to town and run up and down the street promoting the Chamber," he added.

Richardson told the Chamber president in January that she would not retire, but would have to be fired. The board discussed the situation in the February meeting and directed the executive board, composed of Campbell, Fred Nettare, Dr. Stanley Wampler and Gene Greenwood, to investigate the executive director position and make a recommendation at the March meeting.

The final recommendation of the committee was that the executive director be terminated on April 18. The board passed the motion without a dissenting vote.

The executive board is now searching for candidates for executive director. The position pays $100 a week.

Harbor Bay, Leilani Heights sewer odors draw complaints

BY BOB FRYER

Two area sewer plants have been the cause of complaints lately, but it appears unlikely that either one will be shut down, as some persons have called for.

One plant is at Harbor Bay Plaza in Sewall's Point and the other is in Leilani Heights.

For months there have been complaints about the sewage treatment plant at Leilani Heights in Jensen Beach, and on at least two occassions state Department of Environmental Regulations officials have rated the plant as "unacceptable." Last summer one of those rating reports resulted in a vote by the Martin County Commission to withhold certificates of occupancy for new homes in the subdivision.

After money was pledged and promises were made to correct the odor problems at the plant, the moratorium on certificates was lifted.

But at a recent county commission meeting, new complaints were lodged and the commission voted not to issue any more building permits for Leilani Heights homes until the plant owner, G.A. Construction Company, obtains a valid operating permit for the plant.

State DER official Cindy Hilty noted that the plant is about two years old and has had a "long history of operational problems." She said the plant does not now have a state operating permit and that its construction permit expired last November.

Ms Hilty noted that papers are now being processed for a temporary operating permit for the plant and she said that should be issued by state officials in a few days. But even when that is issued, new hook-ups will be hard to come by during the nine-months that the permit will be valid. Ms Hilty explained that a temporary permit is issued when a plant is not operating efficiently or is not in compliance with state regulations. She said hook ups are allowed on a case-by-case basis under a temporary permit.

Ms Hilty also noted that under a temporary permit, the plant operators have six months to iron out problems and that the last three months are used to gather data to make sure the plant would be operating in compliance with state regulations. If it is, then a regular operating permit would be issued.

She said a new operator for the Leilani Heights plant was recently hired and she said "It appears that the plant hasn't been operating correctly" in the past. "They are currently engaging in engineering evaluations to see if any changes need to be made," she said.

An attempt was made to contact George or Costa Apostolopoulos of G.A. Construction Company to determine what their reaction is to the county moratorium on building permits, but they could not be reached.

In the case of the Leilani Hights plant, as well as the one at Harbor Bay Plaza, Ms Hilty said it is highly unlikely that the DER would close either plant. She said this would happen only in extreme cases, as "you just can't shut down a plant. There are too many people depending on it."

Last week Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler warned Harbor Bay Plaza manager Paul Rutledge that he had had it with complaints about odors from the shopping center plant and warned him that he would seek to have that plant shut down if the problem persisted.

Ms Hilty said she inspected the Harbor Bay plant last week. "There was some odor from the raw intake, but it was not extremely objectionable," she said.

She said she spoke to Rutledge Tuesday and that he told her engineers and a representative from the manufacturer of the plant came to the plant that day to determine what was causing the odor problem. She said it was difficult to pinpoint the odor, but said the men Rutledge called in were attempting to do so and to come up with a solution to it.

Gluckler complained last week that he had been getting persistent complaints about the odor from the plant and said the odor could be smelled on occasion from four blocks away in either direction.

Rutledge told Gluckler at last week's meeting that he had just learned of the complaints about the odor and that "We'll do whatever is necessary (to solve the odor problem)."

Firemen coloring 90 dozen eggs

One of the favorite traditions of Easter season for kids around Jensen Beach will continue this year with the annual Jensen Beach Fire Department Easter Egg Hunt.

Fireman Ernie Baker said volunteers will be coloring 90 dozen eggs this week in preparation for the hunt at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 22 at Langford Park on SR 707.

There will be 38 plastic eggs set out as well, and kids finding those eggs will win stuffed bunny prizes. And, the firemen will have jelly beans for kids who don't find any, or many, eggs.

The hunt is open to kids through age 10, and the kids will be placed in four separate groups, so the older kids won't have an advantage over the younger ones. Kids one and two years old will have their own division, those three, four and five will be in another, those six, seven and eight will be in a third group, and the fourth group will be for kids nine and 10 years old.

The fire department has been conducting the hunt for about 15 years, according to Baker, who said the department took over the sponsorship of the event from a man who had been running it for a number of years prior to that.

He urged parents to get their children to the hunt on time, as he said it doesn't take kids long to find the eggs once they're turned loose.

Slow progress on bid to get Palmetto Ave. right-of-way

The wheels of progress move slowly in county government.

Last July, The Mirror reported that county officials were working on a proposal to move the Florida East Coast Railroad siding in Jensen Beach from the east to the west side of the tracks.

Actually, the proposal had been in the works for about nine months before the story was written.

Today, the siding is still located on the east side of the tracks, and, as County Commissioner Frank Wachs said Monday, "We're still negotiating."

The siding begins north of Commercial Street, running parallel to Palmetto Avenue. Whenever Porter Lumber Company gets a delivery, the materials have to be unloaded on the east side of the main tracks and brought around to the lumber firm's headquarters on the west side.

That may be an inconvience to Porter Lumber, but the main reason the county wants to move the siding is to obtain right-of-way along Palmetto. Currently, if FEC wanted to do so, it could, on its own land, erect a barricade that would block Jensen Beach Fire Department trucks from pulling out of their driveway onto Palmetto and block Jensen Beach Bank drive-in teller customers from driving out to Palmetto.

That's because FEC owns land paralleling its track which extends, in some spots, beyond the east side of Palmetto. In other words, in some places, Palmetto is located entirely within FEC land. And, according to at least one map, the FEC land encroaches a few feet into the Tiger Touch gift shop at the corner of Palmetto and Commercial Street.

Both FEC and county officials say it is highly unlikely that FEC would ever block off Palmetto Avenue, but it's a matter Wachs has said he would like to see straightened out.

When The Mirror looked into the matter last summer, it was discovered that the county was waiting for FEC to make the next move in the negotiations for the county to obtain the FEC land and that FEC was waiting for the county to take the next step. That step was to have the land in question appraised so bargaining could begin on what it could cost the county to obtain the land.

Not only do county officials want to have Palmetto on county land, but they also hope to have enough room to expand the width of the road, if necessary.

At least one recent proposal for solving traffic problems in downtown Jensen Beach calls for making Commercial Street a one-way east-bound road from Palmetto to Indian River Drive, making Ricou Boulevard one-way west, and having the block of Palmetto between Ricou and Commercial one-way south. That plan also calls for installing a special lane of pavement along Palmetto so volunteer firemen could drive north on it to get to the fire department when responding to a fire call.

When asked Monday what was the latest on the efforts by the county to obtain the land along Palmetto, Wachs said he was to have met with the vice president of FEC last week. However, he said the vice president got delayed, cancelled the meeting, and has not yet set up a new meeting time.

Wachs said the appraisal was made, but that when the county sent the appraisal figure to FEC, the railroad firm made a counter proposal to provide the county with right-of-way close to the main track, but wanted to keep possession of the land close to the building the Tiger Touch is located in.

Wachs said that counter proposal was "not satisfactory" and said he wanted to meet with the vice president to find out what purpose FEC had in mind for the land it was proposing to keep by the Tiger Touch.

The appraisal figure for the land involved came to around $8,000, Wachs said.

TO GUARANTEE OR NOT TO GUARANTEE?

QUESTION: I have applied for a mortgage loan on a six-unit apartment building. The bank has made a commitment to lend on that property, but is insisting that I personally guarantee the note. I thought that, in big real estate deals, the lender generally looked to the property and not to the borrower for satisfaction of the note. Is this correct?

ANSWER: In very large real estate transactions, lenders often will not insist on a personal guarantee. However, most lenders would not consider your six-unit property to be a very large transaction.

Naturally, when you consider the implications of guaranteeing a real estate loan, you must recognize that your other financial assets will be at risk to the extent of any guarantee you give. However, you should also realize that when you invest in most other vehicles (such as the stock market) your entire investment will normally be "at risk."

On any loans but the very largest, lenders will most often insist that you sign and guarantee the repayment of the note. To look for a lender who does not insist on this guarantee would most likely be a very frustrating task.

I would suggest that you evaluate the risks involved, check with legal counsel, and, if the real estate transaction that you contemplate appears to be a sound one, seriously consider giving the bank the guarantee it seeks.

Sailors get a joyful welcome home from arduous voyage

When you're at sea for 50 days without seeing land, you get to know a lot about yourself and your crew.

For Keith and Robin Creager, the ordeal cemented an already strong father-son relationship, gave them both a sense of peace and satisfaction, and provided them with memories they'll carry with them for the rest of their lives.

Story and photos by Bob Fryer

And for Keith, it brought about a confirmation of something he suspected before the voyage began: that his son Robin is quite a man.

It also brought Keith closer to God.

On Monday, Keith and Robin sailed into the Anchorage Marina in Rio. A huge banner with big green letters proclaiming "Welcome Home Rebel" was displayed between two palm trees. A crowd of about 100 friends and relatives greeted the sailors with cheers, cannon blasts and confetti. And in the case of Barbara Creager, the greeting included a kiss for her husband, and son.

About 13 months ago, Keith and Robin set sail from the Anchorage Marina to follow the path of Sir Francis Drake around the world.

They didn't make it around the world, but they made it around South America, enduring days of becalmed waters far out at sea, two hurricanes, and several monstrous storms. At times, they found themselves in life or death situations. But they weathered the storms and, on Monday, came home for a joyful St. Patrick's Day celebration.

It all started several years ago as a simple desire by Keith to go sailing. He and Barbara picked out the boat they wanted and had it built in England.

The 32-foot boat is a Golden Hind, and when Keith learned that the Golden Hind was the name of Drake's flagship, he began reading about the sailor. Before long, he found himself wanting to retrace Drake's route around the world.

That's a pretty tall order for a man who had never sailed before buying the boat. Keith had been an employee for a large corporation for 17 years, then had his own construction business for a few years before getting the bug to go sailing. But he hadn't let his non-nautical background stand in his way.

On Dec. 13, 1977, 400 years to the day that Drake began his voyage around the world, Keith and Barbara Creager set sail from the same port Drake did, Plymouth, England, to retrace Drake's route.

Their first leg of the journey, from Plymouth to Morocco, took 25 days. During that time they weathered the worst North Atlantic storm in 20 years. Several boats were lost at sea, but the Creagers survived in their boat, "The Rebel".

After making it to Barbados, they departed from Drake's route to come to Jensen Beach. Barbara's parents, Ruell and Beulah Mertz live in Ocean Breeze Park, and the Creagers visited with them.

By the time they arrived, it had been decided that Barbara would stay behind. She got a job here as a nurse at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Keith waited for Robin to get out of the Marines, then last February, they set sail to begin following the rest of Drake's path around the globe.

It was an adventure they will never forget. They found their reception in most South American ports friendly, but not always so. And, they found the sea was not always friendly either. They weathered several nasty storms and two hurricanes and very nearly gave up just in sight of one of their major goals.

Before leaving here, Creager had said he expected the hardest part of the voyage would be sailing through the straits of Magellan, around Cape Horn. It was.

"It is known as the toughest pieces of sailing there is, to sail through from east to west. Very few people make it at all, and even fewer the first time. Drake didn't make it on his first attempt," he said.

When Keith and Robin made the attempt, they did so against the advice of a local sailor. And they did it without their mainsail, as it had been ripped to shreads in a storm. And they did it with an engine that was on the fritz.

They made it within sight of a huge rock marking the western end of the straits, but when fear of being swept ashore by a storm began to set in, Keith turned back. "It was just tearing us up. I felt like I was dying inside. We had started in England and there I was, 18 miles away from making it through and I had to decide to go back," he said. And, when asked if he felt it was a life or death situation they were in, Keith replied, "Yes."

"Robin went along with my decision. Had I been alone, I would have gone ahead," Keith said. But he said that Robin told him "not to put the monkey on my back."

For half an hour, they sailed away from their boat. Then, Keith finally put the internal wrestling match to rest. "I took the tiller, turned around, and we went ahead. We had had no air until then, but suddenly, as we turned, the wind filled the sail," he said.

They were not out of danger after making it through the straits though. Their concern then had been that a storm would blow them against the shore. A storm came, but it was later, and they had open sea to get blown around in when it did. The storm was the second hurricane of their voyage, and it is one that was documented by the national weather service. It struck them off Mexico, and they safely rode it out.

Keith said that during the storm their boat actually sailed 92 miles during a 36 hour period without a sail. He said the force of the wind against the hull blew them that distance.

Though hurricanes and storm were a problem, calm waters were just about as bad. Once when they got into calm waters they wound up having to retrace 800 miles that they had already sailed. Keith said when they got into the calm, they actually got carried backwards 60 miles one day and on another, they made only 10 miles. With the current taking them farther and farther offshore, when they got wind, they would end up having to sail away from their goal, to escape the current.

When Keith and Robin arrived home Monday, someone referred to Robin as a little boy. Keith quickly replied, "That little boy is a man. He proved it to me many times over." Later, he elaborated that it was not only during the storms, but at other times of stress that he came to know his son as a man. "We were under stress long periods of time and that takes a special kind of fortitude to be able to stand up to no air, 50 days at sea without making port, face 10 storms, and times when we had to use our liferaft still to make water. When you have no wind and can't go anywhere or do anything, it's tough to keep your cool and not blow up. But he proved himself a man in all those circumstances," Keith said.

For Barbara, the worst time was the 50 days of waiting to hear from her husband and son. But she too survived the ordeal.

And during the ordeal, Keith says he developed a new awareness of God. "I've always felt myself to be a religious person, but God was an intangible. Now, I feel I have another dimension on God. I feel he played an active dimension in this voyage," he said.

Though the reception was all Keith could have asked for when he and Robin returned home Monday, he said he would like to make an apology.

He graciously granted interviews to news reporters a short time after arriving, said by the time they were over: many folks had apparently concluded the party was over and had gone home. "I wanted the people who welcomed us back to come aboard and see the boat. I hope they will stop by. I didn't mean to end the party," he said.

GREETINGS—Keith Creager waves a happy greeting to friends and relatives on shore as he and Robin pull into a slip at the Anchorage Marina.

Jerry Thomas, Too young

The resignation of Jerry Thomas as chairman and chief executive officer of First Marine Banks in Palm Beach County came as a blow to the people who love a fighter.

Thomas has been just that. He is a man who went to Washington to fight the system, made some gains, and left after six months as undersecretary of the Treasury, fighting the system, and losing to the entrenched bureaucracy, saying, "I am going home to earn enough money to pay for some of the colossal waste I've seen up here."

As the president of the Florida Senate, Thomas was a friend to those who would build better democracy. He helped The Mirror in its fight against the bureaucracy of the state health department, offering a forum for the complaints and an ad-hoc senate-house committee to come to Martin County to hear the complaints.

Jerry Thomas built a good business banking group in his First Marine Banks. He ended up a millionaire (after he left government service.)

For such a young man to learn he has cancer at age 50, and to endure the chemotherapy which we all fear, is a new challenge. He will meet that challenge, for he is a fighter.

And, all who know him, and appreciate the many years he gave to his state and nation, offer their prayers and good wishes for his recovery.

Fireworks donations

To preserve the fireworks for Independence Day it will take $5,000 in donations.

Simply put, we urge all to send a donation check to the Jensen Beach Fireworks Fund, Jensen Beach, Florida, 33457.

Getting the treatment

We believe that the problems now faced by Harbor Bay Plaza in the treatment of its sewage offer an experience to the Department of Environmental Regulation that is needed.

For too long, the DER has allowed small sewage plants to proliferate, without the necessary manpower to monitor and police the plants. There have been major problems with several sewage plants in either subdivision or in shopping centers. There have been many more problems, not as severe, in many plants. Those minor problems have not been persued, mainly because the DER does not have the manpower to do the job.

The public health is risked by improperly operated plants.

We cannot fault Harbor Bay or any other development or shopping area when the overall system is to blame.

It is time that the state gave the DER enough people to do the job of monitoring the many small sewage plants that are the basis of health in our communities. Perhaps some of the paper-shufflers might be assigned to the job so that the budget is not raised to add more people to the government payroll.

The people should not get the treatment; The sewage plants should.

Smile when you say that

As you may have guessed from past conversations, I'm a book aholic. I wave a list of six for 99 centers in my direction, or send me a publisher's clearing house price list, and its lemons for me for the rest of the month while I wallow in words.

And one, from my most recent collection, has made me hideously aware of how loosely I've been toying with the English language. It has also made me neurotically cautious about what I eat or drink in more than two syllables.

The volume is a very handsomely bound copy of "Word Origins and their Romantic Stories." Thus far, I haven't come across anything to make me exactly swoon, romantically, but the chapter on Word Stories about your table is making me very, very cautious about how I imbibe.

In this book, compiled by Wilfred D. Funk, I'm finding some pretty wild things about eating and drinking. Just for example, I always thought when I started a swank dining out with a sip of the grape that I was partaking of some de fermented assortment of the old teddy. Not so, says Funk. The word "alcohol derives from "a bluing for the eye.

Queen Cleopatra of Egypt darkened and lengthened her eyebrows with antimony paste, and the Arabic word for this was alkohl-at. Kohl and powdered antimony. This word came into the English language as "alcool," a name for any powder or extract. Thus alcool of wine was for drinking. It was not until the 16th century that alcohol was used to signify drinking."

Another one on the "watch-it" list is carouse. I always thought that carousing was just going out and having a little noisy fun until I read Funk. Actually, Mr. Funk tells us, carouse means, literally, "bottoms up."

"Sometimes," he says, "a party that starts innocently and pleasantly will end up in a wild 'carouse.' We are actually saying 'gar aus,' which is the German word for 'completely finished.'"

We start out with one glass and wind up 'gar aus'--out of the picture.

And Eggs Benedict, that elegant breakfast or luncheon dish, all began with a hangover, he tells us.

"In the year 1894, a certain Samuel Benedict, man-about-town and member of New York's Cafe Society, came into the old Waldorf Astoria with a wicked hangover. He knew precisely what he wanted for his breakfast. He ordered bacon, buttered toast, two poached eggs and a hooker of hollandaise. Oscar, the maitre d' was impressed with the dish, put ham and english muffin in place of the bacon and toast, and christened the affaire Eggs Benedict in honor of the famous rake."

And watch out for intoxication, both literally and figuratively. It means poisoned arrows. It all began with the Greek work toxon, meaning a bow. The poison the soldiers tipped their bows with was "toxikon," leading to the latin word toxikum, a word covering any poison. Our work "intoxicate" derives from the Latin intoxico. So name your poison.

Also keep an eye on that innocent word "potpourri," which has come to denote any clever little mixture, literary or otherwise. It actually means "rotten pot."

Funk explains "we borrowed the expression straight from the French, and is the literal equivalent of the familiar Spanish epithet olla podrida," which translates as rotten pot, and throws back to the Latin putrere, "to be rotten." So next time someone offers you a potpourri of poetry for an evening's entertainment, leave quietly without holding your nose.

While intoxication is sheer poison, whiskey is quite another matter, in Mr. F.'s book. In several languages, he said, whiskey is the "water of life."

In Latin, aqua vitae (bonze) is the water of life; for the Swedes, its akvavit. French brandy is eau de vie, while the Scotch and Irish both agreed on the Gaelic usage beatha, again meaning water of life. (Henry VIII loved it.). The Russians simplified it with their vodka, which merely means "little water."

If you're fascinated by the seeds of the words we use every day, whatever we are doing, you'll find a gold mine in Funk's Word Origins. He digs around and sticks pins in the most verbose balloons, and gives insight into practically subject you want to bring up, from business, politics, stories of the boudoir, war and history, and just plain every day living from gardening to things around the house. He also uncovers a lot of fancy lexicography people use to cover art with artfulness.

Just for example, girls, watch it carefully the next time hubby tells you he's called out of town on a symposium. Funk lays this one bare.

Symposium, he reveals, means "they drank together."

"Greek in origin, the Greeks of old held their symposiums after dinner when they would drink wine together and mix entertainment with intellectual conversation. The dialogues of the Greek philosopher Plato, which he called "The Symposium," is an imagined conversation at such a gathering."

Letters to the editor

To the editor:

A small town newspaper can often strike a familiar chord, even one far from one's native turf.

Such was the case with your recent article about Marion and Vaughn Monroe.

Now Florida winter residents, we have spent most of our lives in and around the area close by Seiler's Ten Acres – later Robinhood's Ten Acres most recently called Wayland House. My husband was an active band musician in the 30s and 40s.

We remember with pleasure the radio broadcasts from Ten Acres – and Racing with the Moon. We both agree that we have never failed to think of Vaughn Monroe as we attended functions there.

Now, as I pass by Wayland House during my summers in Massachusetts, I'll recall your lovely word pictures – while humming Racing with the Moon. With appreciation,

Sincerely,

Now, the unseen warts

With the coming of Spring, comes the Florida Press Association annual better newspaper contest. This is the rough part of it, preparing the entries.

There are 28 divisions of the contest, dealing with general excellence of the newspaper. We have to comb through all 52 issues, selecting the best newspapers we have produced.

Now, the unseen warts appear.

You would think it would be easy to put together two or three really good issues - because in several of the divisions, the rules ask for an issue of a certain date, plus two consecutive weeks. They give us a choice of the required date, one in Spring and one in Fall.

I don't know why, but generally the required issue is fated to have ink smears down the side of the pages. It is the one that had a piece of type fall off and sit in the middle of a picture.

What we thought was a good column, or editorial, or photograph, or news story in the emotional week of that issue pales in the passage of time, and at contest time looks like just another item in the newspaper.

It takes about three good weeks to complete the necessary preparation of the work. I make a file of all columns written by Sally Latham, Bob Fryer and myself. I clip each and paste it on a sheet of paper. My columns alone, clipped over the past twenty years, make a stack of books about two feet high.

I have a file system for the various divisions. I clip and paste each article involved in one of our entries. We plan our community service entry, for example, around our writing for the Samaritan Ambulance. The entry is a notebook two inches thick. The entry "for newspaper promotion" is three inches thick.

That is a lot of paper and rubber cement.

We plan an entry for each of the 28 divisions, so the preparation is voluminous.

I can't complain about the amount of work involved. After all, I'm chairman of the better newspaper contest in Florida, and I helped to write the rules.

Actually, the reason it is important for our readers to know about the contest, it is an outline of how to run a newspaper properly.

In preparing the contest material, we found out where we were weak, and where we were strong. We didn't have as many hard news stories as we should have, plenty of news, but not written with flair and impact. Of course, hot news doesn't break too much for a weekly newspaper. If we have a news event break on Friday, it is the next Wednesday before the newspaper comes out.

We did have many photo features, one of the strong points of our newspaper. We had a good bunch of editorials, columns and news features.

Our classified advertising looks good, as does our display advertising, though we were weak in creating new and different display ads or campaigns for our customers. This makes us concentrate on the weak area to do a better job for our readers and our advertisers.

Our entries in the Florida Press Association contest are due in by March 24. All of the entries of the weekly, twice-weekly and thrice-weekly newspapers (numbering over 1,200 last year) will be compiled, and taken to New Orleans in April. As chairman of the committee, I am to go there with about 15 daily and weekly publishers of Florida to judge the Texas Press Association newspaper contest while they judge ours.

Our committee won't know what awards are won by Florida news papers until our June convention of the Florida Press on the west coast of Florida. At that time, under the security of whatever kind of group keeps these things secret, the awards can be given. As chairman, even I don't know who won what.

About 500 publishers, editors and staff members will gather at the awards luncheon. The program will be conducted by the executive secretary of the association. The graphics and slide displays will be conducted by our own Bill Meissner, son of Peg Meissner general manager of The Mirror.

Even he won't tell us who won what.

But, after it is over, the staff of The Mirror will know where we are strong and where we are weak in producing a newspaper. To me, either a first, second, third or honorable mention certificate will indicate that we are doing the job.

If we don't place in the contest, it means that we have much more work to do in the various losing categories.

Bob Fryer

Clean Slate Day

I think they should have a National Clean Slate Day.

In fact, it should be World Clean Slate Day.

The day before that would be World Clear the Air Day.

On World Clear the Air Day, everybody would-well, what else-Clear the Air. All past secretly and not secretly held grievances anyone or any nation has against anyone or any nation, would be aired. Grievers would spell out just what it was that irked him or her about the grievee. Of course, logistically, we should probably figure on it being Clear the Air Month, or even Year, instead of day. Too many grievances out there to air on one day.

And, a lot of details would have to be worked out on impartial arbitrators to hear the grievances and make just rulings. But I'm sure we could come up with some sort of solution if we worked at it. And if we couldn't find a solution we could schedule a World Amnesia Day just before Clean Slate Day.

On World Amnesia Day, we'd all go into some sort of hypnotic trance. I'll leave it to the doctors, psychologists, gypsies and other experts in the field to figure out how we do that.

During the trance, all memories of how we came to hold a grievance against our neighbor would be washed away.

Then we'd snap out of the trance as Clean Slate Day began, and we'd all start out with-what else--a clean slate.

Iran would give back the American hostages and the OPEC folks would give everyone a fair shake on their price of oil. America and the other nations with food would share it with the starving people. And the Afgans and Russians would live in peace. So would the Arabs and Israelis, folks in Ireland, and the blacks and whites in that newest, and oldest, battleground of humanity, the one between men and women, nary a shot would be fired, nor an insult hurled.

Can you imagine what it would be like, to wake up one day and find you hold no grudge against anyone? The world is populated with very few folks who can make that claim. What if everyone could? What if everyone realized we're all in this thing, the process of life together, and that it can only hold value if we all work and live for the good of all of us? What if, instead of animosity, we held good will and compassion for our fellow man? All of them. But I doubt if it would last long before some wiseacre would come along and plan World War III Day.

Afterall, without any animosity between folks, the newspapers wouldn't have anything to write about, the lawyers would go without work, the arms manufacturers would go bankrupt and the folks writing scripts for television shows would go bananas trying to dream up something without violence.

Commercials

by
ALLEN F. BREWER

Commercials are those gems of thoughts
Contrived to make us buy.
The things they want to sell us;
They tell us how and why.

They tell us "Mich likes it,"
"Try it you'll like it"; thrive
On what you eat, you use and wear,
Or the kind of car you drive.

The glamour of the open range
Is extolled if you smoke;
Your tastes in solid libation
Are aroused by husky blokes.

And when it comes to eating,
There's nought like barbeque,
Or sizzling steaks or tasty roasts
To build up your I.Q.

Then like the "perils of Pauline,"
"Continued in our next,"
Or displace your TV text.

From B.O. to personalities,
There's no limit to their range
So fancifully presented that
They hope you'll make the change.

But we could not live without them,
For they pay the way, you know
For your favorite sports and news cast,
For the late, late mystery show.

Maggy to paddle canoe from Sandsprit Park to Ft. Pierce

Martin County Commission Chairwoman Maggy Hurchalla will have a strenuous day Saturday.

She plans to paddle a canoe from Sandsprit Park in Port Salerno to Fort Pierce — a distance of about 20 miles.

Her task won't be as Herculean as that of the man she will accompany however. Peter Quincy, research biologist for the Florida Audubon Society, is paddling a canoe around the entire peninsula of Florida. It's being done in conjunction with the Year of the Coast to publicize conservation of our coasts.

Quincy will arrive at Sandsprit Park Friday afternoon, where the local Audubon Society chapter will hold a pot-luck dinner for him.

Conservation minded public officials from coastal towns throughout the state have been paddling a day with Quincy for most of the distance. How many hours a week do you practice? Probably one hour or less. But if you don't practice, one thing is for sure, you are not going to get much better. If any. But, you can still have fun.

You should expect fun, exercise and sociability, all of which will make you a nice friend and a fought after fourth.

What is your favorite sore spot? your elbow, knee, neck, legs feet or back. If any of these areas hurt you, don't feel like the lone Ranger. Everyone has something they wish they didn't have. But wait. There are 29,000 different cures. Just peruse a tennis magazine. There are over a dozen varieties of elbow braces alone. And, if you haven't tried aspirin, try it. It's a cure-all, like in the Army.

Clothes and shoes. Tennis clothes should be neat, clean, coordinated and almost unnoticeable so as not to distract your opponent. But if you want to use a little gamesmanship, wear a red shirt with red shorts (ala D.C.). Shoes should be tennis shoes only. No running, jumping football or basketball shoes, Period!

Bond in Carrera at Sebring endurance

BY BOB FRYER

Even though Rusty Bond of Jensen Beach will be driving a faster, lighter car at the 12 Hours of Sebring endurance race this Saturday, his chance of visiting the Winner's Circle, as he did last year, seems slimmer.

Bond and co-driver Ren Tilton, also of Jensen Beach, captured a first in class victory last year at Sebring.

But for this year's event, Bond will be teamed up with two other drivers and he won't be racing in his own car. In fact, he won't even be racing in the same class he did last year.

That's why his chance of victory this time seems slimmer, in spite of the faster, lighter car.

In the 1979 edition of America's oldest endurance auto race, Bond and Tilton competed in the GTU class for cars with engines displacing less than 2.5 liters. They ran a flawless race in Bond's Porsche 911. And won.

But in the final race of the 1979 International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) season at Daytona in November, the car was badly damaged. A sudden freak rainstorm moved over the backstretch of the track at Daytona and resulted in a 15-car pileup. Tilton was driving at the time and managed to stop with relatively minor damage. But as he was helping another driver out of a car, an out-of-control car slammed into Bond's Porsche. It is still undergoing repairs and Bond says he's not sure when it will be ready to race again.

Bond was unable to find a ride for the first race of the 1980 IMSA season, the 24 Hours of Daytona in February, but has teamed up with Bill Ferran of Ormond Beach and Jack Refenning of Pompano for Sebring.

He'll be driving a Porsche Carrera, owned by Ferran, and instead of competing in the GTU class he'll be competing in the GTO class, for cars with engines displacing more than 2.5 liters. The GTO class is the second in a hierarchy of three basic classes of cars that compete in IMSA events. It's a step up from GTU, but kilo-dollars and loads of horsepower behind the fastest GTX class.

Unless all the GTX cars break down on the bumpy 5.2 mile road race track (portions of which serve as an airport landing strip) it's not likely a GTO car will be the overall winner. But even in the GTO division, there should be more than ample competition for top class honors.

Within the GTO class will be several Porsche 934 turbos. Basically, they're similar to the Carrera that Bond, Ferran and Refenning will drive. But, since their engines have turbochargers and the Carrera doesn't, the 934 turbos are much quicker.

Bond concedes that unless the 934 turbos have mechanical problems, the Carrera he will drive will be hard pressed to come home a winner. "We're hoping it's real hot there, because the turbos don't tend to do well in heat," he said.

Though Bond acknowledges that the odds for victory are not great, he by no means concedes defeat. "Oh, I guess we have as good a chance as most of them," he commented last week as he was putting together the 3 liter Carrera engine. "But you have to have luck too," he added. "In almost all races, luck is a part of winning. I've seen engines run when they shouldn't and seen some break that never should have."

When Bond and Tilton won the GTU class at Sebring last year, they were by no means the pre-race favorite. Their Porsche 911 was up against much quicker Mazda RX-7s. But they brought a well-prepared car to the race, ran their own pace, and had virtually no mechanical problems.

This time, Bond says the race plan is the same. "We'll just try to turn the lap times that we figure we should and hope for attrition to take its toll on some of the other cars. Then, when night comes and it gets cooler, we'll assess where we are and what we'll have to do," he said.

Bond got the ride in the Carrera by earning a reputation for building engines that stay together. Ferran said he had heard a lot about Bond and knew that Bond's car was out of commission. "I knew if he was interested, he'd be a good one. He knows all there is to know," Ferran said.

Refenning, the third member of the team, will share driving duties with Bond and Ferran. Refenning's 934 turbo is out of commission as a result of a wreck at the 24 Hours of Daytona, and, in exchange for a turn at the wheel in Ferran's Carrera, is providing contributed parts from his car.

Both Bond and Refenning have experience as IMSA drivers. Ferran has little IMSA experience, but was in autocross competition for about eight years and last year drove the Carrera in the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) Southeast regional championship.

The race begins at 11 a.m. Saturday and ends at 11 p.m. For those planning to attend the race, you can identify the Bond-Ferran-Refenning entry by its number and color. It will be bright red and bear the number 60.

Tilton won't be driving in the 12 hour event, but will be entered in a 200 kilometer race in the IMSA Radial Sedan division. He'll drive a Mazda RX-3 bearing number 42. It is white with blue trim.

The radial sedan race begins at 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Sound Image wins eight awards

Sound Image Advertising was winner of eight awards at the Treasure Coast Advertising Federation's first annual Addy banquet recently held at the Pelican Yacht Club, Ft. Pierce.

The Stuart advertising agency won five Addy awards, the highest award given, in the categories of billboard advertising, local newspaper ads less than half a page, local newspaper campaign, local campaign utilizing two or more media, and radio musical concept campaign. Recognition of achievement was for advertising entries on behalf of its clients: American Speedreading Academy, North Palm Beach; First Federal Savings of Ft. Pierce (three awards), Ft. Pierce; and Pittman Insurance Agency, Stuart.

All entries receiving a first place in their category were forwarded on for further competition on a state wide basis. Winners at the state level will go on to the national competition that is conducted by the American Advertising Federation.

Certificates of Distinction (second place) also were awarded to Sound Image for its billboard advertising for client East Coast Lumber of Ft. Pierce; local newspaper ads less than half a page for client Aycock Funeral Home, Stuart; and newspaper insert advertising for The G.O. Team, Ft. Pierce.

The competition, which was open to anyone in Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River Counties, was judged by a panel of advertising executives from outside of the Treasure Coast area.

New citizens energy group is started

Calling it an "opportunity for all Floridians to speak their minds on energy issues," a new pro-energy citizens organization — NEW ERA — has been formed in Jensen Beach, announced Chris Farrell, President of the group.

"NEW ERA stands for Nuclear Energy Will Economically Revitalize America," which is our way of saying it's time to realize our country needs nuclear power and other energy sources to help supply electricity vital to national security, jobs and productivity," Farrell said.

"Energy is interrelated with our national welfare. Just as the spiraling cost of energy has undermined our security and fueled inflation, low cost energy can help strengthen the economy and reduce inflation — especially if the sources of that energy come from within the United States," said Farrell.

The idea for Jensen Beach based citizens energy group was formed by Farrell and some of his friends who were frustrated by anti-energy special interest groups and a lack of government policy on energy matters. "We decided to act rather than sit and complain," he said. This gives us the opportunity to weigh alternatives and act in unison for the common good."

Buck-a-gallon gasoline. It's a reality. And they say it's going to get worse. For most of us, this means changing our driving habits. The less you drive, the more you save.

We can help. Our new Gas-Miser Program is a package of services that can eliminate dozens of trips to the bank. The program includes direct deposit of regular payments, such as Social Security and stock dividends; telephone transfers of money from checking to savings, and vice versa; deposits by mail to checking and savings (we pay the postage both ways) and more.

Our trained personnel have all the Gas Miser details. They'll help you stop passing the buck for non-essential driving.

Jensen Discount Patio store gets 'delightful' reception

If you're in the market for patio furniture, there is a new store in Jensen Beach that may well have what you want.

Charlie Otto and Lois Blanton opened Jensen Discount Patio store at 1999 Commercial Street on February 1, and say the reception they've had from local residents has been "delightful."

For both Otto and Blanton, it's their first venture as patio store owners, but Otto has been in the business, working for a Fort Pierce firm, for a number of years.

Otto said it was the growth in the Jensen Beach area that attracted him to locate the store here. "I just really particularly like this area, and Commercial Street is a very busy street," he noted in explaining their decision to open the store here.

The firm carries two main brands of patio and pool furniture, and Otto says everything sold at his store carries a guarantee. "The manufacturers stand behind their product and so do we," he said.

The store contains a large stock of furniture, including chaise lounges, huge umbrellas, sofas, love seats. "We have a complete line of pool and patio furniture, and it is all made for year round outdoor use," he said.

Otto challenges shoppers to compare his prices with those of others, saying, "We are a true discount store."

Both owners say they enjoy meeting the public and are happy to be a part of the Jensen Beach business community.

Art exhibits during March

Art Associates of Martin County are sponsoring the following exhibits in conjunction with co-operating merchants. Each exhibit will be on view during regular operating hours during the month of March.

Oil and acrylic paintings by Ruth Bowman will be on display during the month at Stuart National Bank. The Jensen Beach artist is showing landscapes, seascapes, and florals in an imaginative realism style using both brush and palette knife.

Mrs. Richard (Ioia) Connolly's works are currently on exhibit at the Stuart National Bank branch office at 1500 E. Ocean Blvd.

Mrs. LaRue Malone's paintings are currently on exhibit at the First Federal Savings and Loan of Ft. Pierce Monterey branch in Monterey Plaza, Stuart.

Mrs. Malone, a newcomer to Stuart, has exhibited in many shows in the Miami and Asheville, N.C. areas.

RUSS BILLINGS has been named assistant vice president at Port Salerno National Bank. Their 34-year-old resident of Jensen Beach administers installment loans and works closely with Port Salerno National customers to help fill their needs.

Chief says kids to blame for rash of woods fires

The most recent fire was reported around 4:15 p.m. Monday in woods off North Savanna Road between Winn Dixie and an old cemetery.

Luciano said the fire claimed about half an acre of woods and was started in an area that contained what looked like a make shift hideout for kids. He said he found evidence of twigs being broken and assembled to start the blaze.

Five trucks and about a dozen men from the department responded to the fire call. Luciano said if the wind had been blowing, the blaze could have spread to stores in the area.

The fire chief also noted that last week kids set three fires in woods near the Jensen Beach Elementary School. He said small footprints were found at the scene and that witnesses saw children running from the area as the fire was getting underway. The kids were not caught, however.

Four trucks and 11 men went to those fires. Luciano said all three fires were set in the same vicinity at the same time. And, Luciano expressed thanks to Bo Bevis, a District Two Fire Department fireman who works at the school, for opening the school gates so the fire trucks could get to the blaze.

"If those kids don't stop setting fires, someone could get hurt," the chief said.

Literary Group meets Wednesday

The Literary Group of the Woman's Club of Stuart invites all members to attend an informal meeting at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, March 26, at the Clubhouse on East Ocean Blvd.

On the same day at 1 p.m., progressive bridge games will be played. This is for members only and players need not have a partner. Refreshments will be served and a donation accepted.

Jennings to address owners of mobile homes

On Friday afternoon, March 28, at 2 p.m. the Federation of Mobile Home Owners of Florida, Inc., District 12-A, will hold a special meeting for the mobile home owners of Martin County, in the recreation hall at Sunshine Mobile Manor, 5600 S. Federal Hwy., U.S. No. 1, Stuart.

All mobile home owners in Martin County are invited to attend this meeting. Persons requiring additional information may call: Stuart 287-9413 or Jensen Beach 334-6355.

Inflation reduces numbers

Many more folks left this week and some for good, putting their homes up for sale as they found inflation and gasoline supply problems, just too much to contend with, even though there was the worst storm of the season last week up there in the north and only a few years ago there were 3 to 10 foot drifts on March 25 in Michigan, away they went earlier than usual.

Ocean Breeze

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Yacht Rebel with Keith and Robin Creager aboard is due to return home, Sun. Mar. 16 after a years trip around the Horn and through 8 hurricanes. Robin's grandparents, the Marts of Miracle Way will have a complete story for next week.

There was only a fair turnout at the OBP precinct 14 last week. A total of 161 out of 302 registered (53%) came out to vote, there were 62 democrats (38%) and 94 republicans (58%). They voted: Carter 37 (60%); Kennedy 13 (22%); Brown 5 (8%); no preference 4 (7%); Kay 2 (3%). Reagan 67 (71%); Bush 22 (23%); Baker 3 (3%); Anderson 2 (2%). Then, 89 (55%) voted on the admendments: Nbr. 1, 83 for and 57 against; Nbr. 2, 50 for and 39 against. Seniors will have to do better next fall.

This is blood pressure check week: Wednesday, Mar. 19, 2 p.m. at Langford Field; Thur. Mar. 20, 12:30 p.m. at 1st .Presbyterian Church, North River Shores; and the Martin County nurses, Fri. Mar. 21, 9-11 a.m. at the Langford Field House.

Many new folks are dumbfound to have perfect strangers give them a hearty 'hello' when they meet in laundry and on the streets of OBP. Well, they better get used to it, as that is the way things are, and soon they will be doing it themselves to next year's new comers.

PARK EVENTS

The Arts & Crafts Exhibit, Sat & Sun, Mar. 15 & 16 in the Clubhouse from 1 to 5 p.m. was a dandy this year, with the following different mediums: Mosaic Tile, Al & Milly Kivana; Needlepoint, Louise Crocker; 3D pictures, Pearl & Melva Atchison; Leather, Mary Strohm; Ceramics, Belva Dean; Painting, Mrs. Helen Smith and all Hobbies and Handicraft, Mary Ann Blanchard. OBPers are really very talented, it was a wonderful exhibit.

Square dancers, 4 sets of them, enjoyed the calling of Jack Hoskins as they learned to do 'petticoat chain' without a hitch. Jack keeps everybody moving and there was refreshments too, all for only $2.50. Also, there is going to be another try at organizing an 8 'gal' set, so the many widows can get a chance to dance. Those interested, please attend the Wednesday beginners class and touch with Ed Pettit.

Camera Club had an election of 1980/81 officers at the May. 11 meeting and elected: Fran Gum, President; Sparky Garside, 1st V.P.; Ed Pettit, 2nd V.P. and of course Freda Peterkin as perennial Sec/ Treas.

Hugh Garside showed his 4-seasons slides: starting with winter scenes of 5 to 10 foot snow drifts in Michigan on March 25, 1977; then some spring scenes of his beautiful roses; next on to a summer trip to Moosonee in northern Ontario, by train, as it is miles beyond the end of all roads; and finally some beautiful autumn leaves that were outstanding. It was an excellent show, beautiful slides, good running commentary and well put together. (Dinner of Mar. 18, reported in detail next week).

Shuffleurs are in a 'lull' right now waiting for the final tournament of the season, however the Central League team continued to hold its own with a 3 wins for 32 total score.

The next event, of course is the annual dinner, Friday, March 21, 6 p.m. at the Executive Inn, Ft. Pierce. Tickets $7.50 for chicken or roast beef meal and there will be a happy hour from 5 to 6 p.m. For tickets, see: Syl Garing; Irma Fair; Bill Jones; Jim Ellithrop; Joe Jensen; and George Dean.

The event of the year, that grudge match, the battle of the Sexes will be coming up, Thur. & Fri. Mar. 27 & 28 with the buckaroos and the petticoaters battling it out to a no-holds barred finish and the hanging of the losers at 1:30 p.m., Fri. Mar. 28. Everybody is invited and be sure to bring your camera, to record for posterity, the shooting of El Bandito (or the Sheriff) at the OBP Shuffle corral and the prize winners of pie eating, ice cream licking contests, best costumes in the parade, etc. All winners to get silver dollars.

A Concert will be held Sun. Mar. 23, 7 p.m. at Shuffle Courts, when John Leyheck will set up his Hi-Fi PA system. John says the of' favorites are the best, so come and listen Sunday to see if he is right.

Golfers have been having some fine weather for their tournaments lately and here are the recent winners: Mar. 8, Mel Gelaert; A. O'Neil; T. Sheehy (2) and E. Farnham. Then for Mar. 15: R. Backman (2); R. Osgood; P. Hussey; Edna Moss; and Evelyn Farnham. 36 teed off last Saturday.

HOSPITAL & OBITUARY

Stanley Hughson, 6 Arbor Vitae came home Thur. Mar. 13, but Ruth Phelps, 14 Pepper is still in room 423.

DIFFERENCE—Making up over $1,300 in difference so that the Martin Memorial Hospital Drive would have $125,000 raised were these three public spirited friends at a table at the ball. They include Dr. and Mrs. Sandy Strauss, Dr. and Mrs. Jim Grossnickle and Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Tilton.

Hospital Ball unprecedented

In the books of the Martin Memorial Hospital Ball Fund committee, the Chinese have a word for it: Success. The Chin Hua Ball, held Saturday night at the Sandpiper Bay to raise funds for $100,000 worth of sophisticated medical equipment for the hospital, was a success not only socially, but a smash hit financially.

All of the area's most elegant couples turned out for the affair, which starred the music of Lou Feldman and the Vaughn Monroe Orchestra. They entered to find themselves in a bower of fairyland oriental delight, created again this year by Charles and Ruth Salisbury. The muted lights were covered with upended parasols, and the Chinese symbolism for good health, wealth, good luck and longevity covered the walls.

The good luck charms obviously worked. In addition to the generous take at the door, at $175 per couple, money in large denominations came in from a number of special donors. Among the biggest were the personal gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude and the Ralph Evinrude Foundation, Grumman Aerospace Corp., Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cummings, First National Trust Company of Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Flanagan, Mr. and Mrs John E. Forester, E. M. Geddes, Hartman-Tilton-Wilson Insurance Agency, Inc., Robert Earll McConnell Foundation, Mrs. J. Sherman Neese, Mr. and Mrs. E. Carroll Stollenwerck, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wareheim, and Mrs. Rosa Whistler.

Several special benefits also added to the lump sum, which finally went over $125,500, according to chairman Dr. Duane Stemle. Dr. and Mrs. Stemle and Dr. and Mrs. Fred Carter were this year's chairmen.

Among the benefits were extra money from the Auxiliary to the Martin County Medical Society, a starlight cruise, First Southern Holiday Golf and Tennis Tournament at Martin Downs and the Pickles Inc. Golf Tournament. Platinum contributors were First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County and Mr. and Mrs. Parker Lawrence.

Word of the financial success came during an intermission in the dancing, during which treasurer Charles Shadd announced that the total, as of that minute, was $123,677.63.

"We had never hit $100,000 before," he said.

But board chairman William Oughterson wasn't to be satisfied.

"It should be $125,000," he said. "We'll even take an IOU on a dirty, soiled napkin."

Action came from a table where Ransom Tilton, Dr. James Grossnickle and Dr. Sandy Strauss were sitting, and up came the "soiled napkin," raising the ante to $125,000.

Afterward, Mrs. Carter told The Mirror, a fourth anonymous donor came forward adding another $500 to the kitty.

FIRST GUESTS—Members of the staff at First Federal Savings of Martin County and friends at the hospital ball included Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Mankins, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Shawver and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Turner.

Ninth Annual Blessing of Fleet is March 29th

One of the most popular boating events of the year, the annual Blessing of the Fleet and Marine Parade is slated for Saturday, March 29.

Sailboats and motor boats of all shapes and sizes will participate in the event. Boaters are invited to join in the festivities, whether or not they are affiliated with a yachting club.

Also invited to turn out for the event is the year with 301 of them scheduled to participate.

The parade gets underway at 2 p.m. and is to be conducted a short distance from the Evans Crary Bridge on the St. Lucie River.

Kay Keesee, chairman for the ninth annual Blessing of the Fleet and Marine Parade, said that Dr. Karl Pulbrook of First United Presbyterian Church, Father Gerald Morris of St. Martin De Porres Catholic Church, and Rabbi Mel Hecht of Temple Beth El have been invited to offer the blessings. He said there is a chance Rabbi Hecht may not be able to attend, but if he doesn't, a substitute will be th attendance.

All boats are to assemble in a staging area between markers 17 and 19 between 1:30 p.m. and 2 p.m. At 2 p.m. boaters are asked to tune in WMUF FM for the blessing.

Trophies and ribbons will be awarded to participants in the event. A trophy will go to the club having the greatest percentage of decorated boats; two cups will be awarded to the best decorated boats between 16 and 24.5 feet long and two cups will go to the best decorated boats more than 25 feet long. Honorable mentions will receive ribbons.

Boat owners and guests are invited to attend the awards banquet at 6 p.m. Sunday, March 30 at the Elks Club on Colorado Avenue in Stuart. Tickets are available at the Stuart Chamber of Commerce or any participating organization.

Classical music offered at FIT

Music lovers are invited to the inaugural program of the Riverside Series Concert Hall this Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of the Environmental Studies Center.

The series will offer 90-minute programs of recorded classical music on a semi-monthly basis. It is sponsored by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center and hosted by Jay Jarrett, Center Coordinator.

The Sunday's program will include Handel's Water Music suite, Schumann's A Minor Piano Concerto and the Third Symphony of Sergei Rachmaninoff. Content of future programs will be determined by those attending the series.

There is no charge for the recorded concert and all who enjoy classical music are invited to participate in the development of the program.

Forum on draft this Saturday

A public forum on The Draft will be presented at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 22, at the Martin County Public Library.

Elliott Artuck, a World War II veteran, and Edward Clark, a Florida Institute of Technology professor and a Coast Guard Academy veteran, will speak on the background and history of the draft in the United States and on "Why the draft now."

An open discussion will follow the speakers' presentations.

Reed praises Audubon

Dr. Nig Reed, one of the country's outstanding conservationists and authorities on ecology, lauded the Martin County Audubon Society on Saturday, calling it an effective army in the battle against human destruction of our waters and wetlands.

"If it weren't for the standards set by those in this room," he said, "Martin County would long since have been bulldozed and Brow ardized."

Reed, who has held high governmental posts at both state and national levels, was guest speaker for the annual luncheon meeting of the Martin Society, at Quality Courts in Stuart.

The outgoing president Valerie Prime paid special honors to Jean Henry, head of the Wild Life Animal Hospital, for her dedicated work with wounded birds and animals.

Mrs. Henry, in turn, gave tribute to Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Wampler for being available "at all hours" to help treat the animals.

Reed, giving a history of the Audubon Society, told of how the national organization has now grown to be one of the country's most effective tools in passage of game laws and establishing game and bird sanctuaries all over the country.

Following his talk, the gavel was turned over by Mrs. Prime to James Rowe of Sewall's Point, who will serve as president for the coming year.

School boundary decision day late April or early May

BY BOB FRYER

By late April or early May, parents of students at Jensen Beach Elementary School should know where their children will be going to school next year.

The Jensen school, including improvements now under construction, is designed for 750 students. However, it currently has about 850 students. Therein lies the problem.

For months, parents of students living in the North River Shores area have expressed concern over the possibility that their children may be transferred to J.D. Parker Elementary School in downtown Stuart.

That school is one of few which is not at or above capacity, so it is a likely candidate for receiving transfers from the Jensen school area. Parents opposing a transfer of their children from Jensen Elementary to Parker say their objections are based not a concern that the quality of education may not be as good at the Parker school and that their children will have to ride buses over the Roosevelt Bridge to get to the school. The bridge is frequently broken down and a cause of massive traffic tie-ups.

The North River Shores parents deny that their objection to a possible transfer of their children to Parker is based on the fact that the Parker school has a higher percentage of black students than the Jensen school has.

School Superintendent V. James Navitsky met with Jensen PTA members last week and assured them that before any school boundaries are changed, there will be public meetings held to consider the issues. And, he assured them that unless an extreme emergency crops up, no students will be switched from one school to another during a school year.

He also said that when school boundaries are changed, officials will take population growth factors into consideration so the changes will last several years, thus maximizing the chances of a student having to attend several elementary schools before going to middle school.

When asked Tuesday about considerations for school boundary changes, Navitsky said the school board will not move students from one overcrowded school into another overcrowded school. And, he said any student who rides a bus to school is a likely candidate for a transfer from one school to another.

He said no decision has been made as to whether a change in school boundaries for Jensen will be made this coming school year or in a subsequent year, but added that the decision will likely be made in late April or early May.

State Department of Education officials recently completed a survey of school construction needs for the county and recommended that one more elementary school be built in the near future. They further recommended that due to projected growth patterns, the school should be built west of U.S. 1 and south of Indian Avenue.

Navitsky said before any boundary change decision is made, the school board should pretty much pinpoint the location of the new elementary school. A site selection committee is to meet April 7th with members of the county planning department to get input on projected population growth trends. With that input, the board will then address the issue of selecting a site and, by late April or early May, hold public meetings to consider boundary moves for the county's elementary schools. The new school probably won't be open for three to four years, but board members will attempt to set boundaries for next few years to minimize later boundary changes for the new school, he said.

Navitsky maintains that the quality of education is basically the same at all elementary schools and also pointed out that before the Jensen school was built, students from North River Shores, Sewall's Point, Rio, and Hutchinson Island went to Parker. There are roughly 150 students at the Jensen school from the North River Shores area and about 60 from the Island and Sewall's Point areas. He said the Sewall's Point area extends northward to a line near the Frances Langford Resort.

Navitsky said that while it is possible that Jensen students from North River Shores or Sewall's Point may be transferred to Parker for the next school year, he said if that happens, they won't come from both of these areas in the same school year. "We may move students from North River Shores or from Sewall's Point to Parker beginning with the coming school year, but if it happens, it will be from one area or the other, not both," he said. But, he said the fact that students from one of those areas may be moved to Parker for the coming school year does not rule out moving the students from the other area to Parker — or any other school — in a subsequent year.

Blessing of the Fleet will be this Saturday

The 9th Annual Blessing of the Fleet and Marine Parade scheduled for Saturday, March 29, is anticipated to have the largest turnout of boats since its inception in 1971. Already the greatest assembly of craft in Florida for this type of marine event, participation will be by practically all boating organizations in Martin County, plus an increasing number of boats not affiliated with any local group.

The event will get underway at 2 p.m. on Saturday with a blessing by clergy of three faiths broadcast at that hour on WMCF-FM. The participating boat groups will then, in single file, pass the reviewing yacht, the CHANTICLEER, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude, anchored in the St. Lucie River south of the Evans Crary Bridge. On board will be the clergy and three judges who will select winners of several trophies donated by supporting local businesses.

The Blessing of the Fleet Committee made up of boating organization members, anticipate a turnout of over 300 sail and power boats of all sizes. This year boats awaiting their place in the parade are anchoring in assigned areas to conserve fuel. Last year over 100 boats not associated with any boating organization joined the parade and it is expected an even greater turnout from this group this year. They will be stationed at Location 16, as shown on the map, and a Coast Guard Auxiliary vessel will be their leader in the parade.

All other club fleets, under control of a Coast Guard Auxiliary boat, will parade in sequence from the positions shown on the map. Participating organizations are: 1) St. Lucie Sailing, 2) Anchorage Yacht Club, 3) Saints & Sinners Y.C.; 4) St. Lucie River Power Squadron; 5) Anchorline Y.C.; 6) Circle Bay Y.C.; 7) Yacht & Country Club; 8) Soundings Y.C.; 9) De La Bahia Y.C.; 10) Crossroads Y.C.; 11) Nettles Island Y.C.; 12) Coconut Point Y.C.; 13) Riverland Y.C.; 14) Windjammer Y.C.; 15) Oceanview Y.C.; 16) Non-affiliated boats; and 17) USCGA Flotilla No. 30.

The trophies will be awarded at a dinner on Sunday, March 30, at the Elks Club. For those spectators who will not be aboard a boat to watch the parade, the best location to observe the event is from the Evans Crary Bridge, spanning the St. Lucie River. For information, call 287-9122.

Blood bank is plan for Chamber

The establishment of a blood bank for members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will be the topic of the April 1 morning forum next Tuesday. Members of the Chamber will meet at 7:30 a.m. for coffee and hear about the blood bank at 7:45.

Sara Timon, head nurse of the Martin County branch of the blood bank, will explain the requirements of Chamber members having their own blood bank.

There are many small businesses in the Chamber that cannot qualify for their own blood bank, said Chamber president Dick Campbell. "This will enable the members, their employees and families to have access to a quantity of blood if it is needed in time of emergency."

The Chamber board of directors voted earlier to establish the blood bank.

The monthly coffee and forum will be held in the Harry Hoke meeting room of First Federal Savings of Martin County on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach. It is sponsored by Indian River Point.

Kids, don't forget to enter coloring contest

Kids, if you're in grades 1-5 and haven't yet entered The Mirror's second annual Easter Coloring Contest, you'd better hurry.

This edition of The Mirror is the final week the contest entry form will be printed, and the deadline for turning in entries is noon on Wednesday, April 2.

Any children, except relatives of Mirror employees, are eligible to enter the contest, so long as they're in grades 1-5.

To enter, read for have your parents read) the contest rules, then color the sketch on the entry form and turn the sketch in to any one of the merchants sponsoring the contest. They're listed at the bottom of the entry form.

Be sure to clearly print your name, address, phone number (if any), age and grade, so we'll know what category you are to be judged in.

The Port St. Lucie edition of The Mirror has a different sketch in it from the Jensen Beach edition, so kids from the two communities will be competing in separate contests. The grand prize for the Jensen, as well as the Port St. Lucie, contest will be a six foot tall stuffed bunny. And, first, second and third prizes will be awarded to children in each grade level for the Jensen and Port St. Lucie contests. First prize is $5, and second and third prize winners in each grade will receive $1.

Children may use crayons, water color or paint, but may not be assisted by friends or parents. And, only one entry per child is allowed.

Winners will be announced in the Wednesday, April 9, edition of The Mirror.

Last year about 500 students from each area participated in the contests and the judging was very tough. We're hoping you make it even tougher this year.

Come explore the Universe at Environmental Center

"Exploring the Universe" is the topic of this year's final "First Wednesday" presentation to be held 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 2, at the Environmental Studies Center.

Amateur astronomer Mark Perry will lead the discussion designed to introduce the audience to the study of the solar system.

Perry will show a film describing our solar system, demonstrate a celestial telescope, and answer questions on the subject of astronomy. The program will also serve as an introduction to a six-week course in popular astronomy Perry will offer through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center starting Tuesday evening, April 15. Residents interested in the course will have an opportunity to sign up at the close of the presentation.

"I've been hooked on astronomy ever since I first saw Saturn through a large telescope while a student at Tulane University," Perry said. Since that time he has taken a number of college-level courses in astronomy and celestial navigation.

The class as well as Wednesday's presentation will be slanted toward those wishing a layman's approach to star gazing as a hobby. There will be no charge for either the Wednesday program or the course.

I-95 to Martin line

BY MICHELLE NASPINSKI

According to local State Representative Charles Nergard, St. Lucie County came in just "under the wire" in receiving some $50,000,000 of state and federal funds to construct the three segments of Interstate-95 that will take it through Port St. Lucie to the Martin County line.

With President Carter's belt tightening inflation program putting the freeze on all such new projects, the monies secured for this extension of I-95 will be the last available funds for some time.

The contract to build the northernmost portion of this project, which will take I-95 south of State Road 70 to south of North Port St. Lucie, (5.5 miles) was awarded to Jasper Construction on March 7. This segment will cost $23,770,697 to construct and with work starting on April 14, a projected construction time of 956 calendar days is expected.

The middle portion of the extension will pick up south of North Port St. Lucie to south of Gatlin Blvd. and will span some 8.7 miles. The bid for this segment was approved by the Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Works Administration on March 14, and the contract was awarded to S.T. Wooten on March 17 for $18,694,368. Work is to start on April 28, with 720 calendar days construction time.

The final segment, that will take I-95 south of Gatlin Blvd. to the Martin County line, will stretch over 3.8 miles of Port St. Lucie. Included in this portion are an overpass, which will straddle the Florida Turnpike, and an interchange at Midway Road. This southernmost extension will feed traffic from Gatlin to Savage to Port St. Lucie Blvd. The contract was awarded to Dickerson, Inc. on March 6, at a cost of $7,851,654. Construction is expected to begin on April 14, and 420 calendar days have been alloted for construction time.

Nergard commented that the extension of I-95 represents the largest program of governmental spending in St. Lucie in the county's history. The extension is being financed soley by state and federal funding, and no county funds are involved.

Although the extension will take the Interstate highway directly to the Martin County line, Nergard revealed that with federal cutbacks, it may be two and a half years before construction of I-95 in the Martin County even goes to contract.

As federal funds for the building of Interstate roads will become inaccessible after 1986, local representatives expressed concern that the missing link of I-95 in Martin County may become permanently missing. Ironically, Martin County was also the last county in the nation to complete the link of U.S. 1.

Although 1986 is the deadline by which an extension must go to contract in order to qualify for federal monies, 1989 has been set as deadline for construction.

"Hopefully the completion of the Interstates will receive the highest priority of monies available," said Nergard.

Kahl receives Eagle award at ceremony

Only a few young men ever attain the rank of Eagle Scout, and earlier this month, William Kahl, 18, of Jensen Beach joined that elite group during a special Court of Honor ceremony.

Kahl, an 11th grade student at Martin County High School, was presented with the Eagle award by Harvey Kemnitzer, Troop 811 Scoutmaster.

Kahl said he is proud of the award and that it is an honor that he will treasure throughout his life.

Kahl works part-time at the local Winn Dixie store and says when he graduates from high school that he plans to attend Florida Institute of Technology and to learn welding.

In order to attain the Eagle rank, Kahl earned the required 21 merit badge and completed a variety of projects for the ranks leading up to Eagle. One of those projects included working at the Jensen Beach Fire Department, helping clean the trucks.

Kahl has been in scouting since moving to Jensen Beach from Summerville, N.J. about 12 years ago.

Others received awards during the Troop 811 Court of Honor, including Eagle Ken Schroeder. He received the Bronze Palm for continuing to earn merit badges beyond the Eagle requirement.

Tracy Tilton received a patch for completing the Loxahatchee Run, a canoe trip down the Loxahatchee River, as well as writing a report about the river and its history. Additionally, he received a merit badge.

Merit badges also went to Schroeder, Rick Bell, Mike Wegler, Ed Killer, Mike Gryzelka, and Tim Cote.

SAMARITAN GIFT—Two raffles raised $533 for the Samaritan Free Ambulance last week at Ocean Breeze Park. A leather handbag, hand-tooled by Mary Strohm, leater instructor, brought $261, and was won by her husband, who asked $50 more for it to be given to a ambulance fund, raising the total to $311. Audrey Mackey made a jeweled Christmas tree, in memory of Emily Herron. It was won by Arnold Thiessen after drawing $222 in donations. Mr. and Mrs. Strohm and Mrs. Mackey presented the money to Samaritan President Maxine Bailey and EMTs David Pesa and Randy Springer, both FTT students. (Dick Campbell photo)

Scouts giving out census info

If you haven't already been visited by a Boy Scout, you will probably get a visit soon.

Scouts in Jensen Beach Troop 811 are doing door to door to hand out informational flyers on the 1980 U.S. Census.

Your census questionaire should arrive by mail at your household on Friday, March 28. The flyer the scouts are passing out is to give local residents an idea of what to expect on the questionaire and to urge them to answer it. As many federal and local programs are funded based on population counts, it is important that all persons in our community be included in the count, the flyer stresses.

In addition to passing out the flyers, the scouts are also in the process of selling tickets to the annual Scout-O-Rama to be held on Saturday, May 3.

New officiers selected for Lydia Circle

New officers are Hazel Hutchinson, president and Thelma Parrett, secretary. Those retaining their same office for a new term are Floretta Bartlett, treasurer; Thelma Bennett, corresponding secretary, and Rachel Estes, devotional chairwoman.

Members finished their Easter project and had a dessert and coffee luncheon. The next meeting will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 16.

WWI Vets cancel meet

Veterans of World War II, Barracks 854, Jensen Beach, and their Auxiliary, will not hold any meeting in April because their meeting place is not available.

There will be a card party sponsored by the Auxiliary, on Thursday, April 24 at Hoag Hall in All Saints Church. All are requested to make reservations with Julia Callahan 334-5890.

The next meeting of the Barracks and Auxiliary will be Friday, May 2 at 1:30 p.m. at All Saints. All World War I veterans and their wives are invited. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

M.C. students on Spring break

If you see a lot of school-age children on the streets or at the beaches during school hours next week, don't worry, they aren't skipping school.

Next week, Monday, March 31 through Friday, April 4, all Martin County Public school students will be out of school for their Spring Break.

Motorists are urged to keep a watchful eye for school children during all hours of the days they'll be out of school.

Beau Rivage hears safety

Beau Rivage East Assoc. held its regular monthly business meeting March 18, at Langford Club House. Lt. Scott of the Martin County Sheriff's Department was the speaker and his topic was "home safety and self protection", which was very informative.

Buck Rogers at library

On Saturday, April 5 from 10 to 12 noon there will be a special showing of "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century". For two fun-packed hours all children are invited to share an adventure with Buck Rogers and also see 3 all-time favorite Popeye cartoons. As always, admission is free.

Venture Three

BY VIRGINIA SHINSKE

The faithful workers of our nearly finished Rec. Hall, with their wives, were honored at a lovely Cocktail Party and Sit-down Dinner at the Recreation Center. The affair was hosted by Gloria and Derwood Dickinson, Pat and Larry Belt and Jackie and Al Phillips. The tables were attractively decorated and set with flatware and a scrumptious beef dinner was served. Our annex is being built by volunteer labor, so when you see a man with a black and blue thumb, you can be sure he is one of the fellows who put the roof on!!!

From Truro, Nova Scotia, Canada, Don and Joyce Mitchell have been pending some time visiting with Scotty and Chris Fair. Don is a director of the Elementary Training in the Truro School System. Our tropical Island climate is sure different from Nova Scotia and they both enjoyed the warm waters and sandy ocean beaches while here.

Our Beautification Program is moving forward with great strides. The Palm trees that have been planted really look lovely and have made the area around the Mrina much more attractive.

Tuesday mornings the Recreation Committee can be seen plotting our social activities. They put their heads together and come up with some pretty good ideas for pleasurable happenings. Using that "gray matter" are Joe and Dorothy Huston who together with Bud and Lou Prew have been co-chairmen this season. Treasurer is Dorothy Seeley, busy totaling the funds collected through the efforts of this group which go into the building fund. Scribbling her notes taken at each meeting is Phyllis Clark, the secretary. The 1st big bash was Saturdays Beer Blast. A Joint affair with Holiday Out, whose members Lena Black, Dick Nourse and Henry Bischoff worked hard on it with us of Venture Three. Everyone is welcome to attend the meetings at the Rec. Hall on Tuesday mornings at 10.

Wednesday Crafts classes and the Art Classes are still in session.

We regret to hear of the death of Violet Norton's father in Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Violet and husband Jack traveled to Montreal when notified of his failing health, and were there with the family at the time of his demise. We of Venture Three extend our condolences to the family at this time. Violet and Jack brought her mother, Mrs. McFadden back with them for a stay in the warmer climate.

Dorothy and John Oberle were with us for the winter months and have now returned to their home in Westchester, Penn. We will look for them again next winter. Orliff and Beverley McFaul of Bowmanville, Ontario, Canada have now settled into their park trailer and will be with us each winter in St. Lucie. Living on the Chesapeak Bay, Donald and Barbara Eccard of Huntington, Md. were spending their weeks holiday with Barbara's parents the Noah Kefauvers. Allen and wife Joan Griffin of Essex, Conn. recently purchased a lot in St. Lucie. He is the nephew of Mary Ahearne. Allen is a consultant for the IBM and works out of the Hartford office. Gwen and John Scott of Leaskdale, Ont. are enjoying their winter escape from Canada with Gwen's parents Ross and Marion Harrison. David and Linda Hay with Justin 4, of Clinton, J.J. spent 2 weeks with Linda's family Nel and Sue Sergent. Having a short vacation with their family, Dr. and Mrs. Soulsby were Charles and Ann Wright of St. Albans W. Virginia. Charles is with Union Carbide Corp. and Ann is an anesthetist with Thomas Memorial Hospital.

Monday Sewing Class is still in session with new techniques in the handling of knits being taught. Lee Scarpula, Lila Torregrossa and Millie Capra are but a few now learning to make a tab neckline top.

Pot luck dinners are well attended Monday evenings at 6 o'clock. The excellent fried chicken dinner was enjoyed by many this past week. Hosting the dinner were Betty Davis, Helen Allen and Louise Nimro. Next week's entree is "Yankee" Pot Roast and will be hosted by Ruth and Bill Hennessey, Annabelle and Bob Sandbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Hardesty. It promises to be something special. The Hennessey's are really expert in the field of culinary endeavor.

We are going to miss Mae and Earl Eisenhard who have sold their place here in St. Lucie and are relocating in Pine Lake Village. We hope you come back for many visits with your friends and neighbors.

Our Annual Art Show was enjoyed by many viewers, Saturday last. Some of our talented residents who exhibited were: Marge Owen, Gail Lawson, Ruth Reimington, Jan Dedaker and Ethel Stem. (Yours truly bought Jan's Indian Chieftain Geronimo.) The exhibitors were all registered members of the Adult Continuing Education Art Classes from Indian River Community College under the tutorship of Mrs. Kassy Taylor.

"Bowling for fun" had many absentees this week, and were greatly missed. However they had a star in their midst. Lila Torregrossa rolled a 530 series with games of 187, 189 and 154. Nice going Lila, keep it up.

A distinguished guest in the Park recently was Mayor Walter W. Falck of the City of Tamarac. Mr. Falck and wife Valta were guests of Laureda and Noah Kefauver, one afternoon renewing their friendship of many years. The city of Tamarac is in Broward County, Fl. with a population of about 30,000 and is 10 miles from the Atlantic ocean and 115 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. Neighboring communities are Pompano Beach and Ft. Lauderdale. Scores of lakes and 45 miles of canals are within the limits of the 11.6 square miles of Tamarac.

This week's Pool Champs were Jack Joseph and Jack Clark. Others competing were John Campbell, Ken Horton, Joe Goodwin, George Sterling, Andy Wilson, Ben Benson, Harold Seelye, Floyd Reynolds and Gene Glaze.

Tuesday Evening Card Club is attracting a good attendance. This week there were three tables of Bridge and two tables of Crazy 8's. Some of the regulars at these tables are: Kenny Horton, Clyde Bonar, Johnnie Campbell, Derwood Dickinson, Dick Conklin, Keith Howden, Evelyn Seban, Rose Curth, Mary Spisak, Phyllis Clark, Marge Steiler, Louise Nimro, Gerry Benson and Bette Joseph. Jack Clark alternates between bridge and crazy 8's. The bridge regulars have been Fran Potter, Doris Day, Ben Benson, Bill and Ruth Remington, Betty and Conrad Alberding, Chris and Scotty Fair and Jack Scott.

Wednesday night Bingo was hosted by Jack and Phyllis Clark, Margaret and Keith Howden and Evie and Dick Shertzer. It was well attended by many of our regulars. One table had a small yarn doggie for a mascot and lo and behold that table had nine winners!!

Bond finishes a dissapointing 11th

BY BOB FRYER

Over the years, Rusty Bond has taken his share of lumps in the world of auto racing.

Last Saturday's 12 Hours of Sebring event was no exception.

He and co-drivers Bill Ferran of Daytona and Jack Refenning of Pompano drove Ferran's Porsche Carrera to a disappointing 11th in class, 29th overall finish at the endurance race.

Considering that there were 79 cars entered in the 28th running of America's oldest professional auto race, there were many more drivers who fared worse than Bond and his co-drivers but there were who did better.

But there were probably few who were any more frustrated than Bond.

That frustration stems from too many times of having the brass ring of racing appear to be within his grasp, only to have it dangle just beyond his reach.

Had his expectations of a good finish not been so high, his disappointment may not have been so great. But when the race was drawing to a close, it was obvious he was not pleased with the string of break-downs that kept them out of the money. "I should have just come to the race as a spectator. Then I could have been over there with the crowd, drinking a beer instead of sitting here waiting for it to end," he said.

Points toward the International Motor Sports Association's seasonal driver's rankings, as well as cash prizes, were awarded to the top 10 teams in each of the three IMSA classes of cars competing in the race. By finishing 11th, the get no points and very little cash.

That's a too familiar happening for Bond. A few years back, when cash was awarded at the end of the IMSA season to the top two drivers in his class, Bond finished third. The next year the top three drivers were paid and Bond finished fourth. Last year they paid the top 10 drivers and Bond finished the season in 11th place, thanks to a quirk in the rules that was applied in his case, but was not applied in a subsequent race that began the 1980 season.

That doesn't mean Bond hasn't, on occasion, taken a firm hold on that brass ring. Last year at Sebring he won his class, and he's also won his class at the 24 Hours of Daytona. But those past victories didn't seem to do much to bolster his spirits this year at Sebring.

When the race began, the team's hopes for their number 60 Porsche Carrera were high. The car had run well in practice and the engine that Bond built seemed strong.

The engine remained strong throughout the race, but a host of other problems plagued the Porsche.

First, the car developed a flat tire. That took two and a half minutes in the pits to replace. Then the front bumper came loose and began dragging on the track. Bond pitted and the bumper was ripped off.

By the second hour of the race, the team had moved from a starting position of 10th in class and 31st overall to ninth in class and 27th overall. But that was to be as high as the car was to make it in the standings.

An ignitor rotor broke, was fixed enough to get the car back to the pits, then the pit crew had to track down a new one and insert it.

At the four hour mark the team was in 18th place in class and 42nd overall, but by the seventh hour, they had [illegible] up 13th in class, 30th overall.

A short time before dark, the Carrera's rear axle broke, requiring about an hour in the pits for replacement. Then, after dark, the distributor rotor broke again. Refenning had to fix it on the track in the dark, then limp into the pits for a new rotor.

In spite of those problems, the team was in 11th place in class and 27th overall at the end of the 11 hour mark. But the rear axle again broke and the team sat out most of the final hour of the race. However, in order to claim their entry fee by being listed as still running at the end of the race, Ferran hopped in the car a few minutes before the race ended and limped around the track for one last lap.

Though the finish for the number 60 Porsche team was disappointing, credit should be given to pit crew members Eugene Rathgeber, Glenn (Scoop) White and John King for keeping the car running as long as it did.

The overall winners of the race were Dick Barbour and John Fitzpatrick in a twin turbo Porsche 935. In the GTO class, which Bond competed in, Bob Tullius and Bill Adam drove a TR-8 to a surprising victory, finishing sixth overall. In the small chgsme, GTU, class, the winners were Roger Mandeville, Jim Downing and Brad Frisselle in a Mazda RS-7.

The event was marred by the first fatality in the history of IMSA racing when Manuel Quintana, 48, of Key Biscayne, died as a result of a crash during the Friday qualifying session. His Porsche went off the course while he was avoiding another car. It struck a dirt embankment and rolled several times.

In a 200 kilometer race for small cars running on street radial tires on Friday afternoon, Jensen Beach race driver Ren Tilton piloted his Mazda RS-2 to a 20th place finish among a field of 56 cars.

It was the first race for Tilton in his newly acquired Mazda, and he said the car had no mechanical problems. "Mike Meyer used my door for brakes in the hairpin turn once, but it didn't cause too much damage," Tilton said.

When asked if there were any other problems, he replied, "No, except that the car was just too slow."

Tennis - the good life

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

Tennis: the good life. Lots of fun, exercise, world travel, sightseeing, and meeting lots of nice people.

If you start young and play lots of tournaments, you can have something to carry you all through life. That something is the ability to play well enough to receive a scholarship to college. Weekend tournaments all through life, social and business opportunities, and maybe you would like to make your livelihood through tennis a dozen different related ways; or what I enjoy the most, living like a retired millionaire, being out in the sun and playing tennis almost every day.

If you happened to have that little bit of extra ability in tennis, today you can play for the big bucks. It's almost sacrilgious the amount of money today's top men and women receive for just knocking a little yellow ball back and forth across a net.

Besides the prize money that amounts to millions for the top stars, the endorsements, commercials, personal appearances and exhibitions are astronomical. One example: Bjorn Borg has been paid over $100,000 a year to advertise a suit he never wears, and drinks he doesn't drink. But, I think his outfit takes the cake.

The headband he wears while playing is worth $25,000, the shoes another $25,000, the Fila outfit $50,000, a patch on the sleeve, $25,000, and his racket $50,000 in America from Bancroft, and about the same for using Donnay in Europe.

You may have noticed a blanked out model racket Borg used in winning the Pepsi Grand Slam at Boca West recently. I saw it in the arms of my old friend Lennart Bergelund. Borg's coach, over a month ago when I played at Turnberry Isle, where Borg has a condominium. I noticed that it was a Donnay (blacked out), which leads me to believe his Bancroft contract has expired. Could he be asking more money?

The list of endorsements is much too long to list here, but it includes cars, boats and aftershave lotions to mention a few. Anyway you young fellas can dream about getting that good and making about $2 million a year.

You girls can start practicing harder when you think that Chris Evert Lloyd will probably make over a half million bucks without playing tournaments this year.

Way down the line there are about 10 different levels of tournament play to give a lot of tennis players a chance to travel around the world, have a great time, and also make some big bucks. Last Sunday Stan Smith won the German Championship, and Sandy Mayer won the championship in another European country, while about ten more tournaments were being decided right here in the U.S.A.

Then after you have seen the world you can turn to club manager, racket stringer, court maintenance, court building, tennis equipment salesman, tennis coach at schools or Director of Tennis at a race club.

You can start making plans right now for the local scene. June 21 will be the Lipton Tea Mixed Doubles Championships at Indian River Plantation. The winners can go on to district and regional tournaments and eventually the U.S. Open. This is for local players. Then the next weekend at I.R.R. will be the 4th annual Martin County Championships in conjunction with National Tennis Week, including a free tennis clinic for everyone.

Tennis the good life, let's have a tennis party everyone.

Walker and Bobbitt capture Plantation championships

Don Walker came from behind while Jane Bobbitt led from start to finish to capture the 1980 men's and women's President's Cup golf titles this week at Indian River Plantation.

Playing under the Stableford scoring system which awards one, two and three points for net bogeys, pars and birdies, respectively, Walker rallied for 40 points over the final 18 holes to edge runnerup Paul Demario in the two day, 36 hole event. Walker, who had been tied for second after 18 holes, wound up with a final score of 78, two points ahead of Demario.

In women's play, Mrs. Bobbitt opened the tourney with three straight net birdies and was never headed. She earned 41 points the first time around the Plantation course and added 39 the second day for a total of 80, two ahead of second place Alotha Kelly and four in front of third place Yvonne Hiler who had 76.

Third place for the Plantation's men's President's Cup was a tie between John Garrity and Al Mason who was the leader after 18 holes. Garrity had 35-39 for 74 points while Mason came on rounds of 39-35. The Plantation's 1979 President's Cup winner, Dick Massey, had to settle for fifth place this year on a score of 73.

Postal reduction

The next step in reduction of services in the face of increasing costs is the elimination of Saturday mail delivery.

The Postal Service, which has moved quickly to raise the price of mail, while slowing delivery and curtailing service, wonders where it all will end.

So do we.

The price of mailing from one point to another has increased mainly due to the failure of the people who run the show to meet competition.

Alternate delivery systems have greatly reduced the number of customers who use the mails. They can do it more efficently and at less cost.

The reduced mail flow cuts into postal revenue. That increases the loss.

Perhaps it is time to go back to the drawing board. The political operation of the post office had been thought to be bad. Now the Congress has little say in that operation, and the public has lost someone who would listen to complaints.

And services decline, and decline.

Dick Campbell

Gloom and doom... boom

The people seem to be taking the bit in their teeth, biting the bullet, and not giving too much of a damn what happens.

It is strange, to say the least.

Times are tough, and are going to get tougher before the economic situation straightens out. Yet, the people do not really seem to care.

Americans do not like belt-tightening. But, they are doing it. The change has already been seen in the gasoline crisis. The people just aren't driving as much. Trips to the store are being carefully planned.

Just last week, I had to drive to Stuart to pick up some printing. Before I got out of the door to the office I had seven stops on my list, all coming from different parts of the office.

In thinking it over, I found that I had accepted the many errands without so much as a qualm. My mind was already programmed to economy.

Previously, three or four trips would have been needed to do what needed to be done. It took only a half hour longer. It saved gasoline.

Here lately, I have been trying to cut down on the number of trips to the gas station. Several weeks ago, I was on my way to work at seven in the morning, and ran out of gas in the intersection of SR 707 and Sewall's Point Road, right at the Crossroads. That was cutting it too close, but I still pulled into the station last week and took eight tenths of a gallon less than a full tank.

The people are doing the same thing. Last month the state was well over ten percent in reduced fuel use. The government asked Florida to save seven percent.

Taking the cutbacks good-naturedly, the people seem to have decided to cut back the wild spending we have gone through over the past four years.

No matter how gloomy the forecast, it seemed that everyone was going crazy with credit cards and mortgages. High interest rates didn't seem to stop anyone from buying, buying, buying.

It is different now. Tight money, even higher rates for that money, and the forecast of a depression (not a recession) has the people making their own cutbacks. While they seem not concerned, at least they are conserving and saving.

The future holds little hope for the rest of this year and 1981.

University of Florida researchers say that we will probably see unemployment move from 6.4 percent now to 8.1 percent in 1981. Population growth in the state will move from 2.7 percent to 1.7 percent in 1981, which means fewer homes built, a projected 30.8 percent decline.

The prime rate is projected to peak at 21 percent in 1981, with mortgage rates between 14.5 and 16 percent. That fuels projections of a 48.8 percent decline in housing starts in 1980.

The tourist industry in Jensen Beach will not be untouched, for the April-May-June period this year projects a 2.8 percent decline.

I talked with an advertising executive last weekend. He asked if there had been any cutbacks in advertising among our major accounts. We haven't experienced any, but we have noticed a nervousness among some accounts as to the future. They are talking budget, and no expansion beyond what has been budgeted.

However, people must have some where to live, and someone is going to build and sell those homes that they will buy. People must eat, and someone must sell the food they buy to do so.

I look to the attitude of the people. They act like they don't really care, but they do. Their own conservation methods, probably a result of their subliminal concern, are helping our situation.

All of the doom and gloom written above deals with the marginal businesses. In a period of affluence, every carpenter becomes a contractor. It is the soundly financed merchandising businesses that will survive. They will make their own boom.

All the statistics of universities put together cannot stop the people who want to do business, and will fight, claw and scratch to sell their services and wares to those who want to buy.

After all, the professional doom gloomers have been predicting a recession since early 1979.

So, while we respect the predictions of others, we look for a continued sound, planned growth in our communities and our business. Plus, we're keeping our fingers crossed.

Bikers take care

Recently, a senior citizen was riding his bike on the bike path along East Ocean Blvd. in Stuart. He approached an intersection where a motorist was waiting to move into traffice from a side street.

The bicyclist started in front of the auto just as an opening appeared in traffic.

The driver of the auto, seeing the opening, drove right into the bicycle. Luckily, except for a damaged bike and some bruises, the biker was not seriously injured.

Investigating police told the biker that the auto had the right-of-way at an intersection.

The state uniform traffic control code specifies that "Every pedestrian crossing a roadway...at an intersection shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles upon the roadway."

The biker had thought he had the right-of-way, being on a bike path.

As more and more bike paths are constructed to make jogging and biking more safe, those who use the paths would do well to know the law. The motorists has the right-of-way.

It will take care on both sides, by the motorist and by the cyclist.

We realize, and hope others do, that any opening into traffice on East Ocean Blvd is a god-send. Even more care then should be taken.

A great ball

The 1980 Martin Memorial Hospital Ball did the job. The ball committee raised $125,000 for hospital equipment in the excellent fund drive that was held.

We are proud that the people of Martin and St. Lucie Counties came out for their social and financial support of the great Martin Memorial Hospital Ball. The financial reward to the hospital means better medical care.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Thank you for the opportunity to express my appreciation to all of those who helped to make the Clerk's exhibit at the Martin County Fair so very successful.

It was my great pleasure to find that fairgoers were even more receptive to the information provided about the services of the Clerk of the Circuit Court and the history of Martin County than I had anticipated. With the contributions of time, materials and exhibits relating to our Martin County heritage -- our booth became a true community effort.

Bless you all.

Sisters under the skin

Sisters are wonderful. You don't really begin to appreciate how wonderful until you've had 'em awhile. They, like nothing else, improve with age.

And age is one thing you can't fool them with. They know to the day and hour just how much older or younger you are than they. The facts are embedded in their memory, and the pecking order changeth not.

All had many occasions to appreciate my sisters over the years since we all grew up and married. But we'd all gone our separate ways long since, and had little occasion for reunions. Oldest sister Jeanne, wife of a Sinclair Oil executive, was, it seemed, always on the move, as was younger sister Peg, Wife of a sweet guy who spent 18 years with Time-Life, was all over the map--New York City, Denver, Cele., Chicago, Lousiana.

My branch of the family was equally nomadic--jumping about from Florida to Washington, to upper Pennsylvania and New York to Tennessee. The only constant was sister Ruth Anne, who with her late husband John sat in one place -- Addison, N.Y. for 43 years to build a solid business and equally solid family. They were the Mohammed to which the mountain came, whenever we could.

Of course, over those years, two or three of us would get together occasionally, sometimes for a few days, sometimes over more protracted lengths of time. (Most notably the four years we lived in Addison, a period peppered with memories of kids disappearing into snowbanks and tying young'uns together to lead them out of a flood up to Ruth Anne's house.)

But until last summer, when sister Jeanne came over to nurse me back to health, it had been 20 years since we'd had any kind of an opportunity to get to know each other except through letters and random zip-through drop-ins. And the four of us still hadn't reunited, with the exception of the sad, brief time of our mother's death.

So I will have to mark in my diary as the high point of two decades the brief few days earlier this month when my little house on Indian River Drive turned into a dorm for the sisters four. Peg had flown east from California, joined Jeanne and Ruth Anne in St. Petersburg, and made the trip across the state to see me.

With us all together, everything suddenly fell into its proper perspective. Jeanne, the oldest, with whom I had fought, was jealous of because she was beautiful and I was an ugly little kid--Ruth Anne, next in line and always the peacemaker, the buffer between antagonists, and Peg, who was born a little lady of indeterminate age and never stopped being. And then there was I, who was always the bad kid rebellious to the core.

Though time had changed us all, suddenly the wonderful sense of kinship, of belonging to each other bloomed fresh and new, and the world was young again. It was not so much what we said to each other that counted--it was the sense of belonging to each other, of having shared the same lovely mother, the same memories. It was an experience I wouldn't have traded for pearls.

One of the nicest parts of it was our all-having luncheon at the Outrigger with my spiritually-adoptive sister, Peggy Meissner as our host. I'd raved to them all about Peggy M., and before they left, my sisters had adopted her too.

Their stay was too short, of course, but after that get-together, I'll never feel alone again. It will remain a shining gem in my diadem of memories.

Another Big Event of the Month for March was a delightful hiatus with my other adoptive sister, Eve Caldwell, in Pompano Beach. It was particularly eventful for me because I discovered to my relief that the Shades of good music have not packed up their sax-cases and moved to that Big Ballroom in the Sky, as I had been suspecting they had.

Eve, poor gal, only recently underwent a cataract operation, which has severely inhibited her wanderlust, and Eve is a gourmet who loves to gallop. Hence, when I arrived on the scene, I found her inflicted with a giant-sized case of cabin fever.

The shopping-binge part of her malaise was easily taken care of--there are enough stores in Pompano-Lauderdale area to keep a marathoner on the move for months at a time. But choosing dining-out places is a different matter. True, they're small to wall-to-wall up and down U.S. 1, yet the secret is packing good ones you can get out of without hocking your Cadillac to up the waiter. Dining can be costly to the unwary.

I picked up the entertainment guide for some cues, and lo, I spotted a familiar name, a rare occurrence in these days of disco. In my random visits to Pompano in the past few years, all the names I'd known from my night-life writing had disappeared from the map.

But here, as big as life, was one I knew--Flip Phillips, who, I was informed had a quartet at the Beowulf. The last time I'd seen Flip he was playing the Beach Club with Jack Teagarden, while Wee Bonnie Baker was trilling in another of its rooms.

The Beowulf evening proved a thorough success. Our food was excellent, the service perfect.

It was also cheering to note to see great jazz being properly appreciated. Flip's tenor sax has lost none of its magic, and his bass and drummer gave one of the finest renditions of "Big Noise from Winnetka" I've heard since Krupa.

It was also nice to be reminded we don't get older, we just get better, if we play it right.

sri sri sri

Here at home, the local entertainment scene is beginning to loom bright again. Nick Hilditch tells me. As you know, his Hilltop House was wiped out by Hurricane David, and has been stymied in getting back into shape because of insurance problems.

But at long last, Nick is setting a date for re-opening. He'll have a big reopening party by summer, he promises me.

All I can say is hurray. The Hilltop, with its ever-excellent quality and hospitality, has been missed. We can't wait to welcome it back on the divinely dependable dining scene.

Bridge for sale

Spring is here, the snowbirds are beginning to leave, and the kids will be out of school before you know it.

What all that means for many people is it's time for start planning a vacation.

Over here in the good old USA, the big shots and the working stiffs who have many years in with a firm are about the only ones who get three, maybe even four weeks off a year. For most folks in America, the norm is about two weeks.

As I'm not a big shot and have never worked for the same employer more than five years, I've never gotten more than two weeks of vacation per year. I've even gone a couple of years with no vacation.

I did take about nine months off one year, after saving up for my "retirement" for more than a year before that. Of course, my rent back then, for oceanside living, was $50 a month--a fact I'm most proud to glost about.

But with the inflation rate approaching 20 percent, who can save anymore? Indeed, when folks do get their paltry two weeks off per year, a lot of them can't afford to go anywhere. And if they go anyway, then they have to worry not only about the price of gas, but the availability of it.

Still, if I could have it, I'd sure take more than two weeks off. Fifty weeks to every two off just isn't the sort of mathematical equation I go for. I suspect a lot of other people don't feel it adds up right either.

With two week vacations, you spend the first few days winding down from all the extra work you put in to leave things in order before you left, and you spend the last few days thinking about the tasks that lie ahead when you have to go back to work. That leaves about one week to yourself to rest, sightsee, or do as you please. But many folks don't even get a week to themselves as they find their vacation time taken up with those odds and end repair jobs that they haven't had time to do during their weeks of work.

When I retired for nine months, a lot of people asked if I got bored and if I wished at times I could be busy at work. My answer was an emphatic "No." I never found enough time in the day to do the things I wanted to. I always had some sort of handyman's project going, even though I'm not much of a handyman.

If I wasn't busy with that, I was busy with a host of other things which I felt beneficial to my being, whether that was marveling at the latest change of the ocean, reading a good book, visiting with friends, or just being by myself and contemplating life.

I learned a lot about myself, and for several months of my retirement, I traveled 13,000 miles around the country and learned a lot about it.

Had I waited until the normal retirement age, I wouldn't have been able to do many of the things I did nor learned some pretty valuable lessons (though not in a monetary sense) that I'm glad I learned relatively early in life.

A two week vacation wouldn't have done that for me either.

That's why I wish we could copy the Europeans when it comes to vacations, or even better than and take two months off a year.

In fact, what's wrong with 50 weeks off, two weeks on?

Now, all I've got to do is talk my boss into a bit of a pay raise to finance such a plan.

And if I can accomplish that, I just may quit this newspaper business and spend 364 days of the year on vacation. On the other day of the year, I'll sell the Brooklyn Bridge.

Trout cooperative; Blues elusive

The trout are running big and fast in the Indian River, and a few blues are showing up in the surf, our local experts tell us. But for the most part, it's beginning to look as if the baitfish have decided its too cold to these parts and have gone south to Miami for their annual spring vacation.

Chuck, at the bait box, says reports of big schools of blues have been spotted out in the deep water, as well as a lot of mackerel. And one lucky fisherman came in with a 25-pound snook.

"The snook right now seem to be liking it better up-river toward Fort Pierce," Chuck said. "We're hoping they'll be coming down this way soon."

Dave Lamb, at Jensen Bait and Tackle, also says the snook are few and far between these days. His only lucky customer was Dave Smid, who brought in a 19½ pound snook off the 25-cent bridge, on a Red Tail Hawk.

Others at Dave's docks are: Leighton Ranny, 16 blues to three pounds, out of the surf on cut mackerel; Mark Hulsbeck, a seven and three-quarter pound trout on live shrimp, out of the river; , Richard Littrell, a seven pound trout on live shrimp out of the river; Charlie Cook, one 7 and a quarter pound trout and four others up to three pounds, out of the river on shrimp; Rita Worcester, a six pound drum on shrimp, off the causeway.

Joe and Jeff Isniert and Dave came in with nine trout up tonight pounds, a flounder and a blue on shrimp out of the river. Dave went back out the next night and caught seven more trout up to five pounds.

MORTGAGING OUT

QUESTION: A few weeks ago I heard a conversation between a couple of real estate men in which one of the participants used the term "mortgaging out." I think I have an idea of what this means, but would you give me your definition of mortgaging out?

ANSWER: When the term mortgaging out is used, it generally refers to obtaining 100 percent financing for a real estate acquisition or development so that the owner does not have to put up any cash equity.

Under normal circumstances, 100 percent financing is difficult to obtain unless a seller is highly motivated (or desperate) to sell his property. Financing equal to 100 percent of the cost is sometimes obtained in the case of development or new construction, because the loan-to-value ratio of permanent financing is calculated on the basis of value of the completed property, which, if the development is properly conceived, will be substantially above the cost of the construction.

When 100 percent financing is obtained in connection with the acquisition of an already developed property, it is normally accomplished through a combination of senior and junior mortgages, with an institutional first mortgage making up the largest percent of the financing, and with the balance being taken in a junior second mortgage (sometimes third mortgage) taken back by the seller of the property.

Because the seller does not have to advance any hard dollars, and because he may be highly motivated to dispose of his property, he will often take back the purchase money mortgage--sometimes even up to 100 percent of the purchase price.

Mrs. Thau of Syracuse, N.Y. and Venture Three on Hutchinson Island, graduated from Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the Peabody School of Music in Nashville, Tennessee. She was also soprano soloist for 28 years at the McKendree Methodist Church in Nashville. Mrs. Thau is a retired Music Education teacher from the Nashville Public Schools.

Employee dies in accident at Winn Dixie last Wednesday

An accident at the Winn Dixie store in Jensen Beach early last Wednesday, March 19, claimed the life of a store employee when he was pinned between a truck and the store's loading dock.

The accident occurred at 5:05 a.m. at the rear of the store. Employee Robert Lee Stoudemire, 24, of 819 Bayou Ave., Stuart, walked behind a tractor-trailer truck as driver Jack Lee Bennett, 34, of Pompano was backing it to the loading dock.

Florida Highway Patrol Troopers J. A. Slay and Stanle Ritter report Bennett did not see Stoudemire and that he was pinned between the truck and the store.

Stoudemire was rushed to Martin Memorial Hospital and died there later Wednesday morning.

No charges were filed.

Suit against town set for trial in July

A ruling by Circuit Judge L.B. Vocelle last week has cleared the way for a trial in July of a lawsuit filed against the Town of Sewall's Point by Mrs. Dagney Jochem of Sewall's Point.

In October, 1977, Mrs. Jochem's car was struck in the rear-end by a Sewall's Point police car driven by officer Earl Pentel.

Mrs. Jochem was ticketed by Pentel for speeding, and she alledges that the ticket was given to cover himself for running into her car. She has filed suit alledging malicious prosecution, false imprisonment and negligence.

Motions by the plaintiff and defendant attorneys to have judge Vocelle grant a summary judgment in the case were denied last week, and the case was set as first on the court trial docket for July.

Decorated egg display

Until recently, decorated eggs only appeared at Easter time. The egg has long been a symbol of new life, even the ancients decorated and exchanged eggs.

Carl Faberge, a Frenchman of Huguenot origin, organized a team of craftsmen of unique abilities who operated at the Imperial Russian Court and created jeweled Easter eggs, which he presented to the Imperial family every year.

A local resident, Betty Jones of Venture Harbour is the creator of the exquisite examples of the art of eggery now on display at the Martin County Public Library. This exhibit will be on display until April 7.

Rio cards set April 1

A card party was held at the Rio Civic Club on Tuesday, March 18, with a large group in attendance.

The table prizes were won by Rena Parker, Freda Schlimm, Grace Lewis, Maddie Lillie, Millie Duval, Jo Bowen, Susan Deiner, Mary Grant, Gen. Heasley, Ellen Failing, Helen White, Aida Burgoyne, Frances Rudenbeka and Helen Schemer.

The hostesses were: Dorothy Mercer, Hazel Houghton and Maddie Lillie.

The next card party will be on Tuesday, April 1 at 1 p.m. All are welcome.

A bake sale will be held at the clubhouse on Sat. March 29, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. This will be followed with bingo at 1 p.m.

Arts group meets March 27

The Arts Advisory Committee of Martin Co will hold its March meeting in the County School Offices, 500 E. Ocean Blvd on March 27, at 10 a.m. This meeting is open to all those interested in the progress of the building of the community center for the performing and visual arts.

This facility will eventually be used by all groups, associations, institutions and citizens of the area. The concept has been approved by the Martin County commissioners and the Board of Education.

The ultimate plan for the center will provide rooms for teaching and exhibiting Fine Arts, work rooms for creative work in Fine Arts, a theater with a seating capacity for 1500 people, with stage, public meeting rooms and galleries for the discussion and display of the Arts.

At this meeting a prominent member of the community will speak regarding future plans for the center. For further information call, Helen Shea Wells, 229-1281.

Florida flora class planned

A new class in The Flora of South Florida will be offered through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center starting 7 p.m. Monday, April 14. The 10-week course will meet in room 4 of the Environmental Studies Center.

Instructing the course will be Gary Pettit, head of the Biology Department of Florida Institute of Technology's Jensen Beach campus.

The new class will consider the plant communities found in South Florida. The evening lectures will be illustrated with films and color slides. At least two week-end field trips are planned.

Registration is limited to 30 participants and may be completed on the first night of the class. Those wishing to pre-register may do so by calling Jay Jarrett at 334-1283 weekday afternoons.

Yoga classes are scheduled

Another in the popular series of Yoga Classes has been scheduled for Monday and Friday mornings at the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach.

Residents wishing to improve their health and physical fitness are invited to join either or both classes starting April 7 and 11 respectively. Each class will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Both men and women are welcome. Instructor Pat Thuman teaches the Hatha Yoga method and emphasizes proper breathing and relaxation for both mental and physical well-being. This class is one of many offered through the facilities of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center.

Registration may be accomplished at the first class meeting or in advance by calling Jay Jarrett at 334-1283.

Art show is at First Fed

The Jensen Beach Art League will present an Art Show on Sunday, March 26, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Location will be the parking lot on the river, opposite the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Jensen Beach.

Riverside Village

Sunday night a surprise 75th birthday party was held at the club house for Carl McClintock by his family. Carl had made the trip to West Palm airport to meet his daughter, Dora (Mrs. CharlesVicol) of Ashtabula, Ohio. There he was surprised to see his two sisters Laura (Mrs. John Williams) of Los Angeles, California, and Lorna (Mrs. Jack Dodd) of Ashtabula, Ohio, and his daughter, Mrs. Patricia Chapin of Chulavista, Calif.

Early Sunday evening an invitation appeared on the bulletin board for friends of Lena and Carl to meet their family. Over 30 Riverside residents of the park enjoyed meeting Carl's family. His grandson, Russell Chapin, who is with the Air Force in Germany, arrived with his friend, Joe (sorry, Joe, I didn't get your last name) to surprise his grand-dad. Carl just beamed to see his family and friends there to share his beautiful birthday cake and the day with him. His niece, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Lepke and four-and-a-half month old daughter, Tiffany, of Margate, Florida were also there. HAPPY 75th, CARL! And, many, many, more!

Tuesday night cover all was won by Betty Frantz. Leah Morrison won on Friday night.

Where were all the card players Saturday night? Would another night during the week be better? Your comments, please.

Hobby hostesses on Monday were Fray and Marion. Hobby ladies are planning a picnic for March 31st.

Carl and Lena are planning to do nothing more than rest in the coming week.

Romeo and Mary Richer have had company from home this past week. Mary's brother and his wife, Joe and Mary Morris, and their son, Joe, who attends the University of Miami, enjoyed the beautiful weather and the attractions of Florida.

Betty & Ivan Everingham of Lyonsia, Mich. along with Betty's sister Mrs. Rhoda Stewart of Falconbridge, Ontario have been enjoying a six week vacation at their Florida Home at 455 N. Benita Drive.

Snowbirds are heading north

The birds are singing, the skies are blue, the breezes are balmy and now our friends and neighbors are leaving us for miserable northern weather. Twenty three left last week to make an estimated total of 42, but for security reason, no names are mentioned; however, names can be personally supplied if there is a need.

It looks as though it pays to advertise, as last Friday there were 40 waiting for doors to open at the Langford Park Blood Pressure Clinic and 60 more came in later. However, with 2 nurses and a clerk, there was only a short wait, just long enough to get acquainted with your neighbor. Next clinic, Fri. April 18, 9 to 11 a.m. at Langford Fieldhouse.

Rebel came home to Anchorage Marina, 2 p.m. Sun. Mar. 16, amidst the booming of cannons, whistles of boats and cheers of many friends (see last week's Mirror for details). Now, that Keith and Robin Creager, (the crew) are back safe from around the Horn of South American; Robin's grandparents, the Mertz of Miracle Way can look forward to many interesting stories and the OBPers to a slide show of their adventures.

PARK EVENTS

SQUARE DANCERS at 7:30 p.m. Thurs. Mar. 20, again enjoyed the calling of Jack Hosken, and although they never did learn the "Petticoat Chain', the beginner did get a chance to perfect: the Teacup Chain; Make me a Column; and Track II during a workshop session. There will be another dance Thurs. March 27, and it's only $2.50 per couple, so let's have a big turnout says Ed Pettit, to keep the OBPers dancing right at home thereby saving gas $$$$.

CAMERA CLUB, had a 'dim-dandy' annual dinner, Tues. Mar. 18, but pres. Nina Zigelhofer was on 'pins' 'n' needles' for awhile, as 120 tickets had been sold, 120 quarters of chicken had been baked and 120 places were set up. Then, there was a huge sign of relief, when it all came out exactly even. There were gorgeous bouquets on each table, the food was great and there were seconds on salads and deserts, so soon it was entertainment time.

While tables were being cleared away, Ralph Ortt led the singing, with Ruby Wren playing the ol' favorites as requested. Then, president Nina, thanked all the retiring officers and gave them kisses (candy), which she had personally supplied along with the flowers, so Nina deserved many thanks for all her efforts during the past 2 years in making the club a great park feature.

The members after seeing a Cape Cod movie on Mar. 25, will get a chance to wind up the season, April 1, with movies on the 'Rockies' and 'Come Golf with me'. Finally, new president Fran Gum will get her new officers together to make plans for 1980-81 season.

SHUFFLERS are winding up their season with a bang. First there was 2 instant 'pros' when Ella Lee and Ida Wisser, won fourth place, top flight, at the Central East Coast Invitation Tournament in Ft. Pierce, March 19. Also, at that time, Jud Reading was elected president and he appointed Irma Fair, his secretary. And, the Central League team continued its recent winning ways by ending the season with 3 wins for a total score of 35.

Ocean Breeze

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Second, the annual spring banquet was a great success, Fri. Mar. 21, at the Executive Inn, Ft. Pierce. At 6 p.m. the roast beef or chicken buffet dinner was served and it was great. The table had an Easter motif, as arranged by Fran Runyan and Irma Fair. There was the usual, very humorous 'roasting' by Irma Fair and Margaret Hileman and pres. Bill Jones thanked Elston Lehning for handling the dinner arrangements and all the others for their help through out the season. Lenora Viland's harmonizers entertained and led the group singing and finally, Elston Lehning was elected president for next year.

Guy Fusco is getting his Buckaroos all 'psyched-up' for the grudge fight at the 'Battle of the Sexes', Thur. and Fri. Mar. 27 & 28 and Bea Tourville says her Pettitcoaters are already to do it again, as they've taken the men, by means foul or fair, for the last 3 years. It will be a match well worth watching and the pay off, as usual will be something else again. All OBPers are urged to be there with their cameras.

CLASS are all still going strong, continuing through the month of April, even with a new Oil Painting class starting up, 9:00 a.m. Wednesday, in Clement Hall with Mrs. Helen E. Smith, instructor.

GOLFERS are probably golfing away, as they have had some great weather for it, but no 'winners' have been turned in. Must have all gone fishing? And, that brings up a point, some folks have asked why there isn't anything for the fishermen in this column. Nothing comes my way, but if info. on good catches and what's running is submitted, it will be used.

HOSPITAL

Ruth Phelphs of 14 Pepper is home and staying with her sister Esther, also; Louisa Martin of SW Sixth and Emma Mae Stewart of 21 Bay are back home.

Margaret Weeks of 25 Cocoa, after a month in Spain is laid up at her sister's in Greenfield, Mass. and her return to OBP has been postponed.

Bryon Sutcliff, of 8 NE 8th St. is in the St. John Hospital in Detroit, Mich.

Story and photos by Sally Latham

Carroll thinks big

All you have to do is walk into his elegant insurance office on 787 to begin to get an inkling of it — from the giant desk designed around the helm of an ancient paddlewheeler — to the draped walls covered with pictures and calendars bearing the grand champs from his stable.

Rick's champions are not horses, but cars — classic cars of all vintages and models, authenticated and perfected from tire cap to radiator cap, and not a few of them worth many thousands of dollars each.

Rick Carroll and his second wife Lynda have contributed generously to the community in many ways. They have opened their grand tudor-styled homeon the banks of the St. Lucie River for the American Cancer Society ball, they have been co-chairmen for the Martin Memorial Hospital Ball, and have contributed generously to many local worthy causes.

But to talk to Rick for five minutes is to find out more about Antique and Classic cars than most people learn in a lifetime.

"When I'm at home with the television on," he said, "I am also reading up on the latest on cars."

As the result of his dedication to his expensive hobby, Rick has won at least 25 national first places in national antique and classic car competitions and has taken five national awards in the past eight years.

Rick Carroll, who had been in the insurance business with his brother in Jacksonville, came to Jensen Beach in 1962, at the age of 24.

"I liked the business," he told the Mirror, "but I knew I didn't want it in Jacksonville — it was dog eat dog up there."

He was looking for a small agency in South Florida — one in a small growing community, when he discovered that Ray Lorenz had one up for sale, here in Jensen Beach. Rick, looking back, considers it one of his luckiest strokes of fate.

Rick always had an itch for antique and classic cars.

"I started with a TR3, which I used for racing. Then I found my first Model T — I got it for two stuffed swordfish and 100 bucks."

From that start, the now-famed Carroll collection numbers some 35 cars, ranging from his wife's Waverly Electric to 11 Rolls Royces, to name a few. Yes, and even 11½-month Ashley has her own car, a real live one-man racer just a little bit too big to put in your pocketbook.

Every one of the cars in the Carroll collection has its own pedigree. Ask him, and he can in minutes tell you just where every Duesenburg, Rolls, Austin, Cord, or Maxwell in the country is, who owns it, what its condition, and what restorations have been made to it. And it has been from those pedigrees, occasionally in the handwriting of the original builder, that Carroll gets the information for perfect restoration. A deviation, a hasty-dization of parts, is its own tell-tale.

Of course, with the Rolls Royces, he explains, there is no "norm" to go by from the original, because Rolls Royce didn't make cars, they built the motor and chassis only. So you'll find as many varieties as there are inventive minds. But the information about those originals is all on paper for the restoration archives.

Carroll has all his show cars in a huge attractive eight-bay garage spanning the front of his river-deep lot on Sewall's Point. The racing cars are continually being worked over in another garage in another part of the area.

The big front structure lends privacy to the Carroll manor house, a stunning large residence with step down living room, a monstrous fireplace looming over the large room, and given added character with stained glass windows.

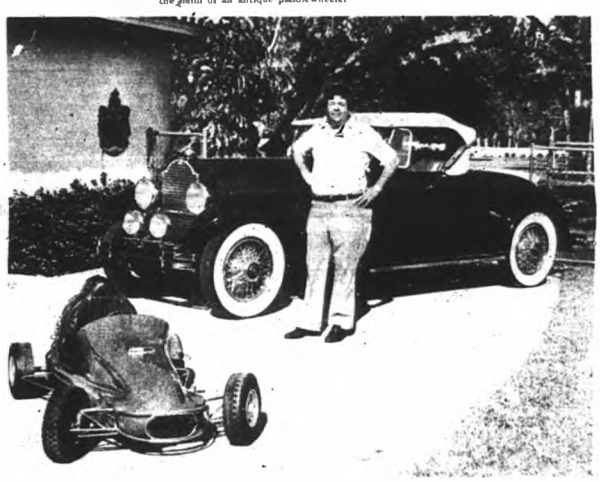
It is a glamor home, with ample space for private interior or exterior entertaining. The river dominates the scene, both from the living room and from the spacious back patio, designed for all sorts of outdoor diversion.

When they bought the property, Rick recalls, the "house" was a small cottage-type residence. They took it down and moved it, stick by stick, to a farm he owns in inland Florida, changing Lynda's status from "housekeeper" to lady of the manor.

What else is Lynda involved in?

"She's a mother," said Rick of his ex schoolteacher wife. "That's all I want her to be."

BIG MAN'S DESK—Insuranceman Rick Carroll does business from a gigantic specially made desk, built around the helm of an antique paddlewheeler.



LONG AND SHORT OF IT—Daddy's Rolls and Ashley's racer have a chat in driveway outside Rick Carroll's collection garage. The racer's the real thing, but Ashley's a little young to drive it yet. She's not quite a year old.

HOST OF THE MANOR—The broad multi-area patio on the Rick Carroll home on Indian River Drive is ready to handle massive parties, which it has done frequently. It is one of the most stunning homes seen from the St. Lucie River.

HIS AND HERS—Lynda Carroll's Waverly Electric is the talk of the meets the Carrolls attend. The body is a replica of the French phaeton of Maria Antoinette's day.

Rehab Center wants to treat you like a million

BY BOB FRYER

If you'd like to be wined and dined like a millionaire, your lucky day just might be Saturday, April 12th.

On that evening, six couples from this area will get the royal treatment, courtesy of the Tri-County Rehabilitation Center.

For the fourth year in a row, the center will stage its "Six Million Dollar Evening for Two."

The project is designed to raise about $5,000 in cash for the center, to be used for capital improvements.

Tickets, at $10 per couple, are now on sale for the Six Million Dollar Evening, and the six couples who win will be treated like millionaires.

A limousine will pick up each couple and deliver them to a yacht at the Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie. There, they'll board the yacht and have a bit of champagne, caviar and delicacies from a seafood platter as they take a sunset cruise down the St. Lucie River to the home of F. D. "Bud" and Margie Jordan in Sewall's Point.

More drinks and hors d'oeuvres will be served, then the couples will be seated for a four course meal fit for — what else — millionaires.

Each couple will have a wine steward and waiter to attend to them during dinner, then the couples will have after-dinner coffee and drinks and retire outside to watch a ballet performance under the stars by Sara Woodcock's Dance Academy of Martin County. And, around 11 p.m., chauffeurs will deliver each couple back to their homes.

If that sounds like your cup of tea, or if you'd just like to help out the center, buy a ticket and take a chance. Tickets are on sale at the center, from any board member, and at the following locations: The Gate, Elkay Beauty Shop, Pinelake Village, Baker's Rack, Hostess Bazaar, Chef's Shower, Mabel's Fancy, Mr. K Shoes, and the Bath and Linen Closet. They'll also be on sale at the center's Craft and Plant sale on Saturday, April 29, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The sale will be at the center on U.S. 1 south of Stuart and will mark the re-grand opening of the center's garden mart. It was damaged by Hurricane David, but has been restored for the opening.

A drawing, at a location to be announced soon, will be held on Saturday, April 5. Joan Jefferson, Stuart city commissioner and former chairwoman of the center's directors, will draw the tickets. It was Mrs. Jefferson who came up with the idea for the Six Million Dollar Evening four years ago and who held the first one at her home.

Directors of the center, as well as some other prominent community leaders, will act as servants, chauffeurs, and attendants for the evening, and center executive director Suzy Hutcheson says in past years, both servants and "millionaires" have "played their roles to the hilt."

Barbara Blews, a center director, is chairman of the event, and board member Janie Fox, as well as Conard Clark and Mary Ettinger, will prepare the food. Wines will be donated by Pete Nebbitt, and nearly every other item needed to make the evening a success is being donated by local businesses.

Mrs. Hutcheson says the Jordan home, "Lucindia", is "absolutely lovely", and added that it was built in the 1920s as part of the Carnegie estate.

The center serves 95 clients from Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River counties, with the bulk of them coming from Martin and St. Lucie. It has a staff of 29 members and an annual budget of $446,000. About 46 percent of that comes from state funds, but the rest is from county funds and local donations.

"Our goal is to be as self sufficient as possible," Hutcheson said, and explained that the center serves as a work activity center for mentally and physically handicapped adults. The center offers work experience, life skills experience and some basic education to its clients.

Handathon Thursday at Toyota

The third annual Ft. Pierce Toyota and W.O.V.V. 95 f.m. Handathon will start at 12 noon Friday, March 28 at Ft. Pierce Toyota.

The Handathon is a contest between thirty people testing their strength and endurance. The rules point out that each contestant must place one hand on a new 1980 Toyota Celica and simply wait and wait and wait. The last person left with their hand on the Celica wins the car, valued at over $7,000.

Sounds easy? With a five minute break every hour and a fifteen minute break every six hours, Larry Alessie, the winner of the first Handathon beat out his competition after only 83 hours. Nancy Saffioti, last year's finalist, won after over 84 hours. Both winners depended on their friends who formed support teams providing not only food for the contestants but also a lot of moral support. Now as the third annual Handathon approaches what strategies are being worked out by this year's contestants?

The contestants will all have plenty to see, there is a free concert scheduled each night that is open to the public courtesy of Ft. Pierce Toyota. Friday night the group "Hostage" will be featured from 7-10 p.m. The group "Tight Fit" plays Saturday, and Sunday's band will be Twentieth Century. In addition to the evening's entertainment, the jazz bands from John Carroll High School and Ft. Pierce Central will also be there Sunday starting at 1:30 p.m.

The third annual Handathon promises to be an exciting and fun-filled event and it all starts Friday, March 28 at Ft. Pierce Toyota and will be covered with a live remote broadcast around the clock on W.O.V.V. 95 FM.

We're closing this Saturday. May you win this week.

Our winter schedule ends this Saturday night—we'll be back in May. Closing week: Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 7 PM. Wednesday and Saturday from noon. And don't forget the new Ft. Pierce Trifecta. Reservations: 464-7500. Toll free: 800-432-6147. Address: Kings Highway, one mile north of Turnpike exit near I-95.

Sunrise services to highlight area Easter ceremonies

The death and Resurrection of Jesus Christ will be observed this week by a wide variety of Christian churches in the area, including several sunrise services on Easter Sunday, April 6.

As a traditional part of the Jensen Beach area's community life, Trinity United Methodist Church will conduct its 15th annual Easter sunrise service at 6 a.m. at Jensen Public Beach next to the Holiday Inn.

The service will include special music by soprano Rosalie Bryson, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. D. Clark Thompson.

The Nettles Island Church will conduct a sunrise service at 6 a.m. Sunday at the ocean across the street from Outdoor Resorts of America. Some 1,000 to 1,500 persons are expected to attend the inter-denominational service, with pastor Scotty Burns delivering the message.

Music will be provided by the Joint Heirs of the First Baptist Church of Stuart, and a number of ORA Singers and musicians will also take part in the service. Persons attending the service are asked to bring their own folding chairs.

Sandpiper Bay Resort in Port St. Lucie will hold its third annual non-denominational Easter sunrise service at daybreak (approximately 6 a.m.) on the banks of the St. Lucie River.

The service will be conducted directly behind the hotel complex at Greenridge Point. Officiating will be the Rev. Neil E. Newton, pastor of the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church. Music will be by Carol Haid, organist of Temple Beth El of Fort Pierce and by soloist Mildred Marlow of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Fort Pierce. In the case of inclement weather, the service will be conducted in the Florida Ballroom in the conference center across the street from the hotel.

St. Martin De Porres Catholic Church in Jensen Beach will hold a sunrise service at 6 a.m. Sunday at the church.

Jensen Beach Christian Church will hold an Easter sunrise service at 7:30 a.m. at the clubhouse at Ocean Breeze Park. The rev. Milton Fronsoe Sr. will deliver the message and special music will be provided.

Grace Presbyterian Church will hold an Easter sunrise service at 6 a.m. at the bandshell at Memorial Park in Stuart. The Rev. Jim Bowen will deliver the sermon.

St. Andrew Lutheran Church in Port St. Lucie will conduct an Easter sunrise service at the church at 6 a.m. The rev. W. H. Winkler will deliver the sermon.

Fire ruins trailer

BY BOB FRYER

A spectacular fire last week ruined a semi truck trailer and, in the process, brought at least a temporary end to a newspaper collection drive by Free Energy, Inc.

The trailer, owned by the Durbin Piper Company of Miami, was filled to the brim with old newspapers and was parked beside Indian River Drive at the Environmental Studies Center.

Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano said the blaze apparently started as a result of spontaneous combustion, and noted that the fact the trailer was so full of papers may have created the proper condition for spontaneous combustion.

"I used to look at it every day because I hated the thought of it being there," said Luciano, who added that he had, on past occassions, voiced fear of a fire starting in the trailer.

The blaze was a stubborn one and took many hours of attention by the local firemen. Trucks from the Jensen department arrived on the scene at 9:49 p.m. last Tuesday and fought the fire until 3:30 a.m. But it was still smouldering, so firemen returned around 8 a.m. Wednesday and hosed down the newspapers until about 11 a.m. as they were bring removed from the remains of the trailer by a fork-lift. The Jensen Fire Department sent 21 men and five trucks to the blaze Tuesday night and a truck and four men Wednesday morning. The Rio Fire Department sent its rescue vehicle and four men. A torch and saw from the Rio vehicle were used to rip away sides of the truck to get to the fire.

Luciano said when firemen first arrived, flames were shooting up from the truck and threatening overhead electric and telephone lines. "We got it knocked down pretty quick, but it was very hard to put it out. We used 14,000 gallons of water on it," he said.

Luciano said the truck was thoroughly packed with papers and that the fire apparently started in the center of the pack. He ruled out arson because of the location of the fire, but said as papers were removed from the hulk of the trailer, bags of garbage were found amoung the papers.

Free Energy, Inc. was using the truck to collect papers for shipment to a recycling plant and was using profits from the old papers to build a windmill at the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach. Parts of the windmill have already been purchased.

Luciano said he does not know the value of the trailer, but said the old newspapers in it were valued at about $500. He said he knows the paper collection was "for a good cause", but said if the paper collection is resumed, he'd like to give input on how the collection should be operated to prevent fires.

G BLAZE—A spectacular fire last Tuesday ruined this semi truck trailer and ought about at least a temporary halt to a newspaper collection drive by Free nergy, Inc. The drive was to fund construction of a windmill at the Environmental Studies Center, and now the future of that project is in doubt. The trailer was filled with old newspapers and the blaze apparently started with spontaneous combustion. Firemen said it was tough to put it out. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

MOVING DAY—Paul Gliedman is assisted by Louise Bishop in filing materials moved from the main office of First Federal Savings of Martin County to the new appraisal office in Jensen Beach. Gliedman brought five employees of the appraisal department with him to his new location.

First Federal brings five new jobs to Jensen

The entire appraisal office of First Federa Savings of Martin County has been moved to Jensen Beach. The move adds five jobs to the Jensen market.

Paul Gleidman, vice president and secretary of First Federal, with four employees of the department, set up sho pin one of the offices below the Harry Hoke Hall, next to Joan's Beauty Shop this week. The office handles all appraisals, construction loan inspections and related activities of First Federal.

He indicated that some other activities of First Federal might also be moved to Jensen in the near future as the expansion of business at the main office in Stuart forces more need for office space.

The main office is being readied for a major remodeling job in the near future.

Work begins on Jensen Beach Elementary improvements

Long-awaited improvements to Jensen Beach Elementary School began late last week and Principal Dale Clark says he is eagerly awaiting their completion for the next school year.

In May, 1978, Martin County voters approved a $12.8 million school bond issue to finance construction of a new high school and improvements to many existing schools, including Jensen Elementary.

The cost of improvements to the local school is tagged at $388,800. It includes five projects, and last week work began on all five of them.

At the northwest corner of the school, an expansion is being made for the school's media center and for more space for the guidance department. Adjacent to kindergarten classes, improvements call for construction of more classrooms, and on the southwest corner of the school, a special education room and classrooms are being added.

The southeast corner of the school will receive a music room, complete with risers for seating. And, on the northeast corner of the school, workers are building space for offices and storage of physical education gear.

The classroom expansion phase of the work calls for two more kindergarten classrooms, one primary grade classroom, a reading lab and a special education room.

Principal Clark said he is glad to see the work finally get underway and noted that completion of the five projects is slated for September 4, just in time for the new school year.

"We really needed these improvements," he said, but commented that even with them, the school's student capacity will still be below the number of students already attending the school.

The school currently has 649 students. The improvements will give the school a rated capacity for 782 permanent pupil stations. He said the school is now using portables to make up the difference.

Though some students now attending the school may be transferred to J.D. Parker Elementary School next year, the use of some portables at the school is still likely for next year.

IMPROVEMENTS to Jensen Beach Elementary School got underway last week and are expected to take until September 4 to complete. The work is being done by Ben X. Woods Construction Company at a cost of $388,800 and includes a music room, two kindergarten classrooms, one primary classroom, a reading lab, a special education room, office and physical education storage space and expansion of the media center and guidance department. ### RULES OF THUMB FOR UPGRADING

QUESTION: I am thinking of fixing up a small apartment building that I own by spending some money to modernize the kitchens and bathrooms and to redecorate the apartments and the hallways. Are there any rules of thumb which real estate investors use to judge whether an improvement on a property is warranted?

ANSWER: Many investors use a rule of thumb which goes something like this: "For each dollar that I spend on capital improvements to fix up the property, I want to increase the value of the property by $2 to $3." For example, if you intend to spend $5,000 in improvements, then you should expect the value of the property to increase by $15,000 to $25,000 as a result of those efforts.

Naturally, the measure of the increase in value is the ability of the properties to generate increased income as a result of the improvements which you effect. If you are able to achieve significantly higher rents as a result of your modernizing the property, this will, in most cases, reflect in a significantly higher value. Realizing the greatest potential for increased value is in the upgrading of those types of properties, many astute investors look for properties to acquire which are in need of modernization.

A Communist Is A Communist

In the early 1930s, U.S. recognition of the U.S.S.R. literally saved the Red regime from collapse. It also enabled these suddenly good Communists to embark on a series of bloody purges which left millions dead. Then, in 1939, Stalin formally teamed up with Hitler to divide Poland. Overnight, Washington's attitude changed and the Kremlin became bad.

After Hitler turned on Russia in 1941, things looked bleak for Stalin and his henchmen. America's image-makers quickly re-designated the Soviets as good Communists once again, but we made them a world power. After World War II, Stalin and company showed their thanks by swallowing up Eastern Europe and menacing the entire Free World. From good to bad, and back to good, it was now official policy to consider them bad again.

In the late 1940s, meanwhile, official U.S. policy toward post-war China held that the Chinese Communists were good — that they were not really Communists, in fact, but only "agrarian reformers." With assistance from Washington, Mao Tse-tung's "reformers" eventually seized China, plitting tens of millions to death. In the early 1950s, the Chinese Reds killed tens of thousands of American G.I.s in Korea and swore to destroy the United States. So, Washington rhythmically shifted its posture, and the Chinese Communists went from good to bad.

In fact, the Chinese Reds became very bad. So bad that the American people were easily convinced that the Soviet Union was mellowing. Virtually overnight, a new U.S. policy called for aid to the freshly re-designated good U.S.S.R. as a strategy against Red China. America promptly began "building bridges," a program that has sent an enormous flood of our nation's credit, technology and hardware to Russia. This aid increased even during the time that Americans were dying from Russian-made bullets in Vietnam.

Of more current interest, our generosity helped the Soviets to construct the world's largest truck factory and to build a paved road from central Russia to the Afghanistan border. Trucks from that U.S.-built plant recently were used in the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

The present line from Washington has it that the Soviets are now the bad Communists. Not surprisingly, the Red Chinese are now good and have even won the title "ally" from numerous official spokesmen. In the wake of this latest metamorphosis, the Carter Administration has begun a military and industrial buildup of Communist China. Having contributed massively to the present Soviet might for almost three decades, we are now supposed to accept a repeat of the process in China — to counter Soviet aggressiveness of course!

Maybe you agree with us that there never has been any such thing as a good Communist. Perhaps you wonder why our leaders have never adopted a policy which refuses aid of any kind to any Communist tyrant. If you want to know who has arranged this dizzying parade of good-bad transformations which always benefits Communism and weakens America, we urge you to obtain and read "The Insiders". This concise study carefully examines American policy and the men and organizations who have shaped it. To order "The Insiders", simply use the convenient coupon below.

An excellent pot luck dinner season

Venture Three

BY VIRGINIA SHINSKE

This has been an excellent season and the Pot Luck dinners will continue just as long as we have a good attendance. Among the many regulars that can be seen at the dinners are: Ray and Kay Kilsen, Betty Davis, Sam and Esther Abrams, John and Phyllis Clark, Al and Jackie Phillips, Virginia and Leonard Skinske, Charles and Florence Galley, Laureda and Noah Kefauver, Leona and Lloyd McGahey, Jessie and Lester Shaver, keith and Margaret Howden, Fritz and Hannah eichert, Jack and Bette Joseph, and Joe and Dorothy Huston.

Participating in the Coast Guard Flotilla 59, Joe Freitag was aboard 'Hi Hopes' at The Blessing of the Fleet on the St. Lucie River. Flotilla 59 was on patrol controlling the flow of the many vessels in the St. Lucie annual event.

From Toronto, Ontario, Canada, visiting the Jack Elliotts were: Betty Brodeau spending a few days. Harry and Carmel Cox with twins Paul and Patty 18, Jill 16 and Ian, an exchange student from South Africa; also Harry's mother Mrs. Cox of Winnipeg, Canada. Enjoying their stay here as well, daughter in law Mary Ann and granddaughter Jackie 13 from Toronto.

A "friendly invasion" is expected by Paul and Betty Drinkard April 2nd when they pick up 15 kids and grandkids at the airport for a ten day stay on our island. Betty has been busy freezing and baking, because as any grandmother khows, 9 grandchildren can go through a lot of cookies! Expected are: Bob and Ellen Doster with Joshua 9, Leah 10, and Eve 5 from Royal Oak, Mich. Larry and Claudine Drinkard with Warren 17, Brian 16, Paula 12, Clint 7 from Clarkston, Mich. Gary and Shirley Schroeder with Nathan 6 and Jusan 6 also from Michigan. The three families will stay in rented trailers in St. Lucie but plan on dinner every evening with Grandma and Gramp. Should be lotsa fun — and a good workout for the dishwasher. Also joining in the Easter fun and family re-union are Betty's parents, Mr. & Mrs. Clarence Arnold of Pembroke Pines, Fl.

Bowling scores. Ladies high-series had Cora Lee Irwin with 456 and Bill Thompson had men's single with 160.

A cocktail party was given by Shirley and Roger Miller and Jackie and Al Philips for Col. James and Kay Gibson with a few chosn friends invited. As the Gibsons have purchased a condo in Miles Grant of Stuart they will be leaving us very soon.

Joe Freitag's sister Anie Hasselt, has just recently returned to Germany after spending three months here this winter. She has returned to re-establish her domicile in Germany.

Snowbirds from Leaskdale, Ont. Canada, Garry and Yvonne Harrison and family were here on their annual school holidays. Both are teachers in the Ontario School system. Would you believe? In mid-March they had to be plowed out when they left their home in the North and were hopeful that the snow had dissapated by the time they returned.

Saturdays Men's Pool Champs were George Sterling and Joe Goodwin who beat Ken Horton and Jack Clark. Floyd Reynolds, Derwood Dickinson, Johnnie Campbell, Bill Thompson, Steve Bolowski, and Jack Joseph offered them some stiff competition.

Dan and Naomi Morton are most grateful for the correspondence and flowers sent to Dan by their many friends in the Park. Dan is still in the hospital in Hollywood and recovering slowly after his surgery last month.

Tuesday Night cards is still in full swing with bridge and crazy eights. Last week's bridge winners were: Phyllis Clark first place, Hank Schipper second place and of course last but not least Booby prize went to Ben Benson. Scotty and Chris Fair, Fran Potter, Jack Clark, Doris Day, and Val Calihan. At the "Crazy 8" table were Ken Horton, Johnnie Campbell, Clyde Boyar, Joe Goodwin, Jack and Bette Joseph, Marge and Tommie Steiler and Ed Calahan.

Attending a rollicking weekend of Square Dancing at River Ranch near Lake Wales were Emma and George Carpenter with friends Evelyn and George Sterling. The stimulating music and colorful apparel was a sight to behold. Especially the girls in their voluminous petticoats and ruffled pantaloons.

Attending the wedding of their first grandson, Joe and Amy Freitag flew to Los Angeles. The wedding was held at Beverly Hills Presbyterian Church high on a hill overlooking Los Angeles Approximately 150 guests attended and the reception was held in a restaurant in Beverly Hills.

Another Canadian getting out of the cold weather were Ralph and Lynda Elliot with Lynda, Jerry and Clayton enjoying the warm climate here with parents Harold and Olive Elliot. Yvonne and Bud Wiencke took their house guest from New Jersey for a visit to the Everglades Nat'l Park, spending three days in their mini-home. They returned through the center of the state and over to Pahokee and Lake Okeechobee. They enjoyed the birds and the scenery but not the mosquitoes. Recently Alice and Floyd Reynolds purchased a new Olds Cutlass and breaking it in drove across the state to the Gulf for a few days visit with friends and relatives.

Traveling to Naples and Sanibel Island were Tippy Frame and Virginia Ramsey. While there they visited friends Mrs. Jody Hale and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Teer. Eagle, Wisconsin residents Lionel and Ethel Lawis have been renting here a short time and visiting with their long time friends of over thirty years, Harold and Dorothy Seelye. The two couples have shared many holidays and vacations together and are now retired. They have settled on the Gulf coast but are now observing our area along the Ocean Coast with ideas of possibly relocating. We will miss John and Ellen Clark who have moved to Spanish Lakes. We wish them well in their new home.

Willard and Louise Auch bought a lot on the river and have been busy, as many of our river residents, repairing the Sea Wall. They have a Tara ordered and looking eagerly for it to be delivered. Peggy and John Fleming of Holiday Out and Alma, Mich. have purchased the Auch trailer and lot on a finger in St. Lucie. Carl and Marge Elliot of Leaskdale, Ont. Canada have also purchased a lot and trailer in St. Lucie. Bernie and Jean Hansel have a new park model trailer and are really enjoying their new spacious home.

Florence and Charles Galley entertained a group of neighbors at a buffet supper this past week. Attending were: The Kefauver's, The Magahey's, The Elliot's, The Sleep's and The Harrison's. Arnholt's this season were: The Paul Arnholt's and family from W. Va., John Whiteman's of Glenside, Pa., George Knoll's of Balto, Md., Gerald Frank's of Roslyn, Pa. and Miss Dorothy Gibbs of Pa.

Martin Downs; time has come

Just how much time, and how much commitment is needed to resolve the problems of the people of Palm City seems to be the root of the brouhaha over the master planning of the area.

Martin Downs, the development that has created so much controversy in the Palm City area, has done just about everything that can be done in the ever-changing environmental-ecological structure of time. But, whatever has been done never seems enough.

Residents of Palm City, in a not-too-blamable position of "we've got ours and we don't want anyone else here" attitude, resist the proposed 5,000 units that Martin Downs plans to put on the high-priced area that is adjacent to the already developed lands in that unincorporated community.

The developers, trying to plan a community with the integrity of proper planning, have already reduced their number of units to comply with the protests of the residents who protest.

However, in these changing times there comes a time when a halt must be called to the continual delays and allow the company that has invested heavily to develop its land and make a return on its investment.

The bottom line lies with the Martin County Commission, and the consulting firm that advises the commission. The filibuster is long past due to be over.

Once the issue of the legality of commission action is settled, we believe that the county fathers should move ahead on the master plan for Palm City, and with it, approve a plan for Martin Downs.

Newspapers again are the preference

A new servey by the College of Business, Florida State University, indicates what we have been proud to boast for a long time; newspapers are the preferred medium for information.

If the people want information on local events, local sports, where to shop, what products cost or where to find the best buys, they will go to their newspapers first.

The survey was designed by the professor of marketing at FSU for the Florida Press Association.

In it, news of local events drew a 54.5 percent response for newspapers, to 38.4 for television and 0.9 for radio.

For where to shop, people selected newspapers for 64.4 percent to 10.5 for television and 6.2 for radio.

And for what products cost, readers looked to newspapers 73.4 percent to 5.3 for television and 1.5 for radio.

Credibility also was surveyed, and newspapers received a high rating on "which would you be most likely to believe" in local news. Newspapers received 56 per cent approval to 31.6 for television and 0.9 for radio.

If the respondents had only one source for ads on where to shop, newspapers were chosen by 77.1 percent to 12.7 for television and 0.9 for radio.

The marketing information reinforces what we have boasted of for may years. Newspapers are for everyone.

Up or down? Up? Down!

Once on the court, we warm up. Hitting the balls back and forth mainly into the net, or back of the baseline.

This is how I have kept my marriage alive. I don't rally with Sally. She says I don't hit the ball back to her. I can't hit the ball back to her. I never know where the ball is going.

Like the time that Don St. Onge and I played in the men's doubles tournament at Indian River Plantation. our first match was against two very young guys from FIT. In the warmup they hit hard balls all the way back in the baseline, like a shot.

I looked at Don. He looked at me. I thought: We are going to be destroyed.

Those guys could hit that ball back, hard as can be, all day long. Our rallies, in the warmup were short, however, as Don and I play about the same game and can't keep the ball going back and forth for too long.

In the match, we beat them 6-4, 6-2. Our junky poops shots were too much for them. They either hit everything into the net or against the fence. They walked off friendly, but disgusted.

The psychology of the game is very important. As we warm up, and before every one is ready, I usually take my racket, spin it on the court, and shout, "up or down." The opponents, automatically shout back up or down. I look at the racket and shout the opposite. Thus we win the serve. Psychology.

Here lately, though, they have been asking me to show them the up or down. Luckily, my spin is that good that I win the serve, even honestly.

My secret then is to get Don to serve first. We usually lose the first game. He isn't warmed up. And, by the time we reach the third game, I am warm enough to serve, and win my serve, as he is warmed up enough to do more than avoid the ball at the net. Psychology.

All this came about as I pondered the new twelve point tiebreaker that everyone is trying to get to replace the nine point tiebreaker. The U.S. Tennis Association abolished the sudden death nine point system recently, and all pros are trying to get their hackers to use a twelve point system.

Tom Falkenburg demonstrated it at the doubles championships recently. He had a doubles match of women, and they needed the tiebreaker. Tom had to stand there and explain each serve. Then, he had to remind them to change sides after every six points.

The women were so frustrated that they hardly had time to concentrate on their game. They were too busy trying to figure out the service from odd court and when to change.

The tiebreaker was fair, however. All four women were completely frustrated.

Don and I plan to use that frustration to advantage. Our opponents will be concentrating on the tiebreaker, frustration will show, their mental attitude will break down, and we will win.

You see, Don and I rarely pay attention to the game. We go here and there on the court and hit at the ball. We'll be cool as cucumbers, and wander about looking at the birds, telling jokes and looking at whatever new racket Don is using that week.

He is playing better with the new one. The one before just wasn't too good, and it was the only racket I ever heard of that was recalled by the factory. He used that one for about a month, and sure did play lousy.

Of course Falkenburg, who endures our Saturday marathons, knows how to put it all in perspective. He watched Don miss several shots (with the racket) and said, "Ever notice that when someone missed the ball, or mis-hits it, how the person looks at the racket?" Even the pros do in televised matches, so I guess it is okay for Don to do it.

Psychology is something I'm trying to teach Don. He blames himself for his bad shots, and while he takes in a good humor, he can get a little down in the mouth. I, on the other hand, use psychology. When I miss the ball, I hold up my arms in anguish, and shout:

"Nice shot."

Energy released

There are those, almost none of who've expressed the opinion that the plans of Free Energy Inc. to build a windmill in Jensen Beach were blowing holes in the wind.

Where will they put it? How will any power it engenders be distributed? What if they think they're doing — going into competition with Florida Power and Light or something?

Or just plain "how archaic can you get?"

There comes an answer to some of these questions in an article found in the ARAMCO World Magazine, a publication put out by mid-East oil interests.

The article, entitled "Windmills: from Jiddah to Yorkshire," reveals that those weird looking contraptions that Don Quixote tilted at are resurrecting themselves from the past and very much into the present as power sources, all over the world. To quote, in part:

"In what might seem to be an ironic footnote to the history of energy, mining engineer Karl Twitchell, in 1933 put up a 16 foot windmill in Jiddah to help pump water. It raised. Twitchell says in his book Saudi Arabia, "an average of 40 gallons a minute."

"Today, however, Twitchell's wind mill no longer seems slightly odd, because the windmill, as a source of energy, is re-entering history.

"Last autumn, for example, the government of Quebec announced it would build an experimental $17.5 million, 327 foot high windmill to generate electricity — a recognition of the continuing energy crisis. And Quebec's windmill is only one of any that governments, companies and individuals were constructing in late 1979."

Our local windmill was to have been used fairly much as an example — a demonstration that the potential power of the elements was not being put to full use. For years, Free Energy, Inc. has been collecting old newspapers to sell to a recycling plant, and the funds had reached the point that the shaft could be purchased and constructed.

"We were either going to use the power to light the property at night, to show people that they CAN produce their own power, or to run a well in water the grounds," commanded Jay Jarrett, director of adult and community education for Martin County Schools.

During the winter, the newspaper sales fund had finally reached a plateau making possible the purchase of the first phase of the equipment — the big pipe to be sunk into the ground. But this week, just as the word had been received that the pipe had arrived in Florida, disaster hit.

The huge van in front of the County Environmental Center, overflowing with accumulated newspapers, burst into flames, destroying the van and leaving nothing but a soggy, sodden mass of pulp.

The Free Energy group is temporarily at a loss as to what will happen now. Not only did the fire put an enormous cramp in the future source of income to buy the new needed parts of the windmill, but there is some question that the state license is still valid.

"Right now it's all very iffy," Jay told me.

But the fact that windmills are proving practical in other areas, and that the local conservationists have been heading in the right direction should be encouraging proof that the obstacles are worth trying to overcome, no matter how bleak things look right now.

Surely another van can be obtained and surely, as surely as daily follows weekly, there'll soon be enough more newspapers accumulating to get things rolling again.

Despite the Doubting Thomases, Jensen has been working in the behalf of utilizing nature's energy sources, and is close to putting our town on the map in doing so. I like the feeling of living in a community that has an initiative to try to solve, even a small way, one of the country's major and growing problems. They can't do a little thing like a fire stop them now.

We had our paddies gently slapped this week for not paying as much attention as we should to our local business — and rightly so. The word came from Ruth Bowman, one of our finest local artists.

Ruth has prior rights on paddy slapping around the Mirror office — she was reporting for us before I was even a minor name on the local horizon.

Our oversight, I was informed, was in not even mentioning that four — not one not two not three but four Jensen Beach artists won ribbons in an important juried four-county art Show staged last month by the Fort Pierce Art Club.

Ruth was one of them. The others were Al Termini, Marguerite Duston, and Elaine Defenthaler. This was quite a feather in Jensen Beach's artistic cap, because the competition in that show is stiff — you have to be more than just good to be chosen for hanging in the exhibit. Some of Fort Pierce's finest failed to make it.

$35 for burger, fries and shake?

"Whew, at those prices, people will just have to go around naked. Who could afford to buy clothes?"

That was the comment of Mirror reporter Michelle Naspinski when told that neckties may cost as much as $40 by 1990.

I had watched a television news show about inflation last week, and was telling Michelle some of the frightening things I'd heard.

The broadcaster was saying that if inflation continued for the next 10 years at its present rate, that's what a plain old necktie would cost.

You think $40 for a necktie is absurd? Wait till you hear what the inflation rate is projected to be for dinner at McDonald's.

How does $35 sound? That's what he said it would cost for a burger and shakes for the family. He didn't say how many persons he figured on for the family dining at McDonald's but it would either have to be one the size of Peg Messner's or folks may have to do without food as well as clothing in 1990. (For those who don't know Peg, our general manager, she has a constant stream of northern relatives who come down here for a visit. I think she could probably schedule on a day for an entire year without having any repeaters.)

The newscaster had some other figures to toss out, none of which sounded encouraging. He said the average cost of one year's tuition at a state university would be $32,000.

And, he said paperback books would be selling for $10 a copy and movie tickets would go for $17.

Can you imagine what life would be like at those prices?

Son: "Hey, Dad, how about letting me borrow the car tonight? I want to take Becky Sue out to dinner and to a rock concert."

Dad: "I don't know why you want to listen to all that screeching, but you can have the car if you fill it up with gas. Plus, you've got to wash and wax it tomorrow."

Son: "Aw, Dad, that's the same as telling me I can't have it. I've only made $350 this week and I've already spent a lot of that."

Dad: "Lord, that used to be a good month's pay. What are you planning to spend all that on?"

Son: "Well, I spent $100 on a new shirt and $25 went to my hair stylist. I got Becky Sue a present and that set me back $40 and tickets to the concert are $35 each. I'm taking her to dinner, and that will cost around $160. The way that adds up, I figure I've only got $15 left, and I figure that'll buy a few Cokes at the concert."

Dad: "$100 for dinner? $40 for a present? When your Mom and I went out on a date I could buy her a dozen roses and dinner for the two of us for $10, or take her to the movies for $5, including popcorn and cokes. We're planning on eating Lobster and steak and buying Becky Sue a diamond ring or something?"

Son: "Naw, Dad I'm just getting her a scarf and taking her to a nice restaurant. We've been going steady a whole month now, so I want to make it kinda special, but I'm not talking lobster and sirloin. That would run more like $150 or $200, depending on how much the tip is. Can't I please have the car? And $50 for some gas? I'll work it off."

Dad: "Well at the rate you're adding up bills you say you'll work off, you'll be 86 before you're out of debt to me. But, I guess if it's a special night for you and Becky Sue, you can take the car. And, here's $50 for gas. Should get you about half a tank's worth."

Son: "Gee thanks, Dad."

Letter to the editor

To the Editor
An Open Letter to Nuclear Protesters:

I respect your 'right' to protest peaceably, but I won't let you turn out my lights.

I am offended by your planning my future. I protest your actions which assure me of a chronic energy crisis.

You told me what you want. Now I'll tell you what I want. I want a future for my children that isn't trapped and barren and second-place, and unemployed and defenseless.

The need for electricity will continue to grow no matter how much you wish it wouldn't.

Electricity can be created by spinning turbines powered by oil. It can be created by natural gas tapped from below the earth's surface for as long as it lasts. It can be created by water falling where circumstances permit and when environmentalists permit. It can be created by burning coal, dug from dangerous mines. All of these methods cause death and damage to the environment. Or, we can use technology and bombard uranium atoms to create heat-environmentally the cleanest method.

Is nuclear power here to stay? I don't know. Progress and technology do not stand still. Things like fusion and solar and other methods up ahead. But today, the choices are limited. The crisis is real.

Since when are we afraid of progress? What kind of legacy are we leaving our youngsters? We are a proud, industrious and innovative society. We marvel at the development of technology.

We didn't shut down the airline industry when the first plane crashed. We took it apart to see what went wrong, so it wouldn't happen again.

I speak as one American who isn't willing to throw in the towel.

Honest, knowledgeable and caring people – your neighbors – work in the nuclear energy field. I trust them. They do not hold second-rate citizenship. Their beliefs are entitled to equal weight.

That 'new mobilization' you're beginning to sense is peopled by your neighbors and countrymen who are concerned about your constitutional right, but who are even more concerned about the survival of the free world.

The future of our nation is at stake. It's high time you realized our predicament and grew up to face the responsibilities we all must face united!

Sincerely,
Barbara Keating

To The Editor

As District Manager for Florida Power & Light, I would like to congratulate Ms. Nasgaard on the excellent article concerning building in Port St. Lucie. The article in the March 18th edition clearly demonstrated the energy savings that might be incurred by improvement of building insulation and higher efficiency appliances.

In addition to General Development there are four other builders that have certified one or more homes under the Florida Power & Light Watt-Wise (tm) Program. This program can incur energy savings throughout the life of the home of up to 25 percent over that expected of a standard built home.

Sincerely,
Gene L. VanCuren
District Manager

To the Editor:

Hats off! The flag goes by! Those who remember these words that we learned in 8th Grade English Class will forever thrill to the memory. We recited Felicia Heman's 'Landing of the Pilgrims'—

"The breaking waves dashed high
On the stern and rock bound coast,
And the trees against the stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed."

And we lived again the courage and fortitude of these brave men and women who left their homeland to forge a new (and free) life in what was to become the United States of America.

We also remember the patriotism rampant during the First World War, we hoarded, our pennies to buy Savings Bonds, rolled bandages, knit helmets, scarves and sweaters, (and yes, even cootie garages' a long knitted strip to be wound around a soldier's body, into which lice would crawl, then removed and burned). This was in the trenches in France where our brave men suffered hardships, cold, and unspeakable misery. This same country now refuses to boycott the Olympics because they are afraid of Russia! Our friends in other countries seem to know us only when they are recipients of our millions of dollars. We have been put upon, spit upon, our flag burned, reviled and ridiculed — this in a Nation that has been the leader in the world of peace and brotherhood! WAKE UP, AMERICA! Stand tall and proud — we owe nothing to anyone — and it is time for the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA to again take its place as a symbol of Democracy and Freedom.

Hats off! The flag goes by!

Oughterson re-named president

William A. Oughterson, Stuart attorney, was re-installed for a second term as president of the Martin Memorial Hospital board of directors on Thursday, at the annual meeting held at the hospital.

New officers are: Dr. Edward A. Geary, first vice president; Barney Poston, second vice president; Mrs. W. A. C. Miller III, secretary; E. C. Wareheim, treasurer and immediate past president.

Nominated to first terms on the board were Ransom Tilton, Fred Stair Jr., Robert Russell and Gerald Mehlich, with Oughterson named for a second term. Present directors are Mrs. Walter Bauman, William E. Owens, John Duberg and Alvin Hendry.

The hospital has been running at near capacity since the first of the year, according to Guy Cromwell, hospital administrator. The average daily census for February was 218 patients per day, as opposed to the budgeted 224. But since the beginning of March, he said, it has been so full that they have been able to accept only certified occupancies, including emergencies. The majority of patients has been 65 years and over.

Most notable among the cash outlays of past months, Cromwell commented was the money used to purchase a tract of land for the building of a satellite facility in Port St. Lucie. Proposed plans for the initial stages of the building will go before the Regional Health Planning Council, with hearings to be held in May. Two other competitors are also placing bids for the project.

The board expressed pleasure at the success of the annual fund drive held in conjunction with the annual Hospital Ball, which has now gone over the goal by more than $26,000. The goal was $100,000, and money is still coming in, Cromwell said. Proceeds will be used to purchase technically refined equipment which will give the hospital a higher degree of efficiency in the diagnosis and treatment of patients.

THE BIG PARADE—Sleek yachts, runabouts and houseboats were all equally blessed on Saturday, during the annual Blessing of the Fleet. The blessings were bestowed from the deck of the Chanticleer, 118-foot yacht owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude.

SAILS AWAY—The turnout of sailboats was impressive for the Blessing of the Fleet, held Saturday on the St. Lucie River. This flotilla passes proudly in review before the review boat Chanticleer.

BLESSING OF THE FLEET

HORSE OF ANOTHER COLLAR—An eye-catcher in the big parade of boats during the Blessing of the Fleet on Saturday was the life-sized filly apparently providing a new brand of horsepower to the trim little yacht, one of the 361 parading in review.

A PATRIOTIC THEME was used to decorate this little cruiser during the Blessing of the Fleet on Saturday. It was among the many judged for the awards night dinner which followed.

Record number of boats

By SALLY LATHAM

Lowering skies threatened rain, and a brisk breeze kept the sailors hard at the helm, but the Almighty smiled by holding off the showers Saturday, as a record number of yachts and sailboats big and small passed the reviewing ship for the annual Blessing of the Fleet on Saturday.

It was the aqua show of the year for lovers of watercraft, bringing out 361 boats ranging in size from sleek 60 footers down to two-man catamarans, all decorated to the hilt for the occasion. It was an increase or 60 over last year's turnout of 301, according to Coast Guard Auxiliary spokesman Ed Benedict.

Central focus of atention for boaters and bridge-watchers alike was the review boat, the 118 foot yacht, Chanticlear owned and donated for the Blessing by Ralph and FRances Evinrude.

The Evinrudes welcomed aboard some 50 guests, including General Chairman and Mrs. Norman Krecke, who enjoyed a superb luncheon from the Chanticlear galley.

Clergy blessing the boats as they passed in review, were Dr. Carl K. Pollhein of the First United Presbyterian Church, The Rev. Fr. Gerald Morris of St. Martin de Porres Chatholic Church of Jensen Beach, and M. Cohen, acting in behalf of Rabbi Mel Hecht of Temple Beth El of Fort Pierce.

Yacht Clubs of this area did well in the judging. Among the silber Revere Bowl winners for small yacht clubs were Anchor Line and Nettles Island, and the Saints and Sinners Club was winner of the top award for highest percentage of fleet participation.

Participating boating organizations included the Anchorage Yacht Club, Anchorline Yacht Club, Circle Bay yacht Club, Cocont Point Yacht Club, Crossroads Yacht Club, De La Bahia Yacht Club, Flotilla 59 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Nettles Island Yacht Club, the Riverland Boaters, Saints and Sinners Yacht Club, St. Lucie River Power Squadron, St. Lucie Sailing Club, Soundings Yacht and Tennins Club, Yacht and Country Club, Windjammer Yacht and the Oceanview Yacht Club.

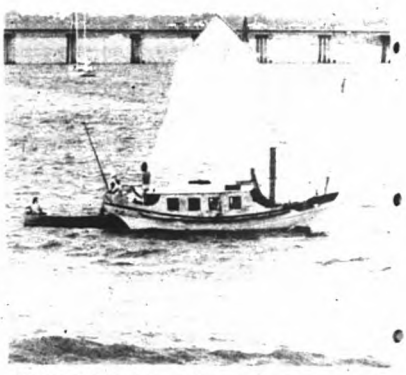
Mr. and Mrs. Evinrude also provided their sport fishing boat Fran E as the press boat.

25' AND UNDER—Winners of awards in the Blessing of the Fleet decoration contest for boats under 25 feet in length hold their trophies. They include (with some stand-ins) Captain Chris McCarthy, and Captain Charlie Lafferty, honorable mentions, and Captain Ralph Morgan, first and Fred Dawley, second. The De La Bahia Yacht Club won for highest percentage of fleet participation.

25' AND OVER—Winners of awards in the Blessing of the Fleet decoration contest for boats over 25 feet in length include (with some stand-ins) Captain Ed Adele, first, Captain Fred Stunt, second, and honorable mentions to Captain Bill Malloch and Captain Pallazzo. The Anchorage Yacht Club won for largest percentage of decorated boats and Saints and Sinners Yacht Club won for highest percentage of participation.



JUNKIE AT SEA—One of the more novel craft to receive the interdenominational blessings on Saturday was this Chinese junk, a hit with the crowd.

Census '80

Residents of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie, as well as the rest of the antion, received Census '80 questionaires in the foall last week, and by now, most should have filled them out and mailed them off.

For four out of every five household receiving the questionaire, the process of answering the questions only took a few minutes, as the list of questions was relatively short. For others, longer questionaires were sent.

Ninety percent of all persons receiving questionaires were asked to mail in the questionaires by April 1, and the remaining 10 percent, mostly residents in sparsely settled areas, will get visits from Census workers soon, if not already. And, beginning April 16th Census workers will begin visiting households that have not responded to the Census.

The federal government is stressing the confidentiality of the Census information and press releases state that the Census Bureau's record of confidentiality is totally without blemish.

Also stressed are reasons for taking a population count of the nation. In Florida, the count is significant because it is testimated that the state may recieve one or two more U.S. Representatives as a result of our growth since 1970.

In addition to more representation in Congress, and accurate count of local residents may mean more federal funds will be spent here. Tremendous sums of federal money are spent for a variety of programs based on population counts. The larger our population, the more money we'll get through these programs.

Trends in marriage rates, longevity rates, birth rates and movements of categorized groups of persons into or out of various professions are monitored by the census. And, the census will tell us much about the type of housing Americans live in.

The new fuel adjustment plan will help you budget your electricity.

To help you budget your electricity costs, the Florida Public Service Commission has elected to set a 'levelized' fuel adjustment. It will be set for six months, then reviewed and adjusted, up or down, for subsequent six month periods. (Initially, so that equity will be attained, the charge will be reviewed monthly).

Starting April 1, your monthly fuel adjustment charge per kilowatt hour of usage will remain constant for six months. The widely fluctuating costs of fuel, primarily residual oil, will be projected for this period and levelized with the help of lower cost nuclear and natural gas.

The Commission also will develop an incentive clause to encourage electric utilities to cut fuel costs as much as possible.

Your fuel adjustment may be slightly higher initially. But in the long run, it will be the same as if calculated monthly...but will spare you those monthly decreases and increases that prevented budgeting for your costs.

Too, you can more accurately measure your conservation efforts on actual kilowatt hour usage. To be specific about saving, pick up a "How to Save" folder at any FPL office.

PREPARED FOR HUNT—It was a gala few days leading up to Easter vacation for the students at Jensen Beach Elementary School, with the two final school days filled with parties and Easter Egg hunts. Helping with the boom in the egg market are members of the first grade class, all with Easter baskets they'd made in art class. This group was lucky — they had their outdoor fun before the rains came to wash out outdoor sporting

Jefferson elected to AIA College of Fellows

Peter Jefferson of Stuart has been elected to the College of Fellows of the American Institute of Architects.

Fellowship is a lifetime honor bestowed for notable contribution to the profession. (All Fellows of AIA may use the initials FAIA after their names.) Investiture of the elected Fellows will take place on June 2 at the AIA's national convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Jefferson has combined his architectural career with community involvement. His standards for quality of life have caused him to reach out to lead the community toward environmental awareness and the need to regulate growth and to plan for future development. He was instrumental in establishing density controls through zoning, and has consistently led the battle to preserve and maintain the beauty and quality of our man made and natural environment.

As a designer and principal, he has been involved in design projects receiving local and state recognition, including honor and merit awards from the Florida Association of the American Institute of Architects.

Some of his work includes the David William Hotel, the Smathers residence, and the Collins residence in Miami; Angler's Cove condominium, Stresau residence, Martin County Jail and Sheriff's Administration Building, Martin County Library addition and Jefferson residence in Stuart; South Passage condominium in Vero Beach, Neuharth Wilson residence in Cocoa Beach, and the Murphy residence in Frazier's Hog Cay in the Bahamas.

Buildings typically are adapted to their locale with historic climate related features. His concerns for historic preservation have led him to a current renovation of an early Stuart house and construction of an adjacent studio in one of the oldest residential neighborhoods.

Jefferson's work has been published in many local, state and national

PETER JEFFERSON

WINNER—Saridra Harris won first place in the Jensen Beach Optimist Club's oratorical contest competition for girls last week, then went on to win zone competition on Sunday in Palm Beach. She was one of nine girls to compete locally, and the judging was tough, as each presented a well prepared speech. NAMED—Alan R. Slutskin has been named Director of Public Relations at The Impact Group. Before joining the firm, Slutskin's professional career included more than 11 years with newspapers, PR companies, colleges and universities in New York, Pennsylvania and Florida.

Nearly 100,000 hours given by auxilians

Nearly 100,000 hours have been donated in a year's time by the volunteers at Martin Memorial Hospital, members were told at the annual installation luncheon held Monday at the Stuart Yacht and Country Club.

Making the report was Marion (Mrs. Robert) Daly, re-elected president of the MMH auxiliary. Her statements followed the presentation of a check for $50,000 to William Oughterson, president of the hospital board.

Coming here from Orlando to officiate at the installation was Mrs. James (June) Gaugy, director of the East Central auxiliary district. She was accompanied by Mrs. Richard (Chris) Koppenhaver.

Also among the honored guests was Guy Cromwell, hospital administrator, who commended the men and women who have given so much of their time in making the smooth operation of the hospital possible, and "providing the highest quality possible of service and good public relations" without recompense.

Others installed with Mrs. Daly were: Mrs. Oscar (Mary Jane) Lanphar, first vice president; Miss Alice Gray, second vice president; Mrs. Robert A. C. (Edna) Connell, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward (Peg) Dalva, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. George (Margaret) Najjar, treasurer; Edna Lange, assistant treasurer.

Chairmen named by Mrs. Daly were Mrs. Richard Tyner, awards; Mrs. R.W. Ormiston, chaplain; Mrs. Edith Beck, coffee shop; Mrs. Eugene (Jane) Robinson Jr., gift shop; Mrs. Dean (Virginia) Carter, newsletter; Mrs. N.V. (Elsie) Howlett, opportunity shop; Mrs. B.F. Mason, publicity; Mrs. Vaughn (Marian) Monroe, parliamentarian; Mrs. Roy Bishop, director of volunteers.

The Anchormen, male volunteers at the hospital, were singularly honored for their share of service to the hospital. During the year, 63 of them gave a total of 14,667 hours of their time to the hospital. The Auxilians, numbering 412, gave 84,522 hours. The highest single total was 11,000 given by C. Baumann.

In the past 12 months Mrs. Daly said the revenue produced and donated to the hospital was some $121,000, which has been used for needed equipment at the hospital and for nursing scholarships.

Chamber hears blood bank plan

Members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce learned about the requirements for a Chamber blood bank Tuesday, and made plans to establish a blood service for the membership.

Sara Timon, head nurse at the Martin County branch of the Palm Beach County Blood Bank, made the presentation. The Chamber would set up a blood drive and the credits would be available to all members and their families.

President Dick Campbell said that Dr. Richard Penick would be named chairman of the Chamber blood bank.

The next meeting of the Chamber will be a board of directors meeting, April 14 at 7:30 a.m. at the Village Corner Restaurant.

HAPPY KIDS—Last week fourth graders visited the Jensen Beach Bank and the Jensen Beach Post Office to get an idea of the inner workings of the two. And while in downtown Jensen, they also stopped in for ice cream at Susie's Ice Cream Parlor. As you can see, they needed no education about what ice cream's for. # Jensen Community Education Center

By Jay Jarrett — 334-1263

The month of April brings a new round of programs and activities at the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. All are offered free of charge except for materials used in some crafts classes.

The popular Yoga classes taught by Pat Thuman will again be offered on Monday and Friday mornings from 9:30 to 11:30 at the Environmental Studies Center. The Hatha Yoga method is employed and emphasizes proper breathing and relaxation for mental and physical well-being.

A new class in Japanese Bunka, embroidery is starting now on Tuesday afternoons from 12:30 to 3:30. This is a relatively new craft to the United States, having been imported within the last 10 years. There is no instruction fee, but materials kits range upwards from $15 or $20 depending upon the size of the finished product. Ms. Alma Burke will teach.

On Wednesday afternoons starting April 9 from 12:30 to 3:30, Stella Chagnon will offer her popular Fabric Painting class in Jensen Beach for the first time. This class will also meet at the Environmental Center. Again, the only cost involved is that for materials.

A new class in Astronomy will be offered for six weeks starting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 15 at the Environmental Center. This course will be directed to the new or casual hobbyist and will include films, discussion and use of a celestial telescope on clear nights. Mark Perry will instruct.

Another in the continuing series of Exercise classes is forming now at Jensen Beach Elementary School. Scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 8:30, the class actually started March 25. Instructor Laura Cassella has room for a few more students who may sign up on Tuesday, April 8 when the class next meets.

Something different is being offered to lovers of classical music starting Sunday, April 13 at 3:30 p.m. A 90-mipute concert of recorded classics will be offered on a semi-monthly basis at the Environmental Center's auditorium. The concerts will be offered initially on the second and fourth Sunday of each month. Attendees will have the opportunity to select the music to be played and will be given a hand at guiding the development of the program.

A course that will combine evening lectures and films with at least two weekend field trips will investigate the plants and trees of south Florida. Gary Pettit will conduct a new class, Flora of South Florida on Monday nights from 7 to 10 beginning April 14 at the Environmental Center.

Local residents are invited to attend any of these classes. The Jensen Beach Community Education Center also earnestly solicits suggestions from residents on other classes and programs they would like offered. Anyone with a suggestion or need is invited to call the Coordinator, Jay Jarrett, at 334-1263 weekday afternoons.

Lion Country was great

The Treasure Coast Senior Services bus trip to Lion Country Safari on Sat. Mar 29, was the greatest in spite of a delayed start (bus late). But, as seniors do like to talk, they had a chance to discuss some of their problems (see below). However, Dot Snyder the tour director got her 14 "chickens" all counted and aboard by 10:30.

They arrived at 12:15, when Dot in true tour director manner negotiated a double discount that she'd previously worked out. Then, away they went to find ashtrays, picnic spot, and there was none, so after seeing that others with brown bags were using empty tables in the airconditioned restaurant, they did likewise. The lunches vanished like magic and soon they were ready to do the area.

Some went to watch the mountain goats and lion cubs, others to the movies, some on the boat ride, or the train ride and still others just stood still and got jabbed in the back by an elephant's trunk. Cameras were a clickin' as peacocks flaunt[illegible] spread their tails and before she knew it, Dot had a group scattered through out the park. When it was time to leave, scouting expeditions had to be sent out, who in turn strayed when the steel drums started to thump. However, Dot was able to count 14 all there at one time, and shoo them into the bus for the trip through the preserve.

Signs said: "keep your windows closed and give elephants the right of way" greeted them, and that they did as they slowly meandered by lions, fancy zebras, elephants, ungainly ostriches, hideous rhinos and lumbering elephants, to be treated to a wild scene of "who's boss around here anyway." It seemed that a huge rhino had strayed into elephant territory and a big bull elephant objected, by lowering his tusk to the ground and charging right at Mr. Rhino. Mr. Rhino stood his ground and there they were eyeball to eyeball for a minute, then rhino makes a hasty retreat with two tusks close behind. When, rhino got back in his own domain with brothers handy, his courage returned and he turned to defy Mr. Elephant. It looked like a real confrontation was in the making and the bus was getting ready to move out when a ranger's truck dashed up, the battlers knew what that meant and quickly gave up the fight.

So, as it can be seen, these 14 seniors had a grand time all day long. When back in Jensen Beach about 5 p.m., after plowing through a very welcome downpour, they parted at each door step, with "let's do it again."

The seniors seemed to be frustrated with hostages, inflation and the primaries so went back to discussing health problems and the constantly increasing costs, with a couple of new angles.

One senior noted that on a recent "60 Minute" program a chemical "DMSO" was mentioned, and testimony indicated that it was a wonderful pain reliever for muscular aches, and very inexpensive. It is available in most foreign countries, but U.S. Food & Drug won't OK it as they don't have proof it is any good (also no proof it's harmful). However, it is available in Oregon and Florida on doctor's prescription, so one sufferer from arthritis is going to ask about it at the arthritis movie and talk at Langford Field, Thur. Apr. 3 (all interested should attend movie).

Another senior mentioned that he saw a brochure last week urging all folks over 65 to have the new pneumonia shot. It will protect them against 14 of the most common or serious types of pneumocal pneumonia. He went on to say that he bet medicare wouldn't cover it, as one had to be expensively ill before insurances became effective. He posed the question, "if Blue Cross is so anxious to reduce health costs, why don't they cover the relatively inexpensive preventative medicine features?" Maybe the senior who writes to folks in high places will give this a try?

CHAPTER EVENTS

The Colonial Penn Ins. consultant service on the 4th Fri. on each month, 9 to 12 at the East Ocean Blvd. branch of the 1st National Bank, with Nancy Gorki, of the Hollywood office on hand to answer questions is just another of those free services, like Tax Aide, that the local chapter of AARP is able to bring to Martin County for all its members.

Here's what was happening, March 1976, Carl Wahlquist of Col. Penn was at meeting to answer questions (now have a monthly service). Jill Morris had a bus tour to Vizcaya (now go to Lion Country). Monthly Bulletin got its name "Golden Eagle" in a naming contest (Marion Curwen was the winner and donated the $10 toward some special refreshments). Senator Chiles wrote (saying he welcomes our suggestions (still welcoming them, and at times heeding them). "HAARP" says old folks can't read the telephone directory fine print, why don't someone do something.

Voters like bridge and draft but don't like oil companies

The Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart ought to be replaced with a fixed, high rise bridge, the draft ought to be reinstated, and the energy crisis has been contrived by the oil companies.

All three of those opinions were supported by a majority of persons taking part in a public opinion poll at the Martin County Fair recently.

The poll was conducted by the Martin County Democrat Executive Committee and was open to anyone attending the fair. A total of 607 ballots were cast.

Replacing the old, often broken down Roosevelt Bridge with a high rise bridge was favored most heavily by the voters. A total of 312 said yes and only 77 voted no.

In response to a question asking if folks believed the oil companies contrived the energy crisis, 280 persons said yes and 104 said no. And, when asked if they favored a national gas rationing program, 180 said yes and 213 said no.

A total of 274 persons said the draft should be reinstated and 129 opposed it. And, provided the draft was reinstated, 207 persons said they felt women should be included in the draft on the same terms as men. Those voting no on that question numbered 195.

When asked if they favored a property tax based on a percentage of income, 259 said no and 115 voted yes.

A total of 202 persons voted against continuation of state policy to provide tax incentives to attract retired citizens to the state and 182 favored the policy.

Those against Martin County paying for a second bridge to Palm City outnumbered those for the proposal by a 248 to 121 margin.

When asked if the county should provide tax incentives to attract industry to the county, 213 said yes and 166 said no.

A total of 219 persons felt government regulation of rates, such as motor freight, telephone tolls, utility charges and railroad freight, should be eliminated, while 148 opposed elimination of the rate regulations.

There were 211 persons opposed to lifting the toll on the Florida Turnpike and 170 in favor of it.

And, when asked if they felt the Presidential preference primary ought to be abolished, 240 said no and 141 said yes.

The battle of the sexes

Shufflers wound down their season with a two day "Battle of the Sexes". But was the most fun they'd had all season. First it was a 2 day battle ending in the greatest upset since Kennedy took New York, with the men winning by a humbling 93 to 63 after 3 years of taking it on the chin. Evelyn Groves was the Petticoat winner with Ralph Barlets, Pete Hillman, Charles Fair and Bill Jones, the Backaroo winners.

Then, at 1:30 on Friday came the "fun 'n' Games" before a bleacher packed audience that jeered and cheered, hollered and whooped at the antics of Guy Fusco's entetainers, starting with some folks doing a lively polka to Guy's record player, as a warm up for the great events to come.

Soon Guy had order out of chaos and with Bea Tourvilles help and a costume parade underway, as half a hundred cameras began to click. There was an Arab Sheik from Iran, Santa in shorts with a raggy shuffle cue, a tall dark and skinny gal, beautiful in flowing gown and hat, top hatted men, derbies too, bathing suits, stumpy and revealing, all ridiculous to outlandish, according de "Buckie & Pettie" (nanakins) who looked on but couldn't tell the men from the women. After much parading the winners were chosen by the Spectator applause and they were: Tall black and skinny, Bert Dandy and Santa with the twiggy cue, Evelyn Dandy.

Next came the contests with licking an ice cream bar on a string to start things off. Amidst the encouraging cheers of the spectators 4 men and 4 gals went right at it with Ed Lasser winning by a hair. It sure was a messy faced bunch that grinned their delight, when quick like a bunny, Guy was supplying paper towels.

The balloon race came next. Couples with one leg tied to the other, had to hobble to the cement wall and sit on a balloon until it broke. First to break both balloons, the winner. Some ran in step, some jumped and skipped, some practically carried each other and it wasn't always the first to arrive that won, for often the balloon was too illusive to sit on properly. The winners were: Bill Eiller, Helen Leaing, Ray Stweart, Dorothy Levitt. Spectators laughed till they cried.

The good ol' pie eating contest, did have a problem; some contestants had second thoughts and didn't choose to run. However, Guy and Bea with a little arm twisting had 4 gals and 4 men lied up and, gobble, gobble they went with with Lou Dodge and Dorothy Glazner the winners. And again Guy was right there with paper towels as soon as needed. All the winners of all contests were awarded silver dollars.

Finally for the wind-up, came the shooting of El Bandito. A barroom scene was set up with all the realistic "props": beer and booze bottles, card tables, gamblers, cards, bar girls, town drunk, sheriff, etc. The scene opended with "the town drunk" staggering around trying to "make" the bar girls, then there was cheating at one table, over went the table, cards and chips all over, as one gambler shot another. Undertaker measure for coffing and game was resumed. However, soon in came El Bandito with big handlebar mustache raise for the occasion (Guy Fusco) to soon get a lil' too fresh with one of the bar girls, and the big brave, drunkd sheriff had to shoot him dead. He too was measured for a coffin and the crowd gave them round after round of applause, to ended another great battle of Sexes with many saying it was the best ever. So, we must be sure to give Guy a special "thank you" for he did it all, wrote the script, made the "props", arranged the games, etc taking up his time when he could have been shuffling.

Square Dancer turned out 4 squares and more, so there'll be another dance to the calling of Jack Hoaken (?) 501. Their Apr. 3. This time they learned Relay the Daisy, so feel they can take what ever Jack has in store.

Camera Club members saw Cape Cod in all 4 seasons via 16 mm movie, that in spite of some sound problems was delightful. There will be movies on Apr 1 and that winds up the season, except for pres. Fran Gunn's committee meeting to make plans for the 1981 season.

Golfers had some winners after all and here's the report: Sat. Mar 22. Edna Moss, F. Miller, J. Frye and S. Gegen and for Sat. Mar 29 Jack Faust, Ken Fallum, C. Williams (Hospital & Obituary).

Ruth Phelps, 14 Pepper is in Room 427. John Kostle, 20 Cocoa is in Room 314 and Ralph Tucker, 16 SW 9th is in Room 777.

Estelle Kennedy, Ex OBPer who's husband Don died recently is back home at 2220 N. 16th Sleepy Hollw number 2, Zephyrhills, Fla 33599, but will go north to 1315 9 Mile Rd, Kenosa, Mich 49340 about April 15. Says ExOBPers Alex & Jo Fevereis are fine and she'll write Laura and Ronnie soon.

FIT offers Real Estate sales course during Spring quarter

Carl Woodbury Johnson, Director of Graduate Studies at Florida Institute of Technology, announced today that the Jensen Beach Campus would begin offer its real estate salesman license course during the Spring quarter.

This 10 week course, a regular three credit undergraduate offering in management science, is based on the approval Florida Board of Real Estate Course 1, Principles and Practices of Real Estate and Real Estate Law required for all applicants for initial licensing as real estate salesmen.

Interested persons may take the course on a non credit basis for a fee of $75, plus texts. Persons desiring undergraduate credit of continuing education units will be charge at the regular undergraduate rates for such credits.

Classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 in Room 13 of the Main Building beginning April 8, with course final examination scheduled June 12.

Although registration for non credit students may be accomplished at any time up to and including the first night of class, early registration is encouraged. Applications for all categories of students are available in the Graduate Office on Jensen Beach campus and may be obtained by calling 334-4200, Ext. 26, during normal business hours.

JAMMED—The Jensen Beach Causeway has been the scene of countless traffic jams during the last few months of the tourist season, and last week was no exception. Cars were backed up well beyond the bridge and a deputy was stationed at the intersection of the causeway and Indian River Drive to direct traffic. State Department of Transportation officials recently toured the area with county officials, and County Commissioner Frank Wacha said he is working on getting a traffic light installed at the intersection. ## Water plant work could begin in June

If all goes well with a Martin County Commission application for a grant and loan from the federal Farm Home Administration, construction of a water treatment plant for the north county area could begin around June.

Last week commissioners authorized their consultant to go forward with the grant and loan applications. The county hopes to receive a $500,000 FHA grant and a $5 million loan from the same federal agency. The loan would carry an interest rate less than bond or bank interest rates and is to be paid off from the water plant revenues.

When asked if President Jimmy Carter's budget cutbacks would affect the county's chances of obtaining the grant or loan Commissioner Wacha said only the grant may be in jeopardy. And, he said the consultant is working on alternative plans of phasing the installation of water transmission lines to some areas in Jensen Beach in the event of a delay in obtaining the grant.

The $5 million loan and $500,000 grant are to be spent on construction of a well field and water treatment plant off Commercial Street near the Pinecrest Lakes development. Also included in the project is construction of water transmission lines from the plant to Sewall's Point to hook into the Southern Gull Utilities water system. That system is to be purchased by the county with a portion of the grant and loan funds. The SGU system also includes a water line from Sewall's Point to homes and condominiums along A1A, the east end of the Jensen Causeway, and MacArthur Boulevard on Hutchinson Island. A new transmission line would be built to go across the Jensen Causeway to hook up to the SGU line, so the entire water system served by the north county treatment plant would form a large loop.

If grant funds are delayed, Wacha said the water transmission line to Ocean Breeze Park, Sewall's Point and the island would not be delayed.

Wacha said he hopes financing for the water plant and transmission lines "is squared away by June." He said if that happens, construction could start quickly. He projected it will take 18 months to build the project.

Denise Slockbower wins Mirror Easter Coloring Contest bunny

Nine-year-old Denise Slockbower came up with an adorable entry in the second annual Mirror Easter Coloring Contest and was selected as the contest's grand prize winner.

It's tempting to say Denise walked off with the grand prize, but the six-foot-tall stuffed Easter bunny was so big compared to Denise that it appeared that the Bunny was doing the walking when Denise came by The Mirror office to collect her prize.

Denise, who lives at 1394 N.E. Cryton Street in Jensen Beach, was one of hundreds of local children who entered the popular contest. Mirror Editor Richard Campbell was judge for the contest and noted that the task was a difficult one, due to the many fine entries submitted. "We have a lot of talented young artists in Jensen Beach," he commented.

Kindergarten: Kelly Patton, first, David Krevitz, second, and Aleks Krumins, third.

First grade: Kristin Hitron, first, Alec Prentice, second, and Susie Duff, third.

Second grade: Denise Slockbower, first and overall winner, Allison Patten, second, and Billy Shanley, third.

Third grade: Adam Smith, first, Kim Cosgrove, second, and Margie Haimes, third.

Fourth grade: Annie Gilio, first, Stephanie Hudnall, second, and David Sager, third.

First prize winners will each receive $5 and second and third prize winners will each receive $1.

RIGHTS-OF-WAY—Dean Tim Tealey presented Jensen Beach Chamber President Dick Campbell with the bike path rights-of way for the entire Florida Institute of Technology property along Sewall's Point Road this week. The property represented over 1,800 feet of right of way for the proposed bike path that the Chamber is seeking this year, to extend from Palmer Road to the Jensen Causeway.

Bike path boost is given by FIT

Over one half of the necessary rights of way for the proposed bike path from Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort to the Jensen Beach Causeway has been obtained, it was announced this week by Dick Campbell, president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Over 1,600 feet of right of way was obtained from Florida Institute of Technology as Tuesday Dean Tim Tealey presented a completed map of the rights of way to Campbell, with a full description of the property.

Also on Tuesday, Mayor Gene Hoke of Ocean Breeze Park offered the necessary right of way to be negotiated in existing areas along the narrow roadway of Indian River Drive.

Campbell said that there are many areas of existing right of way along Indian River Drive that have already been pin pointed by the county engineering department. All property from Palmer Road to Bailey Terrace has been acquired. Also, there is a fifty foot right of way through the Town of Ocean Breeze Park that has been pinpointed by the engineering department, but necessary right of way would have to take into account already developed areas along the road.

There is right of way at Cross Roads Colony and Eva Caulder's apartments at the Crossroads, and enough room through Riverside Trailer Park for the bike path.

Campbell said that a concentrated drive for the right of way would be made in the next few months, depending upon the ability of the county engineering department to provide the necessary legal forms for the easement donations.

The bike path right of way search is the primary thrust of the Chamber program this year in Jensen Beach.

Once-proud Vero Queen sinks in Rio

BY BOB FRYER

A once proud boat is now sitting at the bottom of the St. Lucie River.

About a week ago, the 48 year-old Vero Queen gave up the ghost and sank while tied up at the Anchorage Marina in Rio.

It is tempting to say that the sinking represents dashed dreams of restoring the 42 foot long craft to service as a charter boat for river fishing, but those dreams had faded before the boat went down.

The boat is owned by Joseph Delaney of the El Claire Motel in Rio, and as recently as last year, it was used as a charter boat out of Outdoor Resorts of America. It was certified for 42 passengers and a crew of two, had a 14.8 foot beam and a draft of 3.5 feet.

The captain of the boat then was John Dixon of Rio, and on Tuesday he related how the dream for recommissioning the boat came to its unhappy end.

Dixon said the boat was built in 1931, and in 1970 was restored, with passenger seats installed up front. He said when the seats were built, no provision was made to allow air up forward, causing dry rot to set in.

Delaney had hoped to repair the boat and again put it in service as a charter boat for river fishing, but when the Vero Queen was recently placed in dry dock, Coast Guard officials inspected the boat and listed too many costly repairs to make recertification worth while. "It would have taken about $10,000 to do what the Coast Guard required, and that was just too much," Dixon said.

So, the diesel engine was removed from the Vero Queen and the craft was to be towed out to sea to be sunk.

"We got it to the inlet, but it was too rough to get outside, so we towed it back to the Anchorage Marina. Then someone forgot to plug in the electrical line to the bilge pumps and it sank," Captain Dixon said.

Don McLean, dockmaster at the Anchorage, said the boat apparently sank from leaks, rather than rain, and added that he did not know the boat had returned to the marina until he got up the next morning and someone asked him about the sunken boat.

Captain Dixon said the final fate of the Vero Queen will be to refloat it, tow it to a marina in Port Saleurio, haul it from the water, and cut it up.

WATERY GRAVE—The Vero Queen, a 48-year old craft used as recently as last year for charter fishing trips in the river, now sits on the bottom of the St. Lucie River at the Anchorage Marina. The 42-foot long hunt was to be towed to sea and sunk recently, but the ocean was too rough, so it was taken to the Anchorage to wait for calmer seas. But someone left the bilge pump wires unconnected and the once-proud lady went down. (Photo by Bob Fryer)

Paper collection delay

Free Energy Inc. has decided to place a moratorium on its paper collection project, until "we can get better organized," according to club spokesman Art Hansen.

Free Energy for several years has been collecting old newspapers to sell for recycling, with the goal of building a windmill on the property of the Environmental Center.

With the goal almost in sight, however, the project was brought to an abrupt halt by a fire which destroyed the collection van. According to Fire Chief Joe Luciano, the conflagration was caused by spontaneous combustion, engendered by garbage which had been thrown in the back of the truck.

"We decided to do nothing further until we can get better organized, and get somebody to supervise it," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the 40 foot shaft for the windmill has arrived in Florida.

"We plan to put it up — with volunteer help — so people can see it and perhaps be inspired to volunteer the rest of the money we need," Hansen said.

The funds raised over the past few years didn't extend to the purchase of the windmill's generator and blades. Hopefully, conservation minded citizens will donate money to complete it.

Meanwhile, plans will get underway for resuming the collection program.

"We'd like people to know how appreciative we are of the cooperation we've received, and the trouble they've taken to bale up their newspapers and bring them in, instead of putting them out with the garbage," he said.

Career Day at Martin High

About 90 local business people will discuss their careers and employment opportunities at the annual Careers '80 sponsored by the Stuart-Martin County Chamber of Commerce.

The business people will meet with 10th, 11th and 12th grade students at Martin County High School on Thursday, April 10. Two, 45-minute periods are planned.

Representatives from the medical community, public service, fine arts, construction, business and office, communications and others are giving their time to inform the students of what is available for a career.

Among the business people will be well-known Florida artist Jim Hutchinson.

Students selected careers from a list of 100 and will be meeting with their first and second choices during the two sessions. About 1,800 students will participate.

The discussions will center on type of skills for entry into the job market, salaries and fringe benefits, hours of work, advancement opportunities, availability of jobs, educational needs and equipment requirements.

The Chamber has conducted the same program for several years and received a good response. The 45-minute seminars give the students a basic idea of what to expect in a particular field.

"We just want to acquaint the young people realistically with the work world," said chamber executive Ray Navitsky. "It is expensive and time consuming for the volunteers but it will be rewarding for them and the students."

Navitsky said there is a deep interest and concern in the business community to know that students are prepared for the working world and getting the expertise is invaluable.

Jam session is Sunday at VFW

Lawmen seek clues to murder of former Jensen Beach woman

Dade County Public Safety Department detectives are investigating the murder of a 20-year-old former Jensen Beach woman whose body was found on March 29th in a secluded area near Homestead, Florida.

Homicide detective Robert Edgerton identified the slain woman as Cynthia Tranowski, and said her body was found in a field about six miles from Homestead off a road that had been closed to traffic.

The body was decomposed and it took lawmen six days of searching fingerprint records before she was positively identified. Edgerton said Tuesday that the medical examiner who performed an autopsy estimated she had been dead about 10 days before her body was discovered, and Edgerton said the cause of death is believed to be asphyxiation, possibly by strangulation.

Her body was clad only in cut-off blue jeans and was partially covered by leaves and branches. Edgerton said the field where she was found was along a road that had been paved for a future development, but was barred to traffic.

The detective said the woman's parents and sister are Jensey Beach residents and that she had worked in Martin County last year. He said she was most recently a transient in the Homestead area, living only brief periods of time at any one residence. Her most recent occupation was as a barmaid in Homestead, he said, but noted that she had worked for Martin County Tax Assessor Augie Maltzegot from February, 1977 to January, 1979 and that she had also once worked as a cashier at the Piggly Wiggly store in Stuart.

Edgerton said a number of suspects are under consideration and that he spent all day Tuesday taking statements from persons in Homestead.

Record construction is planned for Southern Bell

Southern Bell officials announced today its projected construction program for 1980 in the Stuart area, and said this year's program should reach a record expenditure in Martin County of more than $13 million.

Bill Dumont, Southern Bell Manager, said, "This investment in new facilities represents our projections for the future of this community. Obviously, we look forward to continued strong growth in the 1980's."

These expenditures are based upon a forecast which projects a growth of 10% in 1980. This would represent approximately 2,400 new telephones by the end of 1980, and 29,000 additional installations by 1990.

An engineering force of 50 people are responsible for the design of these new facilities, which will call for placing more than 1.3 billion feet of copper wire. These wires will be needed to connect the future telephone customers of Martin County.

In addition to the copper wire, 550,000 feet of plastic pipe will be placed in underground conduit development at a cost of nearly $2.5 million.

The major conduit undertakings will be on Indian Avenue in Stuart and on U.S. 1 in the Hobe Sound area.

"Approximately 35 individual projects will start in 1980 to provide cables throughout many different new subdivisions in this area," stated Dumont. These small projects stretch from the Jonathan's Landing Development in Jupiter to the new sections now being developed in the southern end of Port Saint Lucie.

"The obligation to provide facilities for our customers when and where they need them, requires a careful mix between planning and building for the future, and a constant control which will avoid wasteful overbuilding," Dumont commented. "It takes a team effort on the part of all Bell System employees in this area."

Southern Bell presently employs more than 200 people in the Martin County area. Sixty of these employees are directly involved with construction of new facilities. This group in Martin County is but a small portion of more than 32,000 Floridians who are employees of Southern Bell.

QUESTION: My tax advisor has been talking straight line depreciation on a small income property which I own. The property is an apartment building, and I wonder if I can take a more rapid method of depreciation?

ANSWER: You may accelerate your depreciation on an apartment building to 125 percent of straight line if it has a useful life of at least 20 years, and, if at least 80 percent of the income from the property comes from nontransient residential tenants.

The strategy in taking depreciation is to take as much as you can use and no more. In other words, if you are in a relatively low income bracket now it might be wise to take a straight line depreciation, particularly if you anticipate being in a higher income tax bracket at a later date.

If you were to take accelerated depreciation today, in a few years when you may need the depreciation deductions even more, you would end up with less depreciation because the declining balance method of depreciation gives you less and less depreciation each year.

You should carefully evaluate your present and anticipated tax situation before determining whether to take straight line depreciation or one of the accelerated methods. If it appears that depreciation will be of greater value to you in later years, you might find that you are better off not to accelerate now.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Sewall's Point ponders building fire station

In 1970, Sewall's Point had 298 residents. This year, more than 1,100 people will claim residence in the town.

This additional influx raises the question of whether or not funds should be appropriated for a local fire station.

The issue was raised Tuesday night before the relatively new board of commissioners. Mayor Ed Gluckler said he submitted the plans for the proposed $72,000 station to the regional planning council, who have been asked by the governor to list potential projects that would receive state funding.

Gluckler said that "it's a recessionary move as far as the governor is concerned," adding that "federal funds will be disbursed by the state."

Back in 1976, a comparable program was implemented when the construction trade hit a slump. At that time, Sewall's Point received a $30,000 grant through the county.

When asked if and when an answer would be forthcoming, Gluckler said "It depends on economics. If everything goes to pot ... soon." He added that being that this is an election year, action might be stepped up.

The proposed fire station "lot," located on South Sewall's Point Road, and approximately one acre in size, was purchased from Mrs. Vaughn Monroe two years ago, with the original intent to make a park out of it.

Dick Bohner questioned the commissioners as to what a fire station would do to surrounding property values, expressing concern over the lot-his mother owned adjacent to the proposed site.

The existing District Two station, located 3.5 miles from the town, demands nearly maximum fire insurance premiums because of the distance. A local station would reduce those premiums.

Presently, the town is under a $2,000 per year contract with District Two to service the area. The contract will run for another two years. Gluckler said he is pleased with the present service, and stated that the proposed station in Sewall's Point would be a branch of the same fire department.

The town of Sewall's Point had a new addition to the existing three man police force.

Glenn Beale, who is to be officially approved by the commissioners at the regular meeting Wednesday evening, is presently employed by the Pompano Police Department.

Jo-Ann Montoro to be nurse at Air Force base

Second Lieutenant Jo-Ann Montoro, daughter of Cecilia Hentz of 1551 N.E. 13th Terrace, Jensen Beach, Fla., has graduated from the U.S. Air Force medical service officer orientation course at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, Texas.

The course teaches newly commissioned Medical Corps officers the professional and administrative procedures of the Air Force.

Lieutenant Montoro now goes to Travis Air Force Base, Calif., where she will serve as a staff nurse.

A 1976 graduate of Clearwater High School, Clearwater, Fla., the lieutenant earned a bachelor's degree in 1978 from Florida State University at Tallahassee.

Pocketbook issues

The people vote emotion and pocketbook. Their ideas comprise a fairyland of naivetjae in economics.

This was shown in the voting for various issues in the Martin County Fair, conducted at the booth of the Democratic Committee.

For example, asked if there should be a high level bridge over the St. Lucie River to replace the Roosevelt Bridge, the people voted yes. But, asked if the county should pay for another bridge across the St. Lucie River at Palm City, the people voted no.

The people voted yes to the idea that oil companies created the energy crisis, but voted no to national gas rationing.

The people also voted against attracting retirees to the state with tax incentives and for tax incentives to attract industry.

Where it hit their pocketbook, the people voted no. Where they felt it wasn't going to cost a dime of their own money, the people voted yes.

Sometimes it helps to look at things in perspective.

Everyone favored the acquisition of the Jensen Savannas. The state was buying the land, so everyone felt that it wouldn't touch them. But it did. The money came from taxes and people. Besides that, about $50,000 in tax dollars was taken from the tax rolls of Martin County alone, and much more in St. Lucie County. Someone had to make up those dollars.

Guess who.

It should be responsibility of the government and the media to tell people what it costs for this or that, and make certain that they know where the money is coming from.

There is no free lunch.

Flushed with success

No one really likes to talk about toilets. It seems a subject is not so proper for drawing rooms. But toilets are of great import in this area of South Florida, to say the least.

I could go on and on on toilets, but won't, as my feelings become hurt, and my expression paused as I think of the many times I have had to fight them.

At home, our toilet talks back to us. It gurgles, bubbles and burps.

Sally says not to throw cigarette butts into the toilet, as the filters are not bio degradable. I feel that it is an invasion of my privacy, and if I want to toss a cigarette butt into the john, I can.

I do.

That is when the fun begins.

I push down the handle. Great swooshes of water storm into the bowl. The water swirls, counter clockwise, down the drain. (Did you ever know why the water goes counter clockwise, instead of clockwise down the drain? Ever thought about it? Well, north of the equator, due to the centrifugal force of the earth, the water drains in a counter clockwise direction. Didn't know that, did you?)

When it reaches the end, the drain talks. "Gllurk . . . Glurk. Galopgliugumph," it says.

There is a moment of quiet. Then, as I start to turn away, there is a "blurp" and up comes the cigarette butt. I could swear the toilet seat is smiling.

I lay four one foot sections of toilet paper over the cigarette butt. Then I wait for an indeterminable length of time for the tank to fill. Even the tank talks to me, teasing me with three or four false shut-offs before going into the noise that sounds like someone pulling apart the neck of a balloon to make a whistling sound.

I make certain that the toilet tissue is fully saturated before pressing down the handle again.

Swoosh, swirl, glurk, glurk, galopgliugumph . . . blurp and there is that darned cigarette butt again, and the toilet seat smiles.

Sometimes it takes three or four times to get it down. I must admit here lately that I have not smoked in the bathroom. I just don't have the time to wait.

Then there is the john at the office. The one on the second floor is the best. It can galopgliugumph with the best of them, but for awhile, it didn't do anything.

One day, Bob Fryer came out cussing and stomping and yelling about the john not working and being plugged up. I immediately went to work with my trusty plunger, but nothing happened. I got the plumber here with a "snake" and he found a plastic spoon down there.

How the devil a plastic spoon got into the john, I'll never know.

Many remember the time that I called Al Walker to get rid of that toilet's predecessor. I got so mad at it I had Al disconnect it and toss it out the window. This one has lasted about 15 years before getting cantankerous.

It has a habit of getting a loose drain ball in the tank. The arm on the handle becomes bent, and doesn't allow the ball to sit flush to the water outlet. Thus, the water streams down into the tank and out into the bowl without filling the tank.

Every time it happens, I get into that thing and bend back the arm, the ball falls into place and we are back in business. Don't ask me how the arm gets bent. It is probably the work of the toilet itself, trying to bug me.

And, whoever designed the john under the stairwell on our lower floor of the office had to be a midget or a contortionist. You sit there with the doorknob in your mouth, knees against the door and an uneasy fear that the lock won't hold if someone takes hold of the knob.

People out there in Mirrorland must have similar problems. Let me know if yours are the same. We're all just trying to get ahead.

Froggie has a 'wooing 'gone

I have a new housemate. Her name is Hermmette, and she's the perfect companion to have around.

She doesn't switch off my favorite television shows; she never gets irritated when I want to write letters; nor does she gripe about my general slovenliness.

As a matter of fact she doesn't say a word. She just sits there all dolled up in her prettiest makeup in my white and orange rocking chair and listens sympathetically to all my grumbling, grunts and groans. She gives me no back sass, no matter how mean or vulgar I get.

Hermmette, (I've already named her Hermie for short), is a frog. A great big, slightly overweight but vain froggess.

If she weren't so definitely female, I'd be tempted to kiss her and turn her into a handsome prince. On the other hand, a prince might be a nuisance to have around, ordering breakfast in bed and demanding that I dress for dinner every night.

No Hermie will do just fine, like she is.

Hermie came into my life as quite a surprise. I'd left the office for my requisite daily nap (if I don't get it I fall asleep in my typewriter) and was still snoozing when Rose Washburn, dear sister worker on the Mirror and next door neighbor roused me with the news of a present for me.

She deposited the whatever inside the door and left.

When I got both eyes open, I was faced with a big green garbage bag, out of which popped this giant frog, a foot and a half high, all gussied up with a calico pinafore, and enough lipstick to make you wonder what she does for moonlighting.

Accompanying her was a note which read:

"Dear Sally, my name is Hermmette." I don't bark, but do croak. You can see I am very green (Sort of like Green Dog.) Today my friend thought you would enjoy me staying with you since Green Dog never came back.

"I was born March 20, 1980, in Sanford, Fla. Mrs. Betty Caloosa of Port St. Lucie told Aunt Margaret about you so since Mrs. Betty thought you would love me so much, well, here I am."

Marvel of marvels, Mrs. Betty Caloosa! You've put a new dimension in my life. First, that you should remember my life and travels with Green Dog (they seem such a long time ago,) and second, that, knowing there'll never be another Green Dog, Hermie should prove the perfect replacement.

For the benefit of those of you who never heard the saga of Green Dog, I herewith explain the depths of my nostalgia over him.

Green Dog wasn't just any dog. In appearance, he reminded one somewhat of the Shaggy DA, and was almost the same size. He came to me some years back with the same element of surprise as Hermie has, when he entered my life.

I had been visiting friends and family in Pompano when I met Green Dog at the home of a couple of young neighbors, and I was smitten — love at first sight. But you can't have every thing, I told myself, and I returned dutifully to Fort Pierce and back to the old grind.

When I opened the trunk of my car (Green Pea, just in case you didn't know its name) there, filling to overflowing the rear storage space, was Green Dog. He had apparently fallen in love with me, too, and had stowed away.

After that, Green Dog and I were inseparable. He went with me everywhere, tilted back rakishly on the passenger seat because he was too tall to sit up straight. He made friends with all the kids on the street where I lived, and caused all kinds of interesting conversation at stop lights.

"What the h- kind of a dog is that?" "Does he backwash drive?" "Some crazy lady, chauffeuring a damn green dog in her car." Just as if they'd never seen a Green Dog before!

Green Dog's ending was a sad one, but glorious. We'd driven across the state for my class reunion at the elegant Don Cesar in St. Pete. We rolled grandly up the curving ramp leading to the hotel's entrance, and were treated with great respect by bell boys and grandiose guests alike. One gentleman dressed in striped morning pants and about to alight in a Cadillac even came over, tipped his hat, and asked for an introduction.

Then came the sad ending. We'd made it back all the way across the state in companionable silence, and I was tired. Since Green Dog didn't have his driver's license, I opted for a stop and a bit of refreshment at Nick's Hilltop House. It didn't occur to me to lock the car, feeling sure Green Dog would keep an eye on things.

When I emerged, no Green Dog. He had been dognapped.

Thinking someone was pulling a gag on me, I inquired around among my friends of more criminal bent, but no one could be broken down to confession. I even had assistant DA Jimmy Midelis put out an APB on him, to no avail.

So Hermie isn't going to go riding with me very often, except on special occasions. I don't think the sheriff's office would look kindly on any reports of frog napping.

But she's going to be nice to have around. When I leave the house in the morning, all my spleen will have been vented on her, and I can be sweet as honey for the rest of the day.

A tragic loss

It might have been spontaneous combustion, but probably was arson. Amidst the tons of newspapers, and twisted wreckage of a tractor trailer, investigating firemen found a few beer cans.

Someone had a party.

It was an expensive party.

It is not the loss of $500 that the Free Energy Society might have earned from recycling the newspapers collected that is so important. It is the loss of the trailer, and the possible termination of plans to make Jensen Beach a showcase of alternative power sources.

Art Hansen, the man who has spearheaded the fund-raising for the group, is about as fed up as he can be. He has driven from point to point, collecting newspapers in his auto to move them to the trailer.

Much of what Hansen did, he did alone. Helpers were few, and no one can blame him for his disgust that after all that work the vehicle for his labors went up in flames.

The wreckage of the trailer has been a daily reminder to passersby of the loss to the community. It seems a shame that the fire came just as the parts for an experimental windmill arrived.

Hansen says that the windmill will be built, possibly powering an electric light or pumping some water to irrigate the Environmental Center lawn.

We wish we could offer some solace, some encouragement, to the Free Energy group, but our disappointment is too great. We do hope that the Free Energy group will continue with their plans, and their efforts on behalf of alternative energy source development.

Best time of the year

Traditionally, the passing of Easter marks the end of the tourist season in Jensen Beach.

Some folks leave our area and head north during the weeks leading up to Easter, but a lot of them stick around until Easter is over, then pack up and return to their northern homes.

Usually, by the time the snowbirds leave, Spring is in full bloom here. This year is no exception. When they get home, they get to enjoy the start of Spring all over again. No doubt, they also get to gloat, to the dismay of their non-migratory friends, about how nice their winter was in Florida.

The snowbirds probably figure they have the best of two worlds: Florida when it's cold up north, and life up north when it's not cold.

But I can't agree with them.

That's because, the way I see it, they're going home just when it gets nicest around here.

Florida got its name because of its abundance of flowers. And in the coming months, we year-round residents will be enjoying a dazzling show of colorful blooms. And thanks to Edwin Menninger, we even have an abundance of flowering trees in our area.

That's not all we have to be thankful for. From now until June, we'll have some of the best weather imaginable. And, for the true natives who don't mind the heat, the summer months will be just as glorious.

There's another thing we'll enjoy in those months. That's relatively uncrowded roads.

In the winter season, the Winnebagos and tow-behind campers and thousands of cars with northern license plates clog our inadequate roadways. They also crowd our stores and make those cash registers jingle, so nobody complains too much. But in the Spring and Summer months, the slower pace of business is compensated for by the quickened pace on our thoroughfares.

No longer is going from Jensen to Stuart a major undertaking, and a trip to the local supermarket is much more tolerable when you don't have to add an extra 20 minutes of waiting in line time.

The beaches are still crowded, but not as much as they are on the warm winter days. And, it's much easier to spot folks you know around town during the off season, as your odds of running into them are increased by the diminished population of strangers.

From now until the cool breezes of autumn begin to blow, the fishing gets better too. Snook can be caught year round, but the really big monsters are usually caught in the late summer months. And, as far as I'm concerned, you can't find a better fish to eat than snook. Except, perhaps, for Dolphin. And those lucky enough to own a boat large enough to fish in the ocean can catch plenty of them in the Summer.

There's another thing we'll be blessed with in the coming months. That's Daylight Savings Time. It starts later this month, and when you couple that with the progressively longer days of sunshine we'll get through mid-June, it makes for plenty of after work daylight to romp around in and weekends that seem to last longer than the winter ones do.

And, if that's not enough, we get a nicer ocean in the Spring and Summer months than we have during the tourist season. In the winter, the storms that kick up the ocean can last for a week or so. But in the Summer, the sea is usually calm and glassy. And, if a storm comes, it's here and gone in a matter of hours.

Make no mistake. We need our snowbirds to help us survive in business. Some year-round residents may grumble about the long lines in traffic and at the stores, but we couldn't do without them. But for the hard-cores who love this place on a full-time basis, the good times are just beginning.

The completion of A-1-A down Hutchinson Island was being rushed after a barge hit the south bridge in Ft. Pierce, stranding over 100 autos on the beach. The state road department constructed a cat-walk across the broken span for foot traffic, but autos had to drive the 18 miles to Jensen over shellrock to get across the Indian River.

Jensen residents responded to the Mirror appeal for funds to paint the arch, with paint being donated and over $100 donated for labor.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Anti-nuclear forces claim that nuclear power plants endanger lives, that the country doesn't need nuclear energy, that sunshine and energy derived from conservation and other sources will do the job.

Actually, there has never been a nuclear-related fatality in a commercial American nuclear power plant.

Solar energy, synthetic fuels, wind, and the tides are very uncertain energy sources. Nuclear energy, however, is a proven source that already provides 13 percent of the electrical energy of this country.

With America's energy demands doubling and tripling over the next 20 years, it is madness to talk of closing down the industry that offers the greatest hope of meeting those demands.

The issue, in short, is economic survival for America.

Blues fill fishermen's Easter baskets full

The blues made a bonus Easter present for area Isaac Waltons over the weekend, according to local fishing experts. They started running heavily in the surf on Saturday, and still were being brought in at great rate on Monday.

The weatherman cooperated, providing great fishing conditions with temperatures ranging from the mid sixties to the high eighties, sending anglers by the score to the river and surf.

Among the proudest of prize catchers was 11 year old Mike Pace, who came in with 19 blues out of the surf, on Krockadil, according to a spokesman for the Snook Nook.

Other good catches reported there were: Andy Jorgensen, 25 whiting and croaker in the surf on shrimp; R. Seidner, three whiting and two pompano in the surf on shrimp; Otto Sekinger, 20 whiting out of the surf on shrimp and clam.

Also Morris Polen, eight whiting and a four pound pompano, in the surf on sand fleas and shrimp; Joe Friedman, 14 whiting and blues in the surf on sand fleas; Rose and Jess Welch, five blues, up to 11½ pounds, in the surf on cut bait; Bruce Miles, six blues in the surf on cut mackerel.

Connie Hoey, eight blues, a redfish and a seven pound channel bass out of the surf on Krockadil; Oscar Klabunde and Harold Abbott, seven blues up to 11 pounds in the surf on Krockadil; John Nevin, 21 blues in the surf on Krockadil; Carter Cook, 10 blues on the surf on a Krockadil spoon; Joe Barila, 14 blues in the surf on Krockadil; Rick Campana, 16 blues in the surf on Krockadil.

Bill Austin Thatcher, 24 blues out of the surf on Krockadil; Charlie Neff, 10 blues in the surf on Krockadil; Lee and Wally Corbett, 14 blues and 16 whitefish in the surf on cut bait.

Rex McGee, eight black bass to five pounds and five bream on poppers, out of the savannas; Charlie Arend, six trout out of the Indian River on live shrimp; Jack Prudhomme and Jack Jr., 10 trout out of the river on Mirolure.

Jensen Bait and Tackle reports a variety of strikers caught in the Indian River, by Art and Mildred Segal.

"In all my years, I've never gotten a mackerel in the river," said veteran angler Tony Battaglia.

The Segals also got four weakfish and six ribbonfish while out the same day, on live shrimp.

Other catches reported by JB Tackle were: Peter Bixby, 45 whiting and croakers, out of the surf on sandfleas; Bill Freeman, an eight pound bitse, in the river on cut bait; Ron Witek, 19 blues in the surf on cut bait.

Battaglia himself brought in 19 blues up to seven pounds on Easter morning, and 16 blues the next day, up to 12 pounds out of the surf on ribbonfish.

Loads of paperwork to buy more Savannas

BY ROB RYER

Calling it the biggest undertaking I've tackled in the 17 years I've lived here, conservationist Dr. Walter Stokes told the Martin County Anglers eight months a Monday night that he is working feverishly to save more of the Savannas.

Dr. Stokes is credited with spearheading efforts that resulted in the state purchase of hundreds of acres of the Savannas with funds for environmentally endangered lands. The purchase involved years of paperwork and negotiations with scores of individual land owners.

Dr. Stokes said Monday that the job isn't completed. "We have two thirds, maybe three fourths, of what is needed to preserve the Savannas," he said.

In spite of the work already done, Dr. Stokes said an application for additional state purchase of Savannas land must be processed from scratch, as if there had been no previous purchase. And he said the application must be filed by May 14.

It will take about 40 sheets of legal sized paper for the application, and we'll have to have 10 copies of it, plus three copies for local governments. We've been through all of this before, but we'll have to do it all over again," he noted, adding that when the application is in, it will be among about 200 other applications to be considered by state officials.

Martin and St. Lucie county commissioners and Port St. Lucie council members will be asked to vote on the application before it goes to state authorities, he said.

In other action at the Anglers Club meeting Dr. Stokes said the Izaak Walton League is seeking state as well as federal funds for protection of the South Fork of the St. Lucie River, but he said with federal budget cuts, funds from the federal government are not likely anytime soon.

Club members voted unanimously to oppose an application for a commercial marina facility in the St. Lucie River east of the Pierpont Condominium project. It is requested by developers proposing to build a condominium project to be known as Four Winds, and the request calls for a pier to extend 450 feet into the river with two "T" piers and 26 finger piers.

Club President Bob Hemberger said the water in the area is only nine inches deep "for quite a ways," and he speculated the developers would later ask for permission to dredge.

BEAUTIFUL QUILT—June Hansen displays a magnificent quilt she made for the Jensen Beach Community Church. For years, she has been making quilts as a church project for the Sunland Center, a retarded children's hospital near Orlando. At a recent gathering of church women, she was honored for her long years of work. The quilt shown in the photo in a Pennsylvania Dutch pattern. When asked how long she had been making quilts for the Sunland Center, Mrs. Hansen said she wasn't sure, but added, "I know it was a few years before 1966, because I still have a clipping from The Mirror from that year which shows me sewing one." CHAPTER
AARP

BY ERNIE CURWEN
334-4756

The Langford Park Senior Center is still only 3 logs high, but that didn't stop them from having a gala Easter party in the old Field House, as the Treasure Coast Senior Services arranged a Hat Parade and all the kids on Thur. Apr. 3.

First there was the sound of music: Connie Betsch, piano; Allen Betsch, drums; Alta Russell, Hawaiian guitar; Elliot Arluck (prog. dir.), sax, played live tunes for dancing, with solos by Smitty Smith (Sending); Alta Russell (harmonica Love Send); Gladys Matheson (I Want To Be Happy; and a duet by Alta and Smitty. It was great! and that was only the beginning.

The Hat Parade was a sight to behold as 25 of the prettiest and most ridiculous hats passed by the judging stand and Elliot's applause meter. There were hats with birds perched sky high; kitchen utensils embellished with feathers and ribbons, and some with live geraniums. It was difficult to pick the winners: Mable Grant (Dressy); Dot Snyder (pretty & pretty nearly everything); Gus Schoenen (very (quite bizarre).

Finally, there was the awarding of fancy hard boiled eggs, supplied by Site Mgr Dorris Walker, to those who had an "X" on the bottom of their coffee cups. It was a superb party and the seniors let the entertainers know they appreciated it by their loud applause and an extra round or two for Dorris who made it all possible.

There was a very interesting meeting of MCCA (Martin County Council on Aging). Thur Apr 3 at the library. Exec Dir George Jacobs remarked that they had survived having to lay off some workers, just hired the day before. This month they have 16 new openings available, now have 22 paid employees, 7 in office, 15 in the field and 3 volunteers. With the 70 meals on wheels workers, they have quite an organization ready to be of service to the seniors of Martin county.

For 3 or 5 years there have been 3 or 4 buses taking the seniors to shopping centers, doctors, etc. 5 days a week with door to door service, and excursions to out of town events on the weekends. Just call 283-2242 and let the details (folks with gasoline cost problems can be accommodated).

Outreach worker, Ray Richardson spoke on the plight of some seniors, saying that although he can't visit the 9,000 seniors of Martin County he does see many (of them. Some are cases where the individual income is only $150 per month (latest Gov Fig for poverty level is $350 for one and $600 for a couple) Many times it is cases of not knowing what benefits they were entitled to.

Chapter Events

The best health movie of the season was enjoyed by 40 seniors, Thur Apr 3 at Langford Field House. An interesting movie showed that 20 million Americans had some form of arthritis and most were not well informed about it, often believe myths, like the following:

"Arthritis is mainly an old folks disease, certain foods will cause it; special diets will cure it, vibrating machines are a sure cure, certain regions will prevent or cure it; it can be quickly cured, brand of aspirin more important than amount; aspirin use should be stopped when pain is gone, gout is caused by high living. All are really false.

Dr. George Turmail explained the above and answered dozens of questions in down to earth language so the seniors got a true understanding of the problems, and here is some of it.

Osteoarthritis, the old folks specialty, is a wear & tear thing, where the cartilage between bone joints gets rough, to finally wear out, is a painful bone on bone condition. Aspirin relieves pain and actually rebuilds the cartilage. He said, take them steadily pain or not and the best time to take, is when it's on the way through a meal.

Rheumatoid is for everybody, children, women around 40 years and of course the aged, it comes and goes sometimes for good, often starts with a wrist; it's symetrical. The limp around the joints go haywire and swell. Aspirin is also great for this, as it reduces swelling as it relieves the pain. Take them regularly, if they don't cause stomach or thin blood problems.

Gout is caused by too much uric acid, making deposits around big toe and elsewhere. There is a good enzyme pill for this.

Arthritis is complicated and complex, and throughout the talk Doctor Turmail frequently warned the seniors that they should keep in touch with their doctor at all times, especially when under treatment with other than aspirin (prescription drugs), as the side effects can be hazardous.

Then, it was asked, "What about the chemical DMSO, mentioned on, "60 Minutes", recently?". Dr. Turmail said he used it in 1970, at an arthritis seminar in Colorado with amazing results. However, all the problems of side effects have not been resolved, but right now it looks as though there was another super drug in the making, as it sure does work in relieving pain and has other splendid features, but U.S. has only released it for use in Florida and Oregon, so far, at a prescription drug. But, it is dreadfully expensive for humans, $16 a jigger, whereas, veterinarians can get it for $16 a gallon for their animals. He closed with, there is help for all sufferers with many new drugs coming on the market, but be sure to consult your doctor as some of the newer ones are not being recommended.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWER
Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

A Happy Easter was enjoyed by many owners, visitors and grandchildren over the lovely weekend. The Easter Egg Hunt was a huge success. Olive Taylor and Bob Long were the chairpersons with plenty of other helpers. And two bunnies, Ethel Shellhorn and Harriet Beyer were adorable in their costumes. They continued on after the hunt to visit in the Park to the delight of many children.

Easter Service at Pavilion Church was attended by 230 persons. As we entered Dee Brink was softly playing the organ. Martha Lewis was the Lay Leader. Then the Hobe Sound Bible College senior choir, 35 strong, with Mr. Coons as director, Mrs. Finch accompanist on the piano. Gave us the entire service, very beautiful and so appreciated. Next Sunday our guest will be Geo. Bares, organist.

A crowd of 100 attended Friday Night Bingo, not withstanding "Good Friday". The attendance is slowly diminishing – many are homeward bound. Birthday greetings was extended by song to Sue Light.

Seven surprize packages were awarded to lucky card holders. The super prize (weekly carry-over), was won by John St. Denis. Winner take all first prize was won by Henry Bischoff, with F. Keown taking second prize. Bob Holden did a fine job of number calling. Lester Ullmann and Wm. McWhirk took able care of card clearances. Frank Praz was the host for the evening. Millie Praz and Catty Ullmann had charge of refreshments.

Cards on Monday night had 8 tables. May Scott had 5810, Sophia Holler 5520, Gordon Mann 4900, Melba Mann 4500, Booby prize winner, Donald Riley 1030.

The So & So Club played games and received prizes. And also ate delicious food at the Recreation Hall Thursday, March 20. 45 girls enjoyed the last meeting of the year. Marie Gramstorff was chairperson with many helpers. The flowers on every table were lovely.

Lena & Bob Black enjoyed a few days at Sugar Loaf Key with Lena's brother. They brought home a few fish, but no large ones. Amber has been quite tired since she returned.

Artie Smith & his old fashioned iron kettle, cooked a delicious rump roast. Lisbee put her touch to the rest of the dinner for guests Al & Peg Ray.

Sorry to report, since our last column, we had hoped that Otto Fischlein would be home from the hospital. He was taken to the Samaritan Hospital for surgery instead. He had had the surgery, and at present is in intensive care. But is recovering nicely now. Anyone wanting to send cards, send to Mrs. here at Park.

Mr. Willie Wilk of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, passed away on April 1, Mr. & Mrs. Wilk have been winter visitors of Holiday Out, Lot 4 for several years.

VIEW FROM THE DOCK—The story of the Ralph Hartman home is a tale of two-story casual elegance. Separate porch conversation areas make entertaining a pleasure for hosts and guests alike.

COZY LIVING AREA—Becomes huge entertainment area when drapes and doors are opened in Ralph Hartman home.

Hartman has faith in Jensen's future

LOWER DECK - The ground level porch of the Ralph Hartman home, looking out on the river leads into ground floor apartment where guests and children can enjoy their own privacy

Jensen Beach may grow and flourish, but it'll never be lost in the cement jungle, as so many towns to the south have been.

This is the opinion of one who should know. Ralph Hartman, a third generation native of these parts has learned real estate at the knees of pioneers. His grandfather, J. B. McDonald was the first mayor of Stuart and a real estate man in his own right.

Ralph and his attractive blonde wife Florine live in a sprawling, lovely and lovable house of unusual design, on River Road on the banks of the St. Lucie River. It is a house designed for hospitality and is frequently peopled by their combined children, of whom there are many.

A second marriage for both, Ralph has six children and seven grandchildren, and Florine has two grown children. Taken together, they literally encircle the globe.

For example, Ralph Hartmen III is in Hawaii, and will graduate from college in May; son Reuu is in Evansville, Ind.; Stephen Hartman is captain of an oil research boat out of Singapore; his twin daughters are Kay Moore and Karen Malfregeot of Stuart, and son Peter is here in the real estate business with his father.

Ralph had his home built six years ago, with the well known architect Peter Jefferson. It is an "inside-out house," with every square inch of the interior put to good use.

Its most distinctive feature, in the living area is the "gallery," a loft over the kitchen reachable by retractible stairs. The grandchildren particularly love it up there, where there's a bed for napping, playthings, and records, among other oddments. It also gives Florine added storage space for those seldom used pieces one likes to tuck out of the way.

The living room isn't large, but it doesn't have to be, because the house is surrounded by a wrap around porch, with separate conversation areas on two sides of the dining room which overlooks the ever changing panorama of the river.

"We do most of our living out here," Ralph said.

The sliding doors open when the weather is nice, and voila! – limitless space for entertaining.

The house was designed to fit the landscape like a glove, following the contour of the slope down to the river's edge where Ralph and his neighbor share a covered boat dock. And you don't have to make the long haul up the steps when you come in from a hot and windblown boat ride. There's a small apartment on the lower level of the house, with twin couches, a TV set, and a full bath. It's a great room well used when the children and grandchildren come to visit.

Down here, you feel reassured by the sturdiness of the residence, when you take a good look at the reinforced hard pine pilings locking the structure deep into the earth.

Ralph likes to build things that are going to last – as witness the railroad ties which have been used as risers on the steps down to dock, and around the base of the terrace.

Florine's expertise as an interior decorator can be seen in evidence throughout the home – the adroitly color harmonized upholstery which enhances the mystery of the foliage outside, and the use of collectors plates to frame the doorway. The whole house is geared toward friendly living.

The fact that Ralph Hartman has lived up to the community leadership tradition in his family can be found in the records of nearly every worthwhile area organization. He is past president of the Martin Memorial Hospital board, the Martin County Historical Society, the Audubon Society, the Jaycees, the Board of Realtors and the Rotary, to name a few.

But, like all men of genuine stature, he has taken his jobs seriously, but not himself.

"My mother (Mary McDonald Hartman) was a newspaperwoman for years," he said. "With every one of them she'd say, 'here's another one for your obituary.'"

GALLEY STAIRS—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hartman demonstrate their handy "stairway to the stars," leading up to combination den and playroom for the kids. When not in use, the steps easily retract to become part of the ceiling decor.

LANDSCAPE HUGGER—The home of Ralph and Florine Hartman, with its private end-of-the-street location, nestles into the riverfront landscape as if it had grown there. It is a home to be lived in and enjoyed.

THE HOSTS AT HOME – Ralph and Florine Hartman relax in one of the several porch areas that surround their River Road home. The house is so cozily located on its dead-end hillside site that parties can be private to all except river traffic.

Many homes are now shuttered up, but still it's bumper to bumper on E. Ocean Blvd., as the Easter visitors revoll the local population we had 30 leave the park last week making the season total 105. They have gone to 'em, us weather, but the Easter visitor did get a taste of Martin County at its best and many have a sun tan to flaunt when they go back.

When the winter residents fly north it does give us regulars a bit more room, but it presents problems, like the Night Patrol needs some replacements. Then, to help with summer security, some are putting a heavy grill on their palouse doors as recommended by Lt. Hill Scott of the Sheriff's dept. It looks like a very good idea.

Park Events

Sunday service at 7:30 a.m. in the clubhouse was very well attended, as well it should be, for the P.A. system was telling the OBPers "Hurry, hurry or they'll be late." Rev. Milton Fransoe as usual conducted the service; the O.B. Chorus with Margret Reid directing sang a special number. Ralph Ortt was song leader and Bessie Thrift was the accompanist. There were many joyous crys of "Happy Easter to you" as the folks drifted home after the service with many exclamations of "What a perfect day."

Square dancers have had it as there was only 2 sets. Thur. Apr. 3, when Jack Hosken, caller, taught them many of the "Diamond Formation". However, they just couldn't compete with church, Gala Day, rain and Easter visitors, so Jack called it off for this season. That will be the end of all square dancing for this season, except for a tip or 2 or 3 at the Saturday night dance.

Camera Club also wound up its season last week with 3 great movies (I that failed to arrive for previous week) There was skiing in the Colorado Rockies, golfing in sunny Bermuda, and a boat ride up the Hudson. Pres. Fran Gum reminds all members to keep their cameras clickin', next summer.

Shufflers ended the tournament season with some more wins for OBPers, at the Central League Gala Day in Stuart, last week. The main event went to Causeway and Stuart players but for consolation: 1st Margret Hindman and Kathy Schillace, 2nd Bill Finger and Peanuts Cunningham, 3rd Stuart, 4th C. V. Hannell and Ed Reinold. Keep an eye on those players next year.

There is still Pot Luck games every Friday at 6 p.m. and the North and South war has been resumed with a 15 all tie score at this time. There will be another battle, Mon. & Tues. Apr. 8 & 9, when George Dean's Yankees meet Ruel Mertz' Rebels; watch the sparks fly.

Golfers are generally a hardy bunch, make their rounds in snow and sleet like the proverbial postman, but the threat of more rains last Sat. was just too much and the play was called off.

Concert, by John Leybeck, Sunday, Apr. 13, 7 p.m. at the shuffle courts, will feature: "Golden Oldies", "The Moms and the Dads", "Wisconsin Dutchmen", and "Whoopee, John Wilfahrt."

Rambling Around

Stan and Dorothea Barr who moved into 13 Meladuca Dr. last year, when they came down here from Fort Huron, Mich., a short while ago, and find this is the 'place for them' Dorothea's mother mother Mrs. Ann Feller came down from Detroit for a visit and to recooperate from a seige of pneumonia, she will be here until April 13. Mr. Feller has had to take it easy up to now, but starting with Church Service at the Clubhouse on Easter, she is going to resume some of the activities she was interested in last year, like regular pinochle games and eating out, especially if it's a lobster dinner.

Bob and Helen McCall of 10 Key Lane Rd. and Edgerton, Wisconsin, like many others had visitors for over the Easter holyday. It was the second visit of the whole tribe: son Frank and wife Sandy, with granddaughter Angie, grandson Robbie, and Robbie's friend Brian Burns. They are spending a lot of time beaching and getting a tan to show the folks back in the north think OBP is the greatest and the only place for grandpa and grandma.

Mable Stevens of 19 Pepper St. came down here from Ohio in 1967 with her husband Cyrd. Mable has been painting primitives in acrylic for 6 years and has been able to exhibit at some of the big affairs, like the one in Coconut Grove in February. After submitting slides of her paintings, a jury awarded her a 12 foot space at the exclusive Las Olas exhibit last March. Mable was justly proud of that honor and said that it did pay off, very well indeed.

Veronia Snyder, 10 NE 5th Ave. received a nice letter from Ex-OBPers, Art and Jan Wingerter (West End Dr.) They are out in Arizona and don't seem to like the weather, say for six months no rain, now it won't stop, and it's too cold nights to go out for card playing. They sent a card from Hawaii and want to know why Veronica don't answer. They inquire about Barney Chase, Irma Fair, Julia Aumiller, Ernie and Marion, etc. Jan saying, why don't you answer my questions. (Well, why don't you Veronica?)

Interagency Council will meet Friday

The next meeting of the Martin County Interagency Council will be held at the Martin Memorial Hospital cafeteria at noon on Friday, April 11.

Beverly Morris, the hospital's professional services review organization coordinator will present a program on hospital reviews.

A promise of tulips and daffodils

With an expectation of early spring in the North and our weather here hot and humid these past few weeks, we and many of our residents are having thoughts of returning to their Northern homes where the temperature is cooler. It won't be long now and the tulips and daffodils, lilacs and magnolias with the dogwood and flowering plum trees will all be breaking forth in a profusion of colors. We and others are saying a fond adieu to friends and neighbors with a wave goodbye and "hope to see you next winter."

Beautification Committee members work was given recognition at a Cocktail Party given by Venture Three and hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Williams. Those present were Derwood and Gloria Dickinson, Ethel and Bob Stem, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Kennedy and Jack and Phyllis Clark. The work is progressing nicely with the results visible all around us. The palm trees planted in the park area just west of the Marina are doing well with T.L.C. given them in the form of frequently watering. The cement walkway has been laid from the marina walk to the roadway at the southend of the park area. It's really looking great, fellows.

Ben and Rea Kileen were floating on Cloud Nine last week. Their granddaughter, Karen and her [illegible] Their were visiting with them on their Easter Holiday [illegible] belong to Kappa Kappa [illegible] Miss Windevan [illegible] Stanton as in Shelby [illegible] and Nancy lives next door [illegible] had on display at Illinois. The Kileeners visited Fran and Larry Wallace at Remos Breezes, Hutchinson Beach recently. Both the Wallaces and Kileeners were former residents of Holiday Out. Larry is serving in a managerial capacity at Bruno Breezes. They are now house owners there and will soon become permanent residents of that mobile home community.

A pre-taste of Easter with ham n sweets as the entree was served at last weeks pot luck with Dorothy and Joe Huston and Alice and Floyd Reynolds as co-hosts. Mr. and Mrs. Orrigan were scheduled as co-hosts but unfortunately illness overtook them. Theo DeSmit and Ruth Hennessey assisted. Next week's pot luck will be a departure from the usual dinners with a treat in store for us in the form of a "scrump-delee-licious" spaghetti dinner prepared by Yvonne Wenicke, Florence Galley and Jackie Phillips assisted by their ever willing spouses Bud, Charles and Al. We can hardly wait for the mouth watering temptation.

We will be sorry to see a good friend and neighbor, Fran Potter leaving us this summer. Fran is selling her home in Flint and then returning to a new home on the mainland in Jensen as a permanent domicile. Another good friend and neighbor Jan and Bob Dedaker will be planning to move this summer to Fort St. Lucie.

Interest in Pool certainly hasn't diminished. The regulars can still be seen at the Recreation Center each weekday morning with the tourna ments held on Saturday AM. Johnnie Campbell and Jack Lish won over Ben Bensen and Chuck Ward this past week.

Jackie and Al Phillips received a letter from Denise and Tom Laneke informing them of their safe arrival in Pennsylvania. They are now looking forward to their planned trip in May to Paris, France.

Fashionable creations are still being turned out at our Monday A.M. Sewing Class. Vera, our very capable teacher, demonstrated the 'poor boy' neckline, for tops and blouses with a few quick tricks for knits. The regulars attending class are adding to their store of knowledge. Instruction in the art of constructing an attractive scoop shell' blouse or top is next on the agenda.

Tuesday evening cards are still being enjoyed by the regulars plus a few new comers despite the weather. Bridge playing winners were: first place Jack Clark, Sentty Fair second place and third went to Hank Schipper while Bobbie prize went to newcomer Cliff Carr. Marcia Carr played along with Neal Peterson, Ben Benson and Chris Fair. At the Crazy 8's table were Ed Callihan, Louise Nimro, Tom Stesler and Phyllis Clark. A few of our regulars were conspicuous by their absence from both games. Hurry back we miss you!!!

Our big ones' for this weeks Bowling were Gerri Benson with 152 and Edna Wilston with 151 for the ladies. Men's high games were Bill Thompson with 178, Ward Irwin with 171 and Ben Benson with 170. It's good exercise, we need more regulars.

8-1, O-60 can still be heard on Wednesday evenings at our Rec. Hall. Callers two weeks ago were Jack Joseph, Joe Huston and Joe Goodwin with Bette Joseph and Dorothy Huston helping in the kitchen. The last week we had Floyd Reynolds, Jack Joseph and Phil Fort calling with Alice Reynolds and Bette Joseph in the kitchen. Virginia Ramsey's grandson Bill won the 'bottle game'.

"Rosalie Sings" was presented to an imposing audience at the Trinity United Methodist Church by Rosalie Bryson. Our St. Lucee at Venture Three resident Grace Thau accompanied her at the piano and Irene Hamm on the organ. To be within sound of this unusually remarkable voice is a rewarding experience to be remembered. Her voice range, volume and modulation of delivery with her projected personality brought many standing ovations. Ms. Bryson's presentations included some classical and musical comedy numbers with old favorites and all were received by the audience with great enjoyment.

Venture Three

Ten days of Easter vacation with daily visits to the Ocean were Robert, 3rd resident Virginia Ramsey's daughter and husband Bill Ledyard with Barbara, 15, and Bill, 10, visited with grandma and filled their days to capacity. Bette and Jack Joseph's son Roger from Milwaukee, Wis. was here on his Spring break with college chum Jeff. Driving down they spent a few days sharing the Passover with his parents and then on to Ft. Lauderdale. Judge and Dennis Repka with his wife Beverly spent a week with their aunt and uncle, Muriel and Ray Repka. Visiting Ross and Marion Harrison was daughter Gail and husband Dave Smith with their children Trish and Kevin. All hail from Oxbridge, Ont. Jack and Phyllis Clark had visitors from Troy, Mich. Vince 'and Ann Sirvaitis who were taken on a tour of our area. They will soon be returning and the Clarks are trying to interest them in locating here.

"Take me out to the Ballgame" could be heard at the gang from Indian River singing in the van Sunday on their way to Vero Beach to see the L.A. Dodgers play the Montreal Expos. Unfortunately the game was rained out after two exciting innings but it didn't dampen the spirit of our 'gang' who went on to continue singing at the Hofbraw Haus. Sharing the merriment were Bill and Ruth Hennessey, Bob and Annabelle Sandbeck, Dick and Evie Sheetzer, Jack and Phyllis Clark, Marge and Teddy Bear Stesler, Keith and Margaret Howden and Al and Theo DeSmit.

They race scale model boats in remote control

BY DICK CAMPBELL
AND RICK CAMPBELL

The radio-controlled model boats are almost exactly like their counterparts. They race at speeds up to 70 miles per hour on the surface of lakes throughout Florida.

Their steering is as competitive as if Bill Muncie himself was at the controls.

The slightest flaw design in the hull can take precious seconds from the race around a track in the lake. Those seconds can mean winning or losing.

The races are held throughout Florida, and the new Treasure Coast Racing Association has made its presence felt, with many wins to the credit of the enthusiasts who spend from $500 to $700 to build their sleek boats.

The racers compete locally on a lake in Port St. Lucie, near the city hall. Every weekend they are out there in good weather and bad, vying for a win. Then, they travel to the various competitions.

In April alone there are races in Ft. Lauderdale, Plantation, Jacksonville, Bradenton and Atlanta.

In the Melbourne race, the Florida State Championships, the local club was well represented in the finishers. Jack St. Clair won a third place in C Mono, Rick Campbell a third in A Mono, and Gus Johnson a third in C Hydro.

Johnson founded the club, which now has 35 members. The retired Port St. Lucie resident is commodore of the club. Murray Gosley is secretary, Tom St. Clair is vice-commodore and Ron Mitchell is purser. All three are from Jensen Beach.

The club is growing fast, and Johnson predicts that the Treasure Coast group will be one of the largest in the United States in the near future.

Boats are raced every Sunday on the City Hall pond from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. There is a sanctioned race planned for April 27 at 1 p.m. at which there will be many boats from South Florida in competition.

PREPARING—Jack St. Clair and Gus Johnson, of the Treasure Coast Racing Association, prepare their entry for the Melbourne boat races. The Johnson boat was a C-monohull class boat.

HOME MADE—This version of a modified outboard racing motor was entered in the recent Melbourne races. The expansion chamber and lower unit were created by the builder, Hao Mulvany, of Mims, Florida.

UNDER WAY—The Miss Lapeer throws back a wake in the race as spectators shivered on the sidelines on shore. The ripples of the usually quiet lake attest to the brisk weather.

CIRCUS CIRCUS—Rated as the best reproduction of a racing boat, this 60 cubic millimeter boat is 34 inches in length.

LINEUP—Some of the scale boats that raced recently at Melbourne are lined up for public display. The Orlando television station filmed the races. The average boat costs its builder $500 to $700.

Some 1,500 turned out at the Nettles island Church service, held on the ocean across the street from Outdoor Resorts of America, where Pastor Scotty Burns gave the Easter Message. And another 300 arose to attend the daybreak service at the Sandpiper Bay resort, on the banks of the St. Lucie River.

For the later morning services, every church in town was thronged with parents and children dressed in their Easter best, and at several, Easter Egg hunts were held for the youngsters. A highlight of the family service at All Saints was the "Flowering of the Cross," in which the children brought flowers, turning the bare, ugly cross into a thing of beauty.

The morning was bright and crisp for the great annual celebration, and the sharp, damp winds which moved in for the afternoon failed to put a damper on what, for Christians every where, is the greatest day in the church calendar.

...the wife of a band member. One of the Festival organizers, Mark Remington, said it was his duty to line up entertainment, for the festival. "I found that a lot of the well-known Christain rock bands were booked for months in advance, but The Lord had a hand in the way things came together. When I first contacted the band's agent, I was told the band wasn't performing in April because the wife of one of the member's was due to have a baby in April. But when it turned out she was to deliver sooner than expected, we booked them. And, since then, I was able to line up a tour in Florida." The cost of getting them to come was greatly reduced. Also, we're getting the use of their sound system for other performers," he explained.

The band has just released its seventh album, and one of the band members, Bruce Hibbard, will perform by himself as well as with the band.

Remington says Frank Constantino, who is now an Episcopal priest, was "once a thug, thief and crook" and noted he pulled off a $3 million jewelry heist and a $5 million fur theft during his criminal career.

He wound up in prison in Belle Glade, where he turned to Christ. He has written an autobiography titled "Holes in Time" and heads Christain Prison Ministries.

"You can be a football player, a rock band drug addict or a thug and still turn your life to Christ. That's one of the messages we want to get across to the youth at the festival," commented Remington.

He noted that in addition to the entertainers listed above, there will also be a talk by Mickey Evans, Pastor of Dunklin Memorial Camp. The camp has a very high cure rate for alcoholics. And music groups will include Sperl, the Foster Brothers, Bluegrass Band, singers Mike and Von Rogers, Rick and Natalie Evans, Gary Moore and Kay Davidson, and soloists Frank and Laura Warren, Jan Hefflebower of Stuart will perform piano solos.

The Redeemer Lutheran Church will present "Clowns for Christ" and First Baptist Church of Stuart will give a puppet show. Other youths will give testimonies.

A main arena and a tent will be used for the events except for the motorcycle stunt show. A variety of concession stands will be in operation.

Remington says the festival will be "completely non-doctrinal" and that churches from throughout the area are supporting the event.

"Remington, Richard Pensky, Jim Power and Tom Smith have worked to organize the festival, and Remington said it was an idea that just grew into a reality. The Businessmen's Full Gospel Fellowship is sponsor of the festival, but Remington said donations from many sources have helped to raise about $10,000 of the $12,000 it is expected to cost for the event.

A nursery for small children will be open all day and a prayer and counseling tent will be set up.

Tickets are $3 in advance and $4 at the gate. Tickets can be obtained from area pastors and Christain book stores or at the gate.

It is suggested that festival-goers bring something to sit on during outdoor activities and a sweater in the event of cool weather at night. The fairgrounds are on A1A south of Stuart.

Anglers hear tips on snook fishing

BY BOB FRYER

Fishing for snook is one of the favorite pastimes of area residents, and as a result of a special program by the Martin County Angler's Club Monday night, snook fishing should increase in popularity.

Three snook experts gave tips Monday night on how to catch the wily, but delicious, fish.

Eight-four year-old Russ Bolton, a professional fishing guide, told how to catch snook while trolling. Will Bowman gave tips on bridge fishing for snook; and Lou Smitten talked about how to cast for them in the surf.

Those unfamiliar with the fish should know that snook are considered gamefish and that it is illegal to sell them commercially. Also, there is a limit of four snook per day per fisherman and that it is illegal to net or spear them. And, unless they measure 18 inches from the fork in the tail to the tip of the top jaw, they must be released.

Bolton advised trollers to hold their lines down, rather than up, and to never point their rods directly at the fish, as they'll have a better chance of ripping off or breaking line.

He said he uses a combination of a feather lure with a shrimp hooked onto it, and told the anglers to make sure they hook the shrimp forward of the black spots on their heads and "in dead center, or the line will twist."

He uses a flexible rod with 20 pound test and a 30 to 40 pound monofilament leader about three feet long.

He advised against pumping and reeling, saying "don't give an inch of line when the snook breaks water."

Bolton told anglers to set the drag on their reels "fairly slack, where you can pull the line out by hand," and said that if a snook makes a run after you get it close to the boat, "let it run, then reel it back up. That's when the fishing is fun. When you go fishing, go for the sport, because if you go out to fill up the boat, you should just go to the fish market. It's cheaper."

He advised trolling "at walking speed, about three to four miles an hour," and said to let the line out about 60 feet behind the boat. He said he fishes in water four to six feet deep and noted that a My-lure 105 is right for that depth. And, he said as long as the weather is mild, the snook will be around local waters, no matter what month it is. July and August are the best months though.

Bowman said snook fishing is best at the Roosevelt Bridge, but he said because there are so many pilings around the bridge, very heavy tackle is required. That takes too much of the sport out of it for him, he said, so he fishes other bridges.

The Lyons and Crary bridges are good, but their height is a limiting factor, he said.

Bowman said he uses 17 to 20 pound test line with bucktails or mirrolures.

"Tides don't make much difference, as long as there is some current," he said, adding that fishing is better when the wind is blowing and the water is rippled.

Like Bolton, he advised keeping the line tight, keeping the rod bent away from the fish, and keeping hooks sharp.

Though for the sport he uses artificial lures, he said live shrimp, mullet or panfish are best for catching snook. And he said fishing right after sunrise is a good time to go.

Smitten said the chances of catching snook in the surf aren't generally as good as river fishing, but he said he enjoys it because it gives him a good opportunity to take walks along the beach and enjoy the scenery.

He uses light tackle with a 30 pound test leader and said he likes to use mirrolures of Redfield.

"Just cast behind the breakers. You don't have to cast far out at all," he said, and commented that when he fishes, he walks along the beach rather than staying in one spot.

He demonstrated a favorite rig for fishing in rocky areas. He uses a floating lure with a feather de Ny-lure trailing behind it and said he doesn't bother with hooks on the floating lure, as the snook nearly always hit the trailing lure.

The best time for surf casting is at daybreak, he said, adding that evenings are good too. "Tide doesn't matter," he said, and told anglers "you have to hang in there and just keep working at it."

Dry dinner dance for awards group

Several hundred celebrants had a "dry" dinner dance to cap the nineth annual blessing of the fleet weekend at the Stuart Elks Club Sunday night.

However, the lack of liquor didn't dampen the excitement of the group, gathered to hear the announcement of awards for decorated boats in the 361 entrys in the parade of yachts.

The Anchorage Yacht Club won top honors for the highest percentage of boats decorated for the parade. The Saints and Sinners Yacht Club and the De La Bahia Yacht Club each won the silver bowl for highest fleet participation in their respective classes.

Individual honors for decoration were divided into two groups, the first being for boats from 16 to 24½ feet in length. Honorable mentions went to the Al's Gal, captain Chris McCarthy, of the St. Lucie Sailing Club, and to Her Nibs, captain Charlie Lafferty, of the Anchorage Yacht Club. First place went to the Sand Plow, captain Ralph Morgan, U.S. Power Squadron, and second place went to the Subarite, captain Fred Dawley, of the Circle Bay Yacht Club.

For boats over 25 feet, the honorable mentions went to Captain Bill Malloch's R Nest Egg, St. Lucie Sailing Club, and to Captain Palazzolo aboard the Maria Fare, Soundings Yacht Club.

Gold cups for first place went to Captain Ed Adele of the Party Time, De La Bahia Yacht Club, and second place to Captain Fred Stunt of the Sempre, Anchorage Yacht Club.

Judging coordinator was Les Web, with judges Frederic Roth, Jim Hutchinson and Dick Campbell. Presentations were made by awards chairman Paul Goodell, and announced by master of ceremonies Dick Campbell.

When you're shopping for value the name to look for is Publix.

What's in a name?

Publix officially got its name in 1930. George Jenkins liked the sound of "Publix" and chose it for his supermarkets. And through the years the name Publix has come to mean a special shopping experience: a pleasant atmosphere, friendly people, and most important, a place where a shopper receives the best value for every dollar. And we're working every day to live up to our name.

FPL's money-saving Watt-Wise homes have features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar and heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump, power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors, (with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up).

So before you buy or construct a new home, ask your builder about FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Or, stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free information brochure.

If you are holding "unproductive" land today that isn't appreciating at a rate of 20 percent per year, and isn't readily salable, you should give strong consideration to selling your property by the AUCTION method

PRETTY GIRL—Julie Haynes is one of the reasons Jensen Beach is beautiful. The 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wood Haynes recently made the cover page of The Treasure Coast Guide. She is a senior at John Carroll High School in Port Pierce and was captain of the cheerleaders and Homecoming Queen. And, she was also selected as this year's runner-up in the Miss Treasure Coast beauty pageant.

Two tennis pros are appointed

Michael Baldwin, tennis director and Gavin Ford, head tennis professional, are the newly appointed team at Crane Creek Racquet Club in Martin Downs, announced Peter Cummings, developer of the community located in Palm City.

"Gavin coaches the young, ambitious athlete geared to tennis competition," said Baldwin, "and I enjoy teaching tennis enthusiasts regardless of their age or level of expertise, especially young beginners and mature adults who play for fun and exercise."

Causeway traffic snarls are protested in Chamber action

A lunch one Chamber of Commerce member at home and twenty minutes drive from downtown Jensen Beach Outdoor Resorts, and others almost long.

Complaints to Chamber directors multiplied over the past few weeks about the snarled traffic going and from the inland across the Jensen Beach Causeway, and the Chamber board Monday decided to take action to move the county commission and Florida Department of Transportation to resolve the problem.

The Chamber has, in the past, asked that the traffic problems at the intersection of Indian River Drive and Causeway Blvd., and at the inland intersection of Causeway Blvd. and A1A be resolved.

Last week, traffic backed up from Indian River Drive across all three bridges in one afternoon, with the back of the line waiting on Hutchinson Island.

Commissioner Frank Wachs told The Mirror that part of the problem lay with one road being a state road and another being a county road so that changes were difficult. The state is supposed to take over maintenance of the causeway road in 1981.

Some of the traffic snarls have been relieved by the stationing of sheriff's deputies at both ends of the causeway to direct traffic.

The Chamber plans to seek the DOT traffic counts on the intersections, and use them to convince the county and state that action is needed now, instead of in the future.

Also, the Chamber plans to ask local residents and businessmen to write letters to the county and the DOT, citing the loss of business from Hutchinson Island due to the difficulty of getting across the causeway.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Jim Holt is helping to relieve some of the traffic snarls by stationing deputies at the intersections to direct traffic. However, the availability of the deputies means that sometimes the intersections are not manned.

"We are short handed, and I'm not optimistic for the future," Holt told The Mirror. He admitted that the traffic snarls are "a major problem and we are doing the best we can."

However, Holt said that no money was available to provide traffic control, and couldn't predict when the county would be able to afford it due to a five percent cap on budget increases.

SAVORING THE VIEW—The breathtaking view seen from the porch of "Bud" and Margie Jordan's home is equaled only by the incomparable beauty of the Jordan house itself. # Task force member is optimistic that Martin County will have I-95 by 1985

BY BOB FRYER

Local citizens have gotten used to administrative reports about the chances of building the missing link of I-95 through Martin County, but Jensen Beach resident Bob Hall said Monday, there is a real reason for optimism.

For years, Martin Countians battled over which route should be selected for I-95. County government support for one route over another shifted with changes in commission seats, and as the debate raged on, there began to be growing concern that the missing link would never be built before federal funds for all Interstate highways runs out in 1986.

Last year, when reports about the chances for getting I-95 built in Martin County began taking on more pessimistic tones, local legislators appointed a Citizen's Task Force on I-95 to help push for completion of the superhighway.

Hall is a member of that Task Force and said Monday he is confident the Martin County missing link will be built by the end of 1985. And, he went further by predicting that work on the first portions of the road in Martin County will begin late next year.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 22, the final public hearing on the proposed route for the missing link will be conducted at Martin County High School. Hall says there may be some debate over proposals to add two interchanges to the plans federal officials are now considering, but he said he was hopeful that even if there is debate, progress will move forward toward construction of the road.

The current plan that local, state and federal officials seem to have agreed in on calls for I-95 to enter Martin County from the north several miles west of the Florida Turnpike, then make a sharp turn eastward below SR 714 and continue east until it crosses the Florida Turnpike a short distance north of SR 76. From that point on, the proposed route hugs the north side of the Turnpike.

Interchanges at SR 714 and SR 76 are included in the plans by federal officials. However, Hall said two additional interchanges have been proposed by some and may be brought up for consideration at the public hearings. One is suggested for Loop Road (SR 76A) and the other is suggested for an area north of the St. Lucie Canal and east of the Turnpike.

As for the proposed Loop Road interchange, Hall said the Task Force has pretty much hammered it out. The traffic count does not justify one there now, but the state Department of Transportation (DOT) agrees one will be needed in the future. It looks like they'll buy the right-of-way and reserve it for an interchange in the future."

Hall said the other interchange that may be proposed but that is not in the plans that have been reviewed, could be "a sore spot" at the public hearing. He said sentiment among Palm City residents seems to be against the interchange and said that even though there may be room for an interchange, access to it would have to be through wetlands that officials planning the I-95 route avoided for environmental concerns. He said the right-of-way for that access may be donated, but said 3.5 miles of new road would still have to be built and that Palm City residents don't seem to want Mapp Road, leading to the 3.5 mile road, widened.

Barring a battle royal over the proposal for the two additional interchanges, Hall said final federal approval of the missing link route could come within a month to six weeks after the public hearing, adding, "two months at the outside."

He said he sees "no reason why it shouldn't be rubber stamped" unless there is a serious problem over the two additional interchanges.

Hall noted that the state DOT has been extremely cooperative." In the past they'd say we won't work with you until you get federal approval' but for the last month they've had a lot of DOT people working on this and will be reimbursed for it by the federal government when federal approval comes. Because they have a lack of state funds for other road projects, they have a lot of people working on this project."

Hall further noted that one big timesaver was a decision by DOT to go ahead and survey all of the route for the missing link prior to final federal approval instead of having it done in 10 separate segments by consultants, as was originally planned. He said the survey work should be completed by the time of the public hearing and that means work on design plans for the I-95 link can start soon after federal approval is granted. The design work could take one and a half years to complete for all of the missing link.

"The Task Force has a slogan 'I-95 by 1985' and I think we'll make it," Hall said.

I-95 is expected to be finished to the St. Lucie-Martin county line by 1983. Hall said he plans to push for work in Martin County to get started first on interchanges and bridges, "the things that will take the most time to build."

He said he sees "no sweat" in meeting the 1986 deadline for federal funds. Ninety percent of the cost of the I-95 link will come from federal funds.

Current plans call for the entire link to be built before any of it is opened, but Hall said he expects pressure will be applied to open a segment of it up to SR 714 or SR 76 before all of it is built and said like pressure would probably be applied from persons in the Jupiter area to get it opened from PGA Boulevard to Jupiter before all of the highway is finished.

PROPOSED ROUTE—The map above shows the proposed route for I-95 in Martin County. Bob Hall, a member of a Citizen's Task Force working for a swift approval of the super highway, said Monday he is optimistic the "missing link" of I-95 can be completed in the county by the end of 1985. A final public hearing on the route is slated for next Tuesday at Martin County High School.

5,000 meter race to be held Saturday morning at FIT

Early risers in the Jensen Beach area on Saturday morning April 19 may awaken to the strains of the music from "Rocky" or other inspiring themes emanating from the F.I.T. campus.

Next, if their eyes are open they may be alarmed to see dozens, possibly even hundreds of people running down the street. They will no doubt realize that this is only the latest manifestation of a growing national mania, recreational running for the masses, young and old, male and female.

To celebrate the 89th running of the Boston Marathon on the same weekend, F.I.T. is sponsoring a 5,000 meter (3.1 mile) fun run/race called the first annual "Stay-F.I.T. 5000."

Although the central idea is to promote a healthy, active lifestyle among all local residents and F.I.T. students alike, proceeds from the race will support intramural programs at F.I.T. and a contribution will be made to the Martin County Heart Association.

Runners of all abilities from the occasional jogger to the national competitor are expected to run.

All persons who finish the course will be given a t-shirt to proclaim their accomplishment and will be eligible for one of the 33 prizes in 11 age categories and for various door prizes. In addition, all runners will be eligible for the "time prediction" awards based on matching a predicted running time without benefit of a watch.

More than $350 in prizes have been pledged by area merchants. Awards will include plaques, merchandise and a $50 savings bond provided by the American Bank of Martin County for the overall fastest runner.

Other merchants providing support for the event include Jensen Beach Bank, Stuart National Bank, Dane Anderson's Golf and Tennis Shop, Bruner's Sports, First National Bank of Stuart, the F.I.T. Bookstore, Huston's Office Supplies, The Golf Gallery, Zia Stella's Restaurant, Bailey Boats, and the Islander Beauty Salon. Many others have provided gift certificates.

Runners can pick up entries at the F.I.T. business office or call 334-4200 for mailout entries. Non F.I.T. persons will pay $3.00 for preregistration or $4.00 on raceday starting at 7 a.m. The race begins at 9 a.m. on the F.I.T. campus. There will be an aid station on the course and refreshments will be served at the finish.

QUEENS—Karen Taley, left, and Teresa Nicholas have been selected as queens to reign over the second annual Southern Outboard Championship races this Sunday at the Stuart Causeway. The races have attracted top drivers from throughout the country. Karen and Teresa are both Stuart residents with modeling aspirations.

Commission seeks bids

When the Little League baseball season gets into full swing this summer, parents who turn out for the games at Langford Park should find their role as spectators will be a little more comfortable, especially if it rains.

Martin County Commissioners authorized advertisements for bids last week to build a roof over bleachers at the park. They also authorized advertisement for two Cushman scooters to "drag" the fields with.

Still another improvement slated for the park is the construction of an old log cabin for use as a senior citizen's center. Last week the commissioners authorized advertisements for a floor, chimney and fireplace for the center.

Commissioner Frank Wachs said the bids should be returned around the first part of May and should receive fairly quick action from the commission once the bids are in.

In other action, the commissioners authorized advertisement for bids to build a combination fire station and community center on Savanna Road next to the Timberwick development entrance. Wachs said those bids should also be in around early May.

You can win cash if you know who's who in Jensen

Need a little cash to cope with inflation?

In the Wednesday, April 23 issue of The Mirror, we'll be running a "Who's Who in Jensen Beach" contest.

On the front page of that issue's back section will be unidentified photos of representatives of area merchants. Your job will be to correctly match the photos with the ads of those merchants in The Mirror. Simply cut out the pictures and paste them in the proper space on the ads to which you think they belong.

Entries must be delivered to The Mirror office at 1700 N.E. Sunview Road in Jensen Beach between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays. As the entries are received, the time and date they're brought in will be recorded on the entries. The earliest entry with the most number of correct pictures placed in the ads will be the winner. Second place will go to the entry with the next highest number of correct pictures in the ads. The third highest number of correctly identified photos will win third place, and the fourth highest number of correctly identified photos will win fourth place.

In the event of a tie, the earliest entry wins, and if the improbable happens and two persons with winning entries bring them in at the same time, the tie will be resolved by neatness of entry.

The contest ends at 4 p.m. Friday, May 3, and winners will be announced in the Wednesday, May 7 issue.

First prize is $50, second prize is $25, third prize is $15, and fourth prize is $10. Additionally, 10 six-month subscriptions to The Mirror will be awarded.

Anyone may enter the contest except employees of The Mirror and their families.

Advertisers who would like to participate in the contest should call The Mirror at 334-4353. The deadline for advertisers to sign up for participation in the contest is noon on Monday, April 21.

Library to show Cancer film

"Cancer - It's Early Detection" will be presented Wednesday, April 23, at 7 p.m. in the Stokes Room at the Martin County Library.

This will be a film presentation telling how to detect cancer at its earliest stages. A doctor will be present for the question and answer period which will follow the presentation.

Local players are well represented in rankings

Weekend tennis players can find solace in the fact that while they are not included in major tournaments, some of their buddies are.

The Florida Tennis Association yearbook lists the rankings of 341 players in the state, and Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie have their share of ranked players.

Dr. Dennis Rinaldi serves as this district's member of the disciplinary committee, and there are three members of the adult ranking committee; Dr. Jim Grossnickle for men's 35 singles, Ken Rickson for men's 35 doubles, and Charles Church ranks for men's 45 doubles.

In the state rankings, Jensen's Mario O'Brando is ranked 27th, and Port St. Lucie's Maharaj Sewnanker 29th in men's 35 singles. The two teams in doubles to be ranked 12th in the state.

Jensen's Frank Frushing is ranked first in men's 35 singles, with Obando 27th and Maharaj 30th, in 35-year-old competition.

In men's 40s, Phillip Brooks of Port St. Lucie is ranked 22.

In men's 45 singles, John Comer is ranked 12th and Jim Grossnickle is ranked 25th.

Sally Campbell of Jensen Beach is ranked 8th in women's 35 singles and 9th in women's 40 singles. Alice Parkey of Stuart is ranked 20th in women's 55 singles.

Grossnickle and his daughter, Beth, are ranked first in father-daughter doubles in the state.

Of course, the most famous of locales is Kathy Rinaldi, winner of the national grand slam. She is ranked first in Florida in girls (12) singles. The Florida Yearbook features a color photograph of Kathy in action.

Also, Kim daughter of Jensen Beach is ranked 82nd in girls (14) singles.

Tom Fallenberg of Stuart was listed this year under "insufficient data" in men's 65. The national champion, who has won a title in every division since his junior years, didn't have enough state tournaments to win a ranking, due to his heavy work

ALTERNATIVE INVESTMENTS FOR BEGINNERS

QUESTION: For the past several months I have been following ads on investment property and have seen all types of properties advertised. As a beginner, what types of property should I consider investing in?

ANSWER: I would need more information to give you a precise answer. However, there is a wide range of investments that you might consider.

You could start by purchasing a single-family house, and renting it while you hold it for appreciation. In addition to the high rate of appreciation this kind of investment usually has, it may also offer a modest amount of cash flow.

Other types of investments that you might consider are apartment buildings, including anything from a two-unit duplex to large, hundred-unit complexes. Of course, for the larger properties, professional management may be required.

There are also a number of attractive nonresidential investments, such as office buildings, shopping centers and retail blocks of various sizes, land, and industrial properties. As a general rule, properties which are not leased to single, long-term tenants can be excellent management-free investments. There are four primary criteria to use in selecting an investment: (1) your financial objectives; (2) the amount of cash that you make available for investment; (3) the degree of risk you want, and (4) the degree of involvement you want to have in managing your property.

I would be happy to discuss the range of alternatives available to you at your convenience.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Change address kits offered by post office

If you're one of the estimated 36 million persons who plan to move their residence this year, you should begin notifying everyone who regularly sends you mail at least one full month before you move.

That's the advice from Jensen Beach Postmaster Al Kovar who suggests you file change-of address forms with your post office and send them to correspondents and publishers.

The postal service offers free change-of address kits to make it easier to notify everyone. Available in post offices and from letter carriers, the kits include convenient postcards to alert the postmaster and for mailing to department stores, friends and relatives, utility companies, banks, newspaper and magazine publishers and others who do business with the family planning a move.

"Too often people who are moving wait until the last minute to notify their correspondents," said Postmaster Kovar. "The result is they add up to several days to their First-Class Mail delivery because it must be forwarded to the new address," he added.

Those who fail to give publishers at least a month advance notice either pay additional postage for forwarding, if desired, or wait several weeks before the publisher changes the address. This means customers may miss one or more issues of their favorite magazine.

"Customers should also remember to include their account number when notifying stores and banks and send their old address labels to publishers," Postmaster Kovar advises. "And for all correspondence, remember to include their new ZIP code."

Samaritans calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

Hi all you nice people out there. Hope you all had a Happy Easter, and whether you are here near us or in the far North, all the Samaritans wish you a Happy, Healthy Summer. See you 'around.

At our regular monthly meeting, the last being April 3rd we had a number of nice things happen. Ten lovely letters from patients or their families thanking us for our help in their time of need. Messages like that make us feel we really after all are worth while and gives us courage and zest to keep going.

First though, we want to publicly congratulate our three newly certified Emergency Medical Technicians: Kathryn (Kathy) Brown, Christine (Christ Gabriel and her husband Gary Gabriel.

Well done, we are very proud of you.

The Samaritans would like to express their thanks to the town of Sewall's Point for their donation of $1,800.

Thanks to Pinelake Village for $3,035 given us as a result of their recent Fund Drive.

We would like to tell you too, about an Old Time Samaritan who just recently became a New Samaritan. You see it's like this. George Craig thought two years ago that he was getting, shall we say, up in years. We all felt so sorry to lose him, but knew the time comes to all when they have to slow up. Recently to our delight, George had a change of heart. He got his re-certification from the State, and looking as spry as when I first saw him 16 years ago, he is back on the Ambulance. So happy George, and congratulations from the Samaritans.

The new 911 stickers are available. Parks, etc., who have new residents and need a substantial number of stickers, call 334-8818 and we will see they are delivered to you.

At long last our Ambulance, 611, that was damaged in an accident on East Ocean Blvd is being repaired. The accident happened in February.

Since our oldest Ambulance, #610, has reached retirement age, there was some discussion on the purchase of a new one at our April meeting.

During the first Quarter of 1980 the Samaritans made 298 runs, so we still are busy as you can see. 2.6 per day.

Our new scanner is coming along well, and should be in use within a month or less. Come in and see what our Winter Project has been.

The Samaritans are supplying service on the occasion of the Regatta, May 3 & 4. Boat races, and a Six Mile Marathon from to Elliott Museum to Poor Bob's top the list of interesting things to see.

Hopefully our Ambulance service will have a vehicle at the forthcoming events. The Marathon 5000 meter or 3.1 mile open to all ages and sexes. The intention of this exercise is to promote healthy, happy atmosphere among family groups. Time, 8 to 10 a.m. At Florida Institute of Technology. The money from this event will be donated to the Heart Fund.

The Sail Boat Races also April 19 from 2 to 5 p.m.

On May 3, we hope to cover the Sailfish Regatta from 11 to 4. On May 4, a continuation of the Regatta from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Hobe Sound and Tri-Area Rigs will be joining us for the Regatta. Proceeds from the event to go to worthy organizations within Martin County. This is sponsored by the Sewalls Club.

Pinelake Village introduces Convectionaire: a solar system that can cut your energy bills

A revolutionary new concept in solar climate control has arrived at Pinelake Village, an adult mobile home community on Savannah Road in Jensen Beach. Energy savings up to 67 percent can be acquired through the use of Convectionaire, a unique solar energy system exclusively found in Jacobsen mobile homes. Pinelake Village is the first in Martin County to offer the quality of custom built Jacobsen homes coupled with the efficiency of Convectionaire.

Convectionaire bypasses the conventional method of cooling air and blowing it from ducts; and focuses on moving the air through natural convection. As hot air rises it removes the heat from the room air as it passes over tubes filled cold concealed in wall mounted valances just below the ceiling. Excess heat from the system is used to provide hot water for household needs, reducing drastically the need for hot water heating during the cooling season. Convectionaire also provides filtering of dust and other atmospheric impurities during the cooling phase. Additionally, Convectionaire users report 20 percent to 25 percent lower humidity, thusly alleviating any mildew or algae build up in dark, enclosed corners.

In cold winter months, heat is collected from the outside atmosphere and dispersed into the rooms through the valance unit. In the event of a cloudy or rainy day, a back up compressor, the only moving part of the Convectionaire system, pulls the load for continuous heating and cooling. The result is quiet, draft free comfort and substantially reduced energy consumption.

Surprisingly enough, an outsider needs to search for a Convectionaire system in a Jacobsen mobile home. Since the solar system can only be installed in Jacobsen double-wide models, two compact units are neatly tucked underneath the home, one for each side. A copper line is hidden behind a valance that makes a continuous loop through the home. It is completely undetectable as the balance blends in perfectly with the custom interior.

In case you haven't been in a mobile home lately, you may be in for a pleasant surprise. The Jacobsen homes featured at Pinelake Village come in many attractive floorplans, complete with custom formica cabinets, custom carpet and custom draperies. Each is spacious and appealing with large baths and dressing areas, fully equipped kitchens and bedrooms large enough to accommodate a king size bed! Each home in Pinelake Village has its own full length carport, utility shed, landscaped and sodded lawn; residents can use the varied recreational facilities including shuffle board and swimming pool. A tranquil lake with an overhanging deck often sets the scene for friendly talks and social meetings with other residents.

Mobile home living just "ain't what it used to be", and now with the addition of Convectionaire to the Jacobsen models the mobile home at Pinelake Village is "what it's got to be" if you want reduced energy costs and increased energy savings.

Considering the fact that Florida Power & Light will be tacking on an additional fuel adjustment charge of $16 per thousand kilowatt hours on April 1st, isn't it time you checked into the Jacobsen homes with Convectionaire?

75 foot snorkel truck demo is set next week

If you see a fire truck with a 75-foot ladder extended next to a condominium building at Indian River Plantation next week, don't panic.

Unless there is an improbable coincidence, there won't be a fire there.

The truck will be at the condominium resort so local firemen and county officials can see a demonstration of its capabilities.

Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano said Mack truck company will bring in the "snorkel" truck for the demonstration, and Luciano said he is hopeful that it will help convince county officials that such a truck is needed to protect the four-story condominiums on the island.

Luciano also said he'll be interested in seeing what the truck can do to make sure that if it was purchased, it would be the right size for the job. "It has a 75-foot ladder operated by a hydraulic system and has a four-man bucket at the end. But in order to balance it, the truck has to be some distance from the building, so I'll want to see if it can reach the heights we need next to a building," he said.

Luciano said he and Rio Fire Chief Bill Gass and County Commissioner Frank Wacha have all expressed concern over the need for a truck capable of reaching fires on the top floors of the island's condominiums. He said he hopes county officials do decide to buy a truck designed for fighting island condo fires and he said if such a truck were bought, it would be housed on the island at a planned fire station near the Elliott Museum. However, he said before the truck is bought, a selling job must be done on county officials and island residents as to the need for it.

The demonstration will be around 10 or 11 a.m. Thursday, April 24.

Long Islanders get together at state park

Five couples who used to be neighbors up north and who are now neighbors in Pine Lake Village may have started a tradition.

The couples were neighbors in the Marches Bay area of Long Island, New York and have now made their home in Jensen Beach mobile home park. Knowing there were many others from their home town residing in Florida, they organized a get together picnic recently at Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

The five Pine Lake Village couples who planned the event are: Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lilly, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Michna, Mr. and Mrs. John Newbern, Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Frautschold.

Outboard Championships Sunday at Stuart Causeway

The second annual Michelob-Light Southern Outboard Championship races, sponsored by the Sertoma Club of Martin County, will be held this Sunday, April 20, at the Stuart Causeway.

The races will feature two types of boats in 12 classes of competition and have attracted world record holders and American Power Boat Association (APBA) Hall of Fame members.

Homer Cresse of Robe Sound, who holds the world speed record for one hour on a mile and two-thirds course and the world record for five miles of competition on a closed course, will be among the quality drivers in the races this Sunday. He won the APBA Hall of Fame title in 1978.

Buck Morris of Charleston, S.C., will be one of the top independent drivers in the field, and Tom Sikes of North Miami will also be entered. Sikes holds several world records.

Mark Hauptner of North Palm Beach, the defending national champion and current holder of all world records for his class, will compete, as will David Lee, world record holder in another class.

Everything from exotic, highly-modified outboard engines to stock engines will be used to power the race boats in the various classes, and some boats are expected to top 120 mph in the straights.

The course will be approximately one mile long, and three heats will be run for each class of boats. The positioning of the drivers in the various heats will be compiled to determine the final rankings for each class.

A water-ski show will begin the activities around 11:30 a.m., with the racing program to start at noon. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for children, with proceeds going to various speech and hearing clinics, the Tri-Area Ambulance Service, the American Cancer Society and other community charitable endeavors.

Refreshments will include Michelob-Light beer, soda pop, hotdogs, potato chips and popcorn. Tee-shirts and balloons will also be on sale.

Two queens have been selected to reign over the races. Karen Taley, 22, of Stuart, and Teresa Nicholas, 21, also of Stuart, were selected for that honor. Ms. Taley is supervisor of the lounge at Lory's Landing and hopes to become a fashion or commercial model. Ms. Nicholas is an executive secretary at First National Bank of Stuart, has modeling experience, and plans to pursue a career in that field. Both are boat racing enthusiasts.

Prizes for winning drivers will vary in each class, but in the Sports J class, drivers will compete for $2,500, plus all money received as entry fees for the class, at $75 per entry.

Stephan Cotton, one of the organizers of the race, said parking for the races will be along the causeway and along A1A between Jaycee Park and Indian River Plantation. He said as many as 5,000 persons are expected to attend the races and said he hopes $5,000 to $6,000 can be raised for the charities.

Cotton is crossing his fingers for good weather for the races. He said if it is really bad, the races will be cancelled, but he said this would be a last resort, as it would not be possible to reschedule the races here this year.

Tickets can be purchased at the gate or in advance by calling Cotton at 283-6960, Dave Skiles at 287-4200, or Randy DeStephano at Frank's T.V.

Volunteers and drivers gearing up for 13th annual Sailfish Regatta

Plans for the 13th annual Stuart Sailfish Regatta are underway and volunteers and drivers are already gearing up for one of the highest paying inboard hydroplane races in the country.

Between 80 and 100 drivers are expected to vie for nearly $10,000 in prizes and trophies. The races are Saturday, May 5 and Sunday, May 6 in the north fork of the St. Lucie River, just north of the Roosevelt Bridge.

The closed circuit course is approved by the American Power Boat Association and because of the inside waterway, has provided a safer course for the races without much interference from the weather.

For the first year, proceeds from the race will go to the Stuart Police Officers Association emergency fund. The Stuart Police Department provides the majority of its force and reserve officers to handle the traffic patrols and protection for two days.

With only three weeks until the big race, the community is also preparing for a weekend of activities. This year the regatta will feature a ski show and a radio-controlled model hydroplane race as an added attraction for the 10,000 spectators who turn out.

About 180 volunteers man the concessions, work in the pits, handle scoring, judging and time-keeping and provide general security.

Phi Beta Psi sorority will be selling tickets. They will also be available at the Stuart/Martin County Chamber of Commerce after April 20.

Stuart has become a popular spot for the races and drivers, who have come here over the years, give Stuart high marks for its interest and support of the regatta.

Herman Reitz, one of the coordinators, said the number of drivers was dwindling when the races were on the Stuart Causeway due to the ever-changing weather conditions. The new site has given the racers good weather.

"We are one of the choice spots which brings more and better boats," said Reitz.

This year all heats will run except for the Grand Nationals class. The heats include such classes as 225 cu. inc. hydroplane, the 5-litre and 7-litre, Super Stocks, and Jersey Speed Skiffs.

The heats will begin Saturday at 11 a.m. and Sunday at noon. The cup races will be run first on Sunday.

Prize money and trophies will be distributed and awarded at the drivers banquet following the races.

Bostwick to review "Anatomy of Illness"

Laughter may be the best medicine, according to Norman Cousins, whose new book, "Anatomy of an Illness" will be reviewed by Frank A. Bostwick on Monday, April 21, beginning at 8 p.m. at the Women's Club of Stuart.

"Everyone can benefit from this book," claims Bostwick, a popular reviewer. "This remarkable man's story will inspire everyone who believes doctors depend too much on drugs and not enough on their patients' will to get well," Bostwick said.

The paper dump

Despite the fact that the trailer has been destroyed by fire and lies in a crushed-flat heap at the Environmental Center waiting for a very large garbage truck to haul it away, thoughtless residents are piling loads of newspapers against the hulk as if it were still a collection point for recycling newsprint.

The paper collection program of Free Energy, Inc. was ended with the spectacular fire two weeks ago. It is possible it might start again, but not until the old hulk is removed and a new trailer is received.

Please, is the cry of Free Energy, please do not put more papers there. It is not a dump. There is nowhere to keep the papers.

Planning should be continued

Martin County seems to have lost sight of the reason for a comprehensive plan. The county needs a guideline for future growth.

Part of it is due to the political year. Given an issue, some people would rather gain political advantage than get the planning done. The planning is needed, and it is needed now.

We hope that the suit planned by the county commission, seeking clarification of whether the hiring of a consultant firm to help plan is legal or not, is resolved quickly.

Palm City activists who oppose the present plan, seem more interested in not having a plan than in having a plan that would be worth while. They oppose, but do not offer a concrete proposal that would be economically sound.

They are rightfully concerned about potential growth, but the only way they can possibly tell someone else what to do with his property is to buy that property.

We are growing, and will continue to grow. Only with a plan that sets out the limits of that growth, and offers guidelines of that growth are we going to be able to grow properly.

The county's dilemma is that it cannot continue planning with the threat hanging over the commission that all action is illegal.

In the meantime, the threats continue. We have waited for the filing of the suit that would show that Commissioner Frank Wacha, because he is a real estate salesman, and Commissioner Tom Higgins, because he publishes a real estate booklet, are in violation of ethics rules. None has been forthcoming. Perhaps the lawsuit will be filed just before the election, so that no determination can be made until after the election.

The delays are certain to place Martin County in a bind to meet the state deadline requirements, and another year of extension will be asked. If no extension is granted, it is possible that the state would do the planning.

We remember when the state did a plan. It was back in the early sixties, and the muddle-heads of Tallahassee move the FEC Railroad west of Palm City, put I-95 down Sewall's Point, and had a minor Miami in population density in its goals.

We would prefer local planning, with all its give and take, and the necessary compromises to make a workable plan.

But first, we must get on with the planning.

Preservation of jazz

The old guys have it. They sit there in their chairs and wail away with some of the best jazz in the world. They care.

No matter how many times they play the classic dixieland, each time it is new. Each time it is exciting, and they get as excited about it.

That they are in their sixties and seventies doesn't matter. They are the pros and they love their music. Preservation Hall jazz isn't in danger, not in New Orleans.

But, down the street at the Monteleone Hotel, the Dukes of Dixieland are tired. Each number is a bore to them. Their leader is a lousy clarinetist. The trumpet man, with an Al Hirt look-alike beard and belly, blows some good riffs (at seventeen bucks a head), but can't help being as tired as the rest.

The trombone man waits for his turn and occasionally acts as if he wants to do something, but doesn't.

Pity the poor drummer. He tries, but can't whip excitement into the band. He is so frustrated he turns to noise, rather than the driving beat that makes things move. He keeps looking from musician to musician, pleading for help, anything that would bring some life back into this fading room. He doesn't get it.

The Dukes of Dixieland are tired, and should just play their records of years ago, when they had excitement and drive, and when I treasured their expressive classic jazz. I felt ripped off, despite the two drinks that came with the cover charge.

Across Canal Street the new Hilton Hotel is a monument to the changing of New Orleans. On the third floor Pete Fountain changed his regular two p.m. show to eleven, because he was having a party with the Mardi Gras gang. It was worth the wait.

Not only is Fountain excited about what he does, so also are his sidemen. There was a thundering ovation following each number. New Orleans jazz is alive and well in the Hilton. The profound interplay between clarinet and guitar, and the improvisations of clarinet, trumpet, trombone and guitar are driven relentlessly by an outstanding drummer and bass man.

The French Market is still there, with an outdoor cafe and bar offering an island of tree-filled relaxation as heavy traffic raced by on either side. A pickup honky-tonk pianoman played for tips, augmented by a young man playing a combination washboard-kazoo-cow bell-auto horn contraption with drum sticks. A young girl-singer wailed the blues and needed only a few years of training to keep her voice from going flat on long notes.

It was the most exciting, natural New Orleans scene in town. They played for tips, and loved their jazz. The price was right, the show fantastic.

Bourbon Street has turned into smut street. It is still thronged with tourists who mix in with the ever increasing number of gays and transvestites who populate the girlie shows, corner bars and filthy-tee-shirt emporiums that are wall to wall.

I walked past a drug dealer selling heroin to a kid in plain view of a thousand tourists milling about. I saw a youth drop in convulsions and go into a faint as those thousands walked around the body curled into a fetal position on that door stoop. A young girl of sixteen or so lay sleeping on the pavement at seven in the morning.

Whores and pimps argued loudly in front of bars. Two ten year-old black kids played the kazoo in the middle of the street, tap-dancing for coins thrown by the tourists who gathered around.

I asked a cab driver if Bourbon Street "has gone down." He said the new place was "Fat City," where all the better clubs had moved, cut near Lake Pontchartrain.

"It's a better class place," he said.

The small ferry still takes people from the foot of Canal Street across to Algiers and back. The Mississippi is still dirt brown with that surging, whirling current. The town fathers have even erected a "moon walk" across from Jackson Square, where people can view the wide "Big Muddy."

My disappointment with Bourbon Street was not to dampen my love for New Orleans. I looked for, and found the New Orleans I remembered when I lived there 32 years ago.

My jazz, my dixieland, was still the same. Some was bad, played by tired people who forgot why they were playing. Most of it, from the kids in the street to the Vegas-style show of Pete Fountain, was excellent.

The editors of Florida newspapers and their wives, there to judge the Texas Press Association newspaper contest, agreed with me. New Orleans is a many-faceted diamond with a few flaws. But dixieland is in safe hands.

Age-old advice

Whenever I get that Doomsday feeling, I turn to the scrapbook kept by my grandmother, Sarah Hawkins Smith, and the world starts spinning again.

I barely remember Grandma Smith, except as a wheel-chaired, wizened old darling who lived in her own tiny apartment in our ancient and dignified old home in Wellsboro, Pa. By the time I was old enough to know her, she was confined for comfort to her art of sewing and reading. I think grandma must have read every printed word that came her way, and whenever she found something particularly inspiring or instructive, she clipped it out and pasted it in her scrapbook.

I'm sure the one I have is one of many she must have accumulated in her lifetime, but within its pages alone I can find some wisdom for nearly every paradox of life. If I had read closer and listened earlier, my life may have taken an entirely different course.

The one I should have heeded young — and didn't — is a clipping from an 1882 newspaper (or perhaps a Godey's Ladies' Magazine?). It is entitled:

HOW TO AVOID BAD HUSBANDS

"Never marry for wealth. A woman's life consisteth not in the abundance of things she possesseth.

"Never marry a fop who struts about dandy-like in his gloves and ruffles with a silver-headed cane and rings on his fingers. Beware! This is a trap.

"Never marry a niggardly, close-fisted, mean, sordid wretch, who, saves every penny or else spends it grudgingly. Take care, lest he steal you to death.

"Never marry a stranger, whose character is not known or tested. Some girls jump into the fire, not knowing it.

"Never marry a man who treats his mother or sister unkindly or unaffectionately. Such treatment is sure indication of a mean and wicked man.

"Never, on any account, marry a gambler or a profane person or one who in the least speaks lightly of God or of religion. Such a man will never make a good husband.

Finally, never marry a man who is in the least addicted to the use of ardent spirits. Depend upon it, you are better off alone than you would be if tied to a man whose breath is polluted, and who is being destroyed by alcohol."

Such sage advice is not to be overlooked, Grandma. I should have paid more attention. But then, I probably would have died an old maid. The paragons had all been picked up before I got a chance at one of them.

sri sri sri

Grandma, in addition to her love for wise advice, also evidently loved a chuckle in verse, a penchant I must have inherited from her. One of her clippings is a poem written and printed in the mid-eighteen hundreds, with strong overtones of the latter-day Dorothy Parker:

In Spite of All
By Minnie Madden

Love is utter folly;
Love lasts for a day.
Love is melancholy.
So the poets say.
Love's an airy bubble,
Love's a fickle flame—
But despite the trouble,
Pleasant all the same.

Love with woe is freighted,
Love is constant care,
Love's the concentrated
Essence of despair.
Love is never lenient,
But it has been found
Love's the most convenient
Thing to have around.

sri sri sri

Sometimes circumstances called odd acts, occasionally criminal. And I have apparently been guilty of one of them.

In the mail, a few days ago, came a letter addressed to "Murial Latham, Jensen Beach, Fla., c/o Tribune.

Now, the Mirror is not the Tribune, but it's the only newspaper, game in town. And my name is not Murial, but I've received mail intended for me with some pretty funny variations — Dolly Lapham, Sallie Lattimer, Sol Lanham — you name it and I've been called it.

No matter how plainly your monicker is spelled out in a by-line, someone is going to put their own interpretation on it. (Not long ago confrere Bob Fryer got a letter addressed to Bob Fryover, like a re-warmed lamb chop.)

So I opened the missive, assuming it was for me. I began reading, and it didn't take me long to realize this was a personal letter intended for someone else entirely.

So if you're a Murial Latham with a friend called Ruth Norwing, pardon my instrusion. And if you'd like your mail, you can retrieve it by giving me a buzz, with my apologies.

Noseeums for Iran

I see the Iranian militants have threatened to kill the American hostages if we make the "slightest" military move against Iran.

For the past five months, President Jimmy Carter has acted with restraint toward Iran, using more patience than many Americans would probably like to see him use.

I'm no wild fan of Carter, but I will have to admit that he's been backed into a corner from which there seems no easy way out.

It would be nice if the American Embassy were located next to a remote airfield in a nation with unsophisticated radar systems, and we could go rescue them in the same grand fashion the Israelis rescued their citizens at Entebbe.

That leaves Carter with very few options other than the fruitless diplomatic negotiations he has tried and, no doubt, will continue trying. And it leaves this nation with seething tempers, merely frustrated that we can not use our superior might to save the hostages and punish the Iranians.

So what's left? What can we possibly do to those jerks to bring about a safe return of the hostages?

Well, I've given the question some considerable thought and believe I just may have come up with the answer.

Here in Martin County, we have an abundance of tiny insects that can just make life miserable.

Most folks around here call them noseeums because they're so small you can't see them. Hutchinson Island is not only the Sea Turtle Capital of the world, but is probably also the noseeum capital of the world. The tiny little bugs, also known as sand flies or midges, can drive unsuspecting and unprotected beach visitors batty with their venomous bites. Were you to put one under a microscope, you would probably see a razor sharp set of teeth and nothing else.

They're horrid creatures and on more than a few occasions they made life nearly unbearable for me back in the days I lived by the ocean.

According to a recent Palm Beach Post article, the noseeum season just started here and will last into the fall.

That article is only partically true. They seem to be worst in the hot months, but they're here year round. And, most anytime the wind gets calm and the sun goes down, or is covered by clouds, they'll spring from their burrows in the beach sand and attack anyone in sight.

After a few occasions of being driven to the brink of insanity (some say irretrievably beyond the brink), I learned how to cope with them. First, on windless days I avoided walks on the beach at sunset or when it was cloudy unless I was covered with a coat of Cutters insect spray. And, second, I painted my window screens with a product called Screen Prof on a regular basis. I hate for this to sound like an ad, but so far as I know, Screen-Prof is the only thing that's good for keeping the noseeums outside.

So here's the plan. Iran has a lot of sand, as I understand. All we have to do is send a few clouds over Iraq and let them drift over Iran and dump a lot of rain. The noseeums seem to love wet sand. Then we get our Canadian friends who rescued six Americans from Iran with phony passports to issue themselves more passports. They'd return to Iran to patch up the hard feelings, and they'd bring along a few suitcases jam packed with noseeums. The little bugs are so small that you could probably fill one suitcase full of enough noseeums to have a dozen or so of them for each Iranian citizen.

The Canadians, costed with Cutters, would open the suitcases. In no time at all the entire nation would be itching and scratching in misery.

Meanwhile, Carter would sit smugly in the White House waiting for the phone to ring.

Not too late to be counted in The Census

It's not too late to be counted in the 1980 census, the U.S. Bureau of the Census announced today.

Questionnaires were mailed to every household on March 28, and most people were instructed to mail back a completed questionnaire on Census Day, April 1. Millions did so, but the Bureau reports that a number of households have not yet been heard from.

People not counted in the census will in effect be "invisible" when census statistics are used to reapportion seats in the House of Representatives and to guide the distribution of Federal funds--their tax dollars--for programs in communities across the Nation.

There is no penalty for a late return or the census questionnaire, but census answers should be given as of the April 1 date regarding births, deaths, changes of address, and other facts.

To be sure everyone is counted, after April 15 census takers will contact those households that were asked to mail back a completed questionnaire but have not done so. The Bureau emphasizes that this follow-up work increases the cost of the census. It is estimated for every one percent of the households that mail back a fully answered form as asked, $2 million in follow up costs will be avoided.

Every person's answers to the 1980 census are confidential by law and cannot be obtained even by other government agencies, whatever their purpose. Census answers are seen only by census workers, sworn to secrecy, who are liable to a jail term of up to 5 years and/or a fine up to $5,000 for violating that law. Not once in the history of the modern confidentiality law, which dates back to the 1930 census, has any census worker even been prosecuted for breaking census confidentiality. Census answers become public after 72 years for historical purposes.

Approximately 80 percent of the nation's households have been asked to mail back an answered questionnaire, more than in any prior census. The remaining households, primarily in rural regions, also received a questionnaire in the mail, but were asked to answer and keep the form until a census taker comes to pick it up.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

While many folks in the north county area have given up on ever seeing the "missing link" of I-95 completed, others have been quietly at work to keep the project alive and make it a reality in our time. Several months ago our Legislative Delegation appointed a Citizens Task Force on I-95 and charged them with the responsibility of pushing for an early completion of the highway. A goal of completion in 1985 was established. The goal is in sight. With a rather uncommon spirit of co-operation between the DOT and this group, completion and required approval schedules have been shortened. Governor Graham and the Secy of Transportation, Bill Rose have pledged both financial and program speed up support. Cutbacks in other state highway projects due to lack of funding have freed up DOT personnel to work on I-95. As a result, the actual surveying of the right-of-way will be completed in a couple of weeks. All systems are "go" with one last hurdle to be crossed.

A Public Hearing will be held on April 22 at Martin Co. High School to present the final route for comments and questions prior to submitting the report for final Federal approval, the last such approval required before the road is built. An informed public is essential to making sure a quick approval is obtained. To this end, a copy of the Design Approval Report and a set of aerial photographs of the route are available for study in the County Commission office on Kindred St. in Stuart. Task Force members will meet with any individual or group to explain the project and answer questions. Call 334-0796 evenings, for additional details. All citizens are urged to become informed and support the efforts of their Task Force.

To the Editor

Several years ago, I wrote you about Costa Rica and our planned retirement there (my husband is retired Navy). You asked that I write again, when settled, but I have been so busy living I haven't had the time!

However, today, listening to the news - gloom, wars, energy crises, the shrinking dollar and poor Jimmy Carter - it occurred to me your readers might enjoy the second episode in the "Saga of the Birds."

We moved, bag, baggage, grand mother, teenagers and all, to Costa Rica three years ago and have been happily settled in Ranchos Marsenata. Our experiences deserve a book. They have not only been exciting but, at times, hilarious. The only flaw was our inability to find easily-accessible, registered beach property. Probably a blessing in disguise. It made us look to Colombia (another democratic republic, where, it turned out, it cost even less to live than Costa Rica).

There we found Palmas de Oro, a lovely, old coconut plantation on the Caribbean. And, to complete its unique setting, when we looked away from the sea, we saw, towering over everything, 19,000 feet high and snow-capped, majestic Mount Colombus of the Sierra Nevadas.

It may be hard to believe - hundreds of green palms, blue sky and ocean, pounding surf and golden sand, snow-capped mountains - but it is all there in Palmas de Oro; on the Pan American Highway near Santa Marta, oldest and most fascinating city in all of the Americas.

So, now we have two loves: our ranch in Costa Rica and beach in Colombia. We feel we have discovered a new, exciting American frontier and are eager to share our find with others. (If you think you are too old for adventure, we are 59 and 63 and both of us have battled and, so far, conquered cancer!) Write us at P.O. Box 137, Liberia, Guanacaste, Costa Rica and send your letters by international air mail (25 cents per half-ounce). We promise to answer.

Now, from Latin America, we wish you salud (health), dinero (wealth) and amor (love)!

Academic Booster Club organized at M.C.H.S.

An organizational meeting of parents and teachers at Martin County High School decided Monday night to form an Academic Booster Club. The group is actively soliciting more members to attend its next meeting on Monday, April 28, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 19 at the high school.

At that time committees will be formed and plans made to achieve the club's goal and slogan which is "Helping to Keep the Tigers No. 1 in Academics." Parents of eighth grade students will also be welcome as members.

Wanda Yarboro, assistant principal, chaired the inaugural meeting and pointed out the the club intends to encourage under achieving students as well as those on the honor roll. Principal Dale Cryan gave his support to the new group and teacher Regina Kelley described the efforts of a similar club in Gainsville where she previously taught.

Elmira Gainey, head of the MCHS Guidance Department, reported on academic recognition at the school in recent years. In addition to two annual banquets for honor roll members and their parents, a system of discount cards has been instituted for two-week periods at the end of each semester.

The cards entitle honor roll students to discounts of up to 20 percent at participating local businesses. Both merchants and students feel they have profited from this reward system, an idea that has brought useful inquiries and recognition from other schools and the news media statewide.

World Cup polo comes to Florida

BY CATHIE FARAGO

For the past two weeks, the Palm Beach Polo Club has played host to contestants from all over the globe who came to compete in the World Cup Championship tournament.

As luck would have it, Prince Charles was taken to the hospital after suffering from heat exhaustion the day before I arrived. Fate can be cruel at times. However, I came away from the games with not a single proposal from my white knight, but with an entirely different outlook on their relatively unknown, but exciting, game of polo.

True, polo is a sport for princes and the rich. Many of the world players are wealthy cattle-ranchers or, at the very least, maintain an air of old money about them. Rightly so, since a good polo pony will set the average buyer back $30,000. Multiply that figure by six, (the number of horses needed to play competitively) and you have what it costs to be a competitive polo player.

Almost as wealthy as the players are the spectators who come to see and be seen. Scanning the people in the box seats of the grandstand was like previewing next year's designer fashions, all understated of course, right down to the Dior sunglasses atop the coiffed heads. Although I must admit, there was a hot-dog stand, I wouldn't have wanted its concession. Many preferred to brown-bag it on their tailgates with caviar and champagne.

As I sat in the press room, picking at my tuna-fish sandwich, trying desperately to uphold my ego among representatives from Newsweek, Polo Magazine and the like, I began to seriously wonder if this event was going to be covered in the sports section or the society column.

My question was answered fifteen minutes later when the game began. There they were, eight men, mallots raised, charging at the equivalent of 30 mph, atop 1,200 lbs. of horse, covering a distance of 300 yards in an attempt to strike a ¾ inch ball. The battle continued for forty-five minutes with only six three-minute breaks, or chuckers, as they are called. They're allowed for changing horses, and perhaps gulping down a quart of Gatorade to cool off. Then it was back on the field for more play.

One might compare it to watching a hockey game on horseback with players hooking mallots and trying to push each other off the line of the ball while moving down the field at full gallop.

If the spectators fear for the player's safety, the horse trainers' main concern is for the beloved animals they have slaved over for so long. To them, the horse provides 90% of the ability between horse and rider, and they, like race-car mechanics, have little or no patience for the inept driver who in one shot, destroys the fruits of their hard-earned efforts.

Polo ponies are all surprisingly lean, with a quality and heart all their own. They must have the endurance to gallop at break-neck speed for a full seven minutes, stop and pivot with quarter-horse agility, and have the courage to bump other horses, sometimes head on, all under the weight of, often, a myriad different riders.

The riders, however, vastly differ in size as well as age. It is not uncommon to see a polo player in his late 40s or early 50s as is the case with the famed hero Juan Carlos Harriott, an Argentinian, who has recently returned to the American circuit after a ten year absence. He is a man with an innate ability to find the ball and drive it with more finesse then probably any other World Cup player. Talking with the man who has lived with the words "the best" and "greatest", as well as having his face printed on t-shirts, I found it refreshing to find him a rather humble, retiring individual who was "very happy to be here."

One of the few rated as a ten-goal player, (a handicap based on one's overall ability) Harriott rode last year on the Argentinain team, which lost 8-9 in the final play-off to the Americans.

Unfortunately, the defending American Retama squad could not hold on to their title this year. Playing Sunday against the Nigerian Hallal team, consisting of two Argentinos, a Mexican and an Englishman, Retama took defeat in a humbling 8-13 score. Retama's Joe Barry didn't offer any excuses, feeling that "we were just too slow." There was talk that the American team was just too diffuse in its actions, lacking definite running plays. Hopefully, some of the problems will be worked out for the upcoming America's Cup tournament to be held in Texas, when Retama will compete against the Argentine Auñrez team. For Sunday's efforts, the American team took home $25,000.

PRINCE CHARLES—of England strikes a stately pose before he arrived at Wellington to play with World Cup Champions in exhibition polo. Unfortunately, high humidity and a strenuous set of matches forced the prince into hospitalization to recover from heat exhaustion.

IRCC offers solar water heater class

High energy costs bother everyone, but most people feel that they have no alternative except to use electricity and pay the price. Now, through a new class offered by the Continuing Education Division of Indian River Community College, you have a choice - and an opportunity to cut your home water heating bills by 80 percent.

To meet every Tuesday from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in Room A214 at the Main Campus, the new class, SWH W050, will cover the design, construction, and installation of solar water heaters. In order that students may gain practical experience, the class will actually build a demonstration unit; and upon completion of the course, students should be able to properly plan, size, construct, and install a solar water heater in their own homes.

The course, to run from May 6 to June 17, costs $9, and since enrollment is limited to 25 students, those interested are urged to sign up now at the IRCC Guidance Office.

Solar water heaters are nothing new to long-time Floridians. Before the advent of cheap, plentiful electricity, solar power was the primary method of heating water for residential use. Now that energy is neither plentiful nor inexpensive, solar water heating has some attractive advantages. Currently, the cost of heating water in Florida runs about $62.50 per person per year, or about $250 for a family of four.

A solar water heater can easily cut this cost by 80 percent. And as energy prices steadily climb, the savings inherent in solar water heating will increase proportionately.

For more information on how you can beat high home energy costs through this solar water heating class, call the IRCC Guidance Division, 464-2000, ext.323.

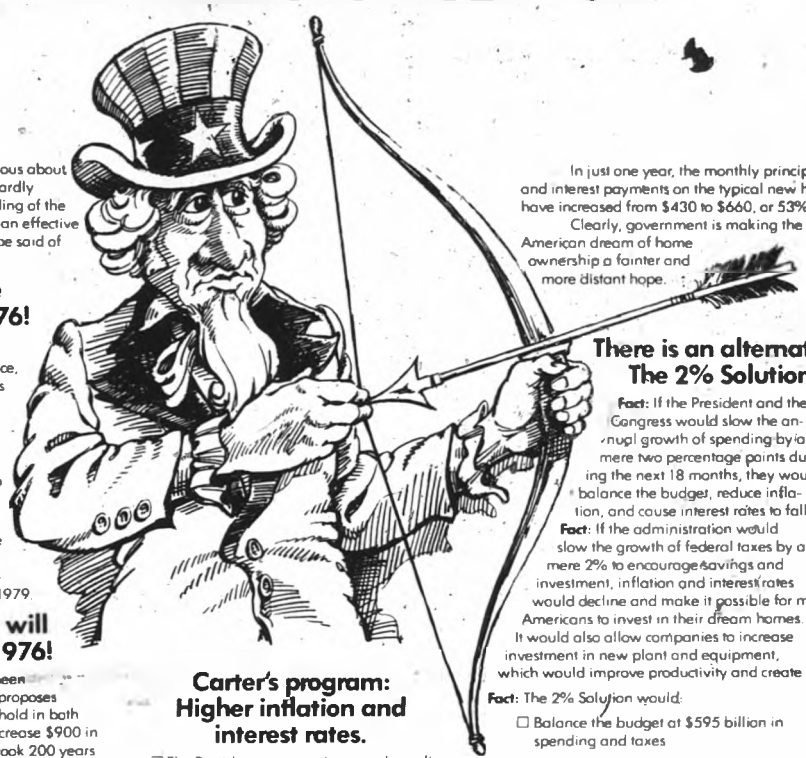
WHY PRESIDENT CARTER'S RECENTLY DECLARED WAR ON INFLATION IS MORE APT TO WOUND AMERICA'S TAXPAYERS THAN AMERICA'S INFLATION.



The President now claims to be serious about inflation. Yet his economic record hardly demonstrates either an understanding of the problem or a willingness to mount an effective program against it. The same can be said of the Congress.

Inflation has more than tripled since 1976!

Consider the record.

- ☐ Before the President took office, the annual inflation rate was 4.8%. The rate in February was 18%.
- ☐ Federal spending has grown at double digit rates since 1976 and is now proposed to increase by a whopping 15.3% for 1980.
- ☐ Administration officials have underestimated inflation by 1.5% during 1977, 3.8% during 1978, and 7.2% during 1979.

Taxes per household will have doubled since 1976!

- ☐ Contrary to what you have been led to believe, the President proposes even higher taxes per household in both 1980 and 1981. Taxes will increase $900 in 1980 and $1,200 in 1981. It took 200 years for taxes to reach $4,000 per household. Carter has proposed taxes totalling more than $8,100 per household in 1981.
- ☐ Even if you include the World War II years, the proposed federal taxes will be the highest percentage of people's income in our country's history.

Carter's touted "anti-inflation" budget calls for increased spending.

Declaring inflation a threat to the nation and the American way of life, the President responds by proposing even higher spending and taxes, as well as more wage and price regulations and credit controls. For example, the President's advertised budget cuts in 1980 are a mere $2 billion. But his unadvertised spending increases will add $6 billion. This means spending will grow by a huge 15.3%. That's no way to fight inflation!

Similarly, the President has advertised spending reductions of $13 to $14 billion in 1981. But unadvertised spending increases of $9 to $10 billion will offset most of the "cuts".

Carter's program: Higher inflation and interest rates.

- ☐ The President proposes increased gasoline taxes. This alone could cause 1% to 2% higher consumer prices.
- ☐ The President's proposed higher spending in 1980 will reduce savings and investment and housing by driving up interest rates.
- ☐ Increased tax receipts from dividends and interest earnings in 1981 will also reduce savings, investment, and productivity and cause interest rates to be higher.

But worst of all, the much heralded balanced budget for 1981 increases the tax burden on all Americans!

Where will our children live?

New home construction is 35% behind demand —and falling! This shortage will lead to higher housing prices in the future.

Government-induced inflation and resulting high interest rates have created a shortage of affordable homes and prevented many from upgrading their present housing. People who must move for new jobs, health reasons or retirement can't afford to do so.

In just one year, the monthly principal and interest payments on the typical new home have increased from $430 to $660, or 53%.

There is an alternative: The 2% Solution.

Fact: If the President and the Congress would slow the annual growth of spending by a mere two percentage points during the next 18 months, they would balance the budget, reduce inflation, and cause interest rates to fall.

Fact: If the administration would slow the growth of federal taxes by a mere 2% to encourage savings and investment, inflation and interest rates would decline and make it possible for more Americans to invest in their dream homes. It would also allow companies to increase investment in new plant and equipment, which would improve productivity and create jobs.

Fact: The 2% Solution would:

- ☐ Balance the budget at $595 billion in spending and taxes.
- ☐ Reduce inflation by at least three percentage points.
- ☐ Lower short-term interest rates by at least three percentage points.
- ☐ Reduce mortgage interest rates by two percentage points.
- ☐ Build 400,000 additional new homes each year.
- ☐ Allow one million additional households to move to better housing each year.
- ☐ Create one million jobs.
- ☐ Increase average household income $900.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

Hutchinson Island — Seems like when you talk about professional tennis, it's difficult not to mention money. So I am not going to side-step the big bucks, a frontal attack on money, money, money.

About the only way to rank a tennis player on the pro tour is to count his earnings, actually his tournament winnings, because his earnings can and in many cases do overshadow prize money.

Don't want to take too much time discussing Borg, everyone in tennis knows he makes an awful lot of money. Actually, he will make over two million in 1980. That is before his last meeting with a tennis club in Spain. They have offered Borg the position of touring pro for one million a year. It will only take a week or two out of his tournament schedule, so I don't blame him.

Jimmy Connors who is also known for making a great deal of money in tennis, received a fan letter from a young woman wanting to show her appreciation for all that Jimbo has done for the game and her enjoyment, enclosed a check for one million dollars. Jimmy called the bank and was informed that her family had assets to easily cover that amount. Connors decided to keep the check as a souvenir. "If I hit hard times," he says, "maybe then I'll take it to the bank."

It's great to hear that Arthur Ashe is so well fixed. In 1975-6, Arthur won the WCT tour that offered a prize choice of $50,000 cash or a 12 pound 24K gold tennis ball that was worth $35,000 at that time. Arthur using his guru powers took the balls. Again I think he is using his guru powers, because he turned down over ten offers of over $336,000.00 for the two gold tennis balls.

Martina Navratilova is listed as #1 in women's tennis. She is well over the one million mark per annum and Chris Evert who is sorta taking it easy will top everyone if she just shows up to say hello in enough places. Little Tracy Austin has to be the highest paid high schoool kid anywhere.

Andrea Jaeger at 14 won the Avon Futures in Las Vegas as an amateur. Then turned pro and has wins over Cathy May Teacher, Rosie Casals, Sue Barker and Wendy Turnbull. This should make her the highest paid Jr. High student anywhere. Now you can see what I predicted last week about Cathy Rinaldi is not so unusual. Hey Cathy, have you considered being the youngest ever to turn pro? "thirteen is a ripe old age!

Some ex players are also making some big bucks. Like Tony Trabert. I doubt that Tony made $5,00 in his playing days, because he was an amateur. But now with endorsements and T.V. plus his Tennis Camps, he has to be in the high six figure bracket.

I believe I am safe in guesstimating that Jack Kramer probably has made ten times more since retiring from being the top pro tennis player in the world.

Even a guy who never could play too well, let alone now, can make it big. Vic Braden has built one of the most successful tennis camps anywhere. He keeps everyone laughing, remembers everyone's name and goes to the bank in the high six figure group. His T.V. commentating is not too shabby, as far as $$$$ signs go.

Then if you wonder how some of these tennis players live, check out TENNIS April 1980 pages 52-55, Vilas Gerulaitis. And keep in mind that he also has a pad at Turnberry Island in Miami that cost $500,000 unfurnished!

Guillermo Vilas is now publishing poetry to compensate his meager tennis earnings of about $700,000.

And now back to reality, get your entries in for the Lipton lead Tea Mixed Doubles Championship June 21 at Indian River Plantation. Followed by The Martin County Championship, all during National Tennis Week.

There is still a lot of money around looking for a Tennis outlet. Some of the promoters of the defunct World Team Tennis League are trying to revive that dead horse. What I don't understand is why they want to standardize the pay scale. In my opinion that is what was wrong with it the first time around. The only way that real serious tennis players could put up with all that unnecessary noise and football like cheering is, to receive the same amount of money win lose or draw, and that takes away the incentive to win.

Have a good rest of the day.

Salvation Army plans to send needy kids to summer camp

The St. Lucie-Martin County unit of the Salvation Army is looking forward to the opening of the summer camping season for needy youngsters and is hopeful of sending another large group to the camp this year, according to Lt. Rick Mikles, commanding officer of the local unit.

All kinds of recreational activities are included in the daily program — ball games, swimming, boating, hiking, nature study and what have you. There are also daily and nightly devotional and inspirational religious activities, all conducted by dedicated and trained Salvation Army leaders.

The camp operates in one week periods throughout the summer. The cost this year will be $55 per camper, which includes transportation by the S.A. back and forth, together with all other costs.

"The Salvation Army camp," said Lt. Mikles, "offers youngsters experience and training that they will never forget and that will be helpful to them the rest of their lives.

"The people of the community heretofore have been very generous in underwriting the cost of sending large groups of our needy youngsters to camp, and I am sure that they will be equally responsive this year, enabling us to accommodate every applicant for our two-county area."

Parents wishing to have their youngsters attend the camp may register at the S.A. office.

The local Salvation Army has recently expanded its services to include adult misdemeanor probation services for the county judge's courts of St. Lucie, Martin and Indian River counties.

Such a program it was stated, has been adopted and has been very successful in other areas of Florida and other states.

Under the program, county judges refer misdemeanor offenders put on probation to the Salvation Army in lieu of fines or jail sentences or court oversight. The S.A., it was stated, provides counseling, help in finding employment, personal interest and rehabilitation through a trained director. Probationers are required to report to the director regularly and may, if circumstances justify, be sent back to the committing judge. The program is self-sustaining, it was stated.

Lloyd Schoenrock is director of the local program, known as the Salvation Army Correctional Services program. He has taken special training in the program, and it has been highly successful here thus far, he reported at the Advisory Board meeting. The courts are cooperating and lending every possible assistance, and already a total of 76 cases have been referred to the service.

It's sad to see friends go

Spring is here and John the postman should soon be whistling again, as this is a time for gladness instead with some sadness. The year round folks can't help but be glad that now there'll be more room on the roads, at the supermarts and gas stations, but it's a little sad to have to say goodbye to friends and neighbors. This week do left to make the season total about 150.

Many are buttoning up for summer security in preparation to leaving soon. So that brings to mind the 'Night patrol', as it is busier than ever during the summer, and must have 2 places vents for those who have left; volunteers needed for two hours a night once a week. Talking about security, more who are putting heavy mesh grills on their jalousie door, don't forget that outside hinges must have the pin secured (from a quick 'knock in' by a house breaker; it's quite simple to do).

The other day a Port St. Lucie lady reported a pelican snarled up and injured by a fish hook and line and wanted to know what to do about it. Well, anyone in that predicament get in touch with Jean Henry, 286-0545. She has been caring for injured birds for a long time.

This is the week for checking your blood pressure in the Jensen Beach area, see AARP column for time and place.

PARK EVENTS

Bingo, every Monday and Wednesday night at 7 p.m. goes on and on until September, even as the other activities peter-out.

Saturday Night Dance will continue for a while longer, as there was a larger than expected crowd Sat. Apr. 12 (maybe, because cable TV was off for a few hours). Ballroom, round, square and disco dancing was enjoyed and although there were some 'good byes' there were many 'I'll see you again next week."

Camera Club Exec. Board met Tues. Apr. 8, 7 p.m. in the clubhouse with the following attending: Pres. Fran Gunn; 1VP, Sparky Garside; 2VP, Ed Pettit; Sec/Treas., Freda Peterkin; Technician, Fred Kalb; Nina Zigelhofer; Ernie Curwen; Doc Roberts. They affirmed that Thur. was Camera Club night and the change to Tues. was only temporary to accommodate the square dancers.

Fran has 9 possible shows lined up and says part shows can be worked in. Also, the officers will assist with the editing and commentary if required. Freda reports that the club is solvent but not affluent and 27 new members joined last year. So, it looks like a good season next fall, if the members keep their cameras clicking.

Shufflers are still busy with the war between the north and the south and it's far from over. This week Ruel Mertz' Rebels bested George Dean's Yankees 39 to 31, but George has a new battle plan and secret weapon.

Also, there is 'Pot Luck' every Friday night, In case the non-shufflers think they are missing a feed, I'll explain. Each player starts out with 15¢ and plays 3 games. Loosers pay winners 5¢ per game. The players draw for court, position and disc color (that's the pot luck part), so it is a matter of luck as well as skill.

Golfers are saying oud and clear, that they play rain or shine and there has been 30 or more of them teeing off each and every Sat. a.m. However, no winners are being reported, how about it golfers?

Concert and Street Dancing, 7 p.m. Sunday, Apr. 13 will be reported in detail next week.

RAMBLING AROUND

Raleigh and Minnie Throgmartin, 11 Cypress, came down here in 1974 from Caseville, Mich. where they worked in auto industry. Raleigh 39 years with Oldsmobile and Minnie was with Plymouth. They sure like it here as they can have lots of relatives visit them, sons, daughters, granddaughters and finally, grandson Kenneth Mathews, came down here on his big Honda for a couple of weeks when layed off by Chrysler. He has to go back soon, but would like to stay on as he was bitten by the shuffle bug and splits his time between the courts and the beach.

Vi Watts, cor. Banyan and Sixth, came down here in 73 from Massachusetts and did enjoy it here But, now finds that it will be best for her to go back to her home town of Beverly, Mass. to an apartment that is just around the corner from her sister. It is evidently good for Vi up that way, as she looked extremely well.

Minnie Brammer, 30 SW 5th Ave. and her daughter, Sharlett Moore, 28 SW 5th Ave. have had visitors. Larry Moore, wife and son Jamie came down from Lafayette, Ind. for 10 days over Easter. By-the-way, Jamie is Minnie's great-grandson. They all enjoyed the swimming when they weren't gallivanting around to Cape Canaveral, Circus World and plenty of fish dinners.

Snowbird ball was a ball

The last dance of the season was held Thursday, April 10th with 101 people attending. In keeping with the theme, "The Snowbird Ball", there were huge snowbirds carrying messages of safety, goodbyes & good wishes. Table prizes were awarded. The committee consisted of Dave and Gene Riley, chairpersons; Speck and Verne Clinger; George and Florence Simmons; and Adele Fisher.

The Pavilion Church was attended by 100 persons. Bob Barton was Lay Leader, Rev. Clark Thompson officiated, George Bares was guest organist, Norma Quilian was guest singer for the anthem and offertory. Dee Brink, our Musical Director, will be the organist next Sunday.

Bingo on Friday Eve — the last bingo evening of the season brought out 102 players — many who have played each week since its start in November. However all good things must end. There is always next year! Frank Plaz, host for the season, thanked all the players for their fine cooperation, also the Bingo Committee for its excellent assistance thru out the year, in making the bingo activity such a successful and pleasant activity. A healthy, happy and safe summer season was wished to all! Kate Stump won the bottle of "bubbly". Six surprize packages were awarded to lucky card holders. Catty Ullmann won the Winner-Take-All 1st Prize with Robert Bowers taking 2nd Prize. Bob Holden and Sonny Granstorff were the number callers with Les Ullmann and Bill McWhirk giving assistance on card clearances. Millie Plaz and Catty Ullmann took care of the refreshments.

Dick Nourse, the Recreation Director of the Board, conducted a good Rec meeting last Tuesday, April 8th. He is trying to find new ideas and new talent to participate in our coming year. October will be the next meeting and a monthly meeting thereafter.

We are happy to report that Lena Black has agreed to be Park Refreshon director another year. Thank you Lena! She has most of her committee arranged for various affairs, but would appreciate any help she can get. This past season was excellent and all thank those who aided. It's such a lovely place to enjoy and with gas being short, we were all helped by not having to drive our cars to church or dances and bingo. It's wonderful to have everything at our Park to enjoy.

Monday Night Cards—There were 5 tables for play with Mary Sumner in charge, in the absence of Erma Barton. 1st: Jan Parr 5920, 2nd: Bill Henderson 5720, Marj Fitton 5270, Gene Riley 4190, Booby — Marj Scott 2310.

Some after-Easter footnotes — Starting the day at the Jensen Beach Sunrise Service, the Knechtges family also celebrated Easter by enjoying dinner later at the Outrigger. 21 relatives and friends attended, including: Helen & Clarence Knechtges, Robert Cooper, brother of Helen, Shirley & Bob Ozenger, their daughter and son-in-law Gail & Larry Cranston, Janice & Stanley Goodman, their daughter Nancy & her friend Sue Young, Patricia & Robert Bowers, Helen Carl Dicks and grandchildren Karen & Scott, Osa & Horace Taylor. All are from Mich. And most are owners in H.Out.

Shivam Gable, Artie Smith's granddaughter from upper New York, will spend 10 days in our Park, after wintering in ski country, she will enjoy the ocean and the pool, adding a light tan maybe.

You flower lovers— Stop by 221 Bluefish S. and look at the beautiful Gardenia bushes that are in full bloom. Artie will even give you a flower.

Andy Donnelly came home Sunday after a few days in Martin Memorial Hospital. He is doing well and able to sit outside on the patio enjoying the sun and tropical breezes.

Owens home reflects rich history of area

HEART OF THE HOME—Bill and Rhonda Owens stand before the handsome colonial fireplace which graces their living room. The Florida back-lands scene over the mantel is a Beanie Backus print expressive of the Owenses' love of their native state.

If you have any doubts about the richness of East Coast Florida history, you can have them allayed by talking to William E. and Rhonda Owens of Sewall's Point. Both are third generation "crackers," and both of their grandparents were closely associated with the epoch-making Henry Flagler.

The Owenses, whose ancestors settled in Palm Beach before Palm Beach county was established, live in a gracious colonial-style home on River Road, and a visit there is a visit into the area's colorful past.

You're greeted by a taste of it at the house's entryway. The "newel posts" for the wrought iron railing enwrapping the porch are tall antique fire dogs.

"They came from the estate in Palm Beach where I lived as a boy," Bill explained.

Throughout the handsome interior of the Owens home, one finds tastefully utilized fruits from their family trees — particularly on the long patio which extends the full breadth of the rear, overlooking the river. It is furnished with gleaming white wicker furniture bespeaking the turn-of-the-century elegance typical of Palm Beach.

The Owenses had the home built four years ago to fill the family requirements, and as a result, the antiques have found their ideal setting. Particularly with the bay windows of the bedrooms and the mellow toned hardwood floors to set them off.

And in the den, along with the portraits of Rhonda's grandfather George M. Tayler who was Flagler's chief electrician, the walls are covered with plaques and citations attesting to Bill's many contributions to the Stuart area since they moved here in 1962.

As past president of Martin Memorial Hospital board of directors, Bill's latest acquisition is a handsome plaque in appreciation for his 12 years service on the board. He is also vice president of the Martin County - Palm Beach Heart Association which provided funds for Jensen's Parcours at Langford Park, and a past president of the Red Cross and the Farm Bureau.

Both politics and citrus are traditions in the Owens family. His grandfather, James M. Owens served as Lake County's first state representative in the state legislature in 1897. Bill, a former county commissioner, served in the state legislature in 1962.

His grandfather, James M. Owens, was the first Palm Beach County Tax Assessor, a post his father James Jr. also held, serving until 1959.

His grandfather, who was in citrus in Umatilla, moved to the Palm Beach area in 1899, after the killing freeze of that year. Grandson Bill has extensive citrus holdings in the Indiantown area.

While Palm Beach was home base for his family, Sewall's Point was not alien territory.

"Before Martin County was formed, grandfather came up here and assessed all this property," he said of the surrounding area.

In those days, shortly after the turn of the century, a few settlers had been lured by the wild natural beauty of the area, but nature still had the upper hand.

"Grandfather said he used to come up to Sewall's Point to shoot squirrels," Rhonda said.

"And they used to get stone crabs out of these waters by the bucket," Bill added.

The squirrels are still abounding, but the stone crabs, alas, have gone the way of pollution.

Mrs. Owens disclaims any major contributions to the community, except her work with the First Presbyterian Church, which they attend. But her work gleams through the shining, well-kept home, and through their children. Jaime, 28, works at First Federal, and their 26 year old son William E. Jr., is with his father in the Indiantown citrus business. Daughter, Heather, 20, is a student at Auburn University, where she is majoring in math and science.

"I also love to go to the beach, when I have the time," she said.

Bill, who is chairman of the board of First Federal Savings and Loan, has great faith in the economic health of the area, despite the skyrocketing mortgage interests.

"There has been a decrease in building and construction applicants," he said, "and you can't blame a person, with the high interest rates. But they are going to find a roll-over type mortgage, which will be reviewed in three years, with the interest to be adjusted in correspondence with the growing rate. I don't think Martin County will feel the slowdown. It's a [illegible] economy."

And on politics: "I enjoy politics — I feel it is my duty. Politics is this country. If we don't have a part in it, we have no one to blame but ourselves."

CHAUFFEUR SERVICE—Enjoying the amenities of millionaire life are Jensen Beach residents Mary and John Carden. Helping them into the prestigious white Lincoln Continental is "chauffer" Bob Hucheson. Chauffer service was only the first of many luxuries the winners of the Six Million Dollar Evening were to enjoy.

GOURMET CHEFS—Displaying just a bit of the delicacies they created for the fourth annual Six Million Dollar evening are gourmet chefs Janie Fox and Conard Clark. The gourmets reportedly worked for three days to prepare all the food for Saturday's special feast.

DANCING IN THE WIND—Topping off the Six Million Dollar evening was a ballet performance by the Dance Academy of Martin County. The pixie-ish dancers gracefully swayed before a backround of moonlight on the St. Lucie River.

12 enjoy evening fit for king - or millionaire

Story and photos by Michelle Naspinski

Six area couples had the opportunity to experience "how the other half lives" Saturday night, as they were the lucky recipients of the Tri-County Rehabilitation Center's fourth annual "Six Million Dollar Evening for Two."

The event, for which over 700 raffle tickets were sold, netted the non-profit Rehabilitation Center some $7,000.

In addition to benefitting the Center, area residents: Helen and Bob McBride, Pat and David Ray, Mary and John Carden, Betty Kay and Arthur Dehon, Lillian and Dick Kinney, Robin Mursch and Marie Kalenjian were able to enjoy the amenities of life as millionaires.

That life started at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, when the couples were picked up at their homes by chauffer-driven luxury cars, driven by members of the staff and Board of Directors of the Center. Acting as chauffeurs for the evening were: Dennis Arnold, Bob Hutcheson, Charles Pemble, Pete Walson and Dean Baumgartner.

Following the couples arrival at Sandpiper Bay, they boarded their own "private" yacht, captained by Travis Campbell. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres of shrimp and crab legs were served, as the "millionaires" enjoyed a sunset cruise to the home of F. D. "Bud" and Margie Jordan.

The Jordan manor, constructed in 1918 by a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, is a Spanish-style masterpiece reminiscent of the structures made famous by West Palm Beach architects Addison/Mizner. The Jordans have been carefully renovating the historical dwelling for the past three years, and judging from the reaction of the "millionaires", it served as a perfect setting for their six million dollar evening.

After being greeted at the door by uniformed "servants", the couples were ushered inside for more cocktails and before-dinner appetizers. While one millionaire, when asked his preference between wine and champagne, indicated a liking for Busch beer, he quickly fell into his new role and downed the bubbly liquid like the best of them.

The millionaires were then treated to a gourmet meal of cold poached salmon with avocado Hollandaise sauce, veal prince orloff, asparagus with lemon butter, stuffed artichoke buttons, a salad of watercress and endive and a rare dessert known as "pavlova." This feast reportedly took three days to prepare by artful chefs Janie Fox, Conard Clark and Mary Sue Ettinger.

Serving the couples the endless parade of delicacies were "waiters" James Harrell, Stewart Hershey, Douglas Sands, Richard Totilas and Stanley Wampler, and "wine stewards" David Balongue, Jack Carmody, Lanny Fox, Keith Kilgallen and John Prewitt. According to kitchen talk, the millionaires "cleared their palates" with a bottle and a half of wine each, leaving the chauffeurs with some interesting conversation for the ride home.

But even the remarkable surroundings and cuisine did not mark the end of a six million dollar evening. After dinner he Dance Academy of Martin County gave a private ballet performance on the lawn of the Jordan residence.

If ever the evening seemed like a visit to Fantasy Island, it was then on the porch, as the millionaires watched shimmering elfish ballerinas dance before the St. Lucie River, with the moonlight carving silhouettes of the palm tree sentinels.

But all too quickly, the six million dollar evening ended, and the millionaires were restored to their former butcher, baker and candlestick-maker selves, savoring the last chauffeur-driven ride home.

"It was one of those modern fairy tales come true — like Cinderella," sighed Lillian Kinney, "the only thing is it's a spoiler; you have to come down to earth again."

TOAST—And there was plenty to toast to and with at the Six Million Dollar evening. Pictured here offering a toast were winners Helen and Bob McBride.

OSTING—Acting as host and hostess for the Six Million Dollar Evening were Bud" and Margie Jordan. The Jordans' home was constructed in 1918 by a phew of Andrew Carnegie in the style of West Palm Beach architects ddison-Mizner.

WHAT IS THAT—I don't know, but I think I've seen enough. The Six Million Dollar evening sponsored by the Tri-County Rehabilitation Center was certainly an eye-opening experience for all the "millionaires," as they enjoyed a boat cruise and a gourmet feast at the home of Bud and Margie Jordan. Pictured here taking it all in are Lillian and Dick Kinney.

Whiting repeats as champion of Sandpiper

BY MIKE SANDY

Scoring a one over par round of 73 for the final 18 holes, Dick Whiting successfully defended his title as Sandpiper Bay Men's Association champion Thursday.

His total for the 54 hole test was 225, which included rounds of 76, 76 and 73. Dan McConnell who was a one stroke leader after 36 holes moved up as 86 to finish in a tie for second place with Ed Leary who came through with a closing day round of 83. Both were at the 237 tally.

Shooting an 81, one of his best rounds of the season including a one under par 35 on the back nine of the Saints course, Dick Lake walked off with the Five Flight title with 248 blows while Bill Jahn, who led after 36 holes, found it difficult to match the shots of Lake. Jahn garnered second slot in that flight with 251 total while Bill Kelso and Harold Roberts deadlocked for third with tallies of 254.

One of the area's most improved golfers, Howard Hickman, intent on winning his flight, broke out of a three way tie to take the Second Flight title when he carded an 87 to edge out over Ed Reuter and Don Lapore, both scoring 88s.

Charlie Duval withstood a strong challenge by Dave Eaton for Third Flight honors as Eaton scored a brilliant 83 to lose out by one shot to Duval, who amassed a 84 hole total of 266 over Eaton's 267. Dr. Joe Monte finished third in that division with 272.

The Fourth Flight Crown will be worn by Don Fisher, whose 98 found on the final day gave him a tally of 286 five shots better than Dick Landin's 290. Third in that group was Bob Mitchell with 295.

Thursday's scheduled play for the Sandpipers is Two Best Balls of a Foursome with play repeating on the 18 hole Championship Saints course.

DOT lists Martin projects delayed by lack of funds

The Secretary of the Department of ransportation Bill Rose advised day that transportation projects in artin County will be delayed if dditional revenue is not made vailable.

Projects originally scheduled in the 79-81 work program which cannot e constructed without additional nding include:

Bridge Repairs:

ievelt Bridge and the bridge ning St. Lucie River on U.S. 1; ier Creek Bridge on U.S. 1; Van's y Bridge on State Road 410; and an River Bridge on S.R. A-1-A.

• Resurfacing 3.1 miles on S.R. 714, from the Florida Turnpike to North Reilly Avenue.

Such state funded projects, jeopardized by declining gasoline tax revenues and higher costs due to inflation, join federal aid improvements deferred due to a lack of funds.

Federal aid projects, in Martin County deferred or delayed include:

Initiation of a Transit System, deferred one year; resurfacing and shoulder pavement on 12.9 miles of S.R. 91, between Mileposts 73.946 and 86.944, deferred one year; Adding lanes and reconstruction of 4.6 miles on S.R. A-1-A, from Palm Beach Road to Evans Crary Bridge, deferred four years; and new construction on 13 miles of I-95, from south of S.R. 76 to Canal C-23, deferred four years.

Governor Bob Graham, concerned about the critical situation in transportation revenues, has recommended a transportation financing program be enacted in the current legislative session. His program would allow revenues to keep pace with the inflation in highway construction costs and also permit some new directions in solving Florida's transportation problems.

The major thrust of the Governor's proposal is a method of varying the current eight cents per gallon gasoline tax to reflect the inflationary increase in construction costs. This method called "indexing" would compute a three year average inflation factor each October and adjust the gasoline tax based on this factor. The new tax rate would then take effect on January 1. Just as it is presently done, gasoline taxes would continue to be divided equally between the state and local governments.

The Governor has also proposed to double the cost of truck tractor license fees, so these vehicles will pay their fair share of highway maintenance and construction costs. Also, his program contains legislation which prevents out-of-state trucks and buses from evading Florida road use taxes.

Finally, Governor Graham is requesting that the Florida Legislature allocate $25 million of general revenue funds to emphasize new directions in transportation. Greater use of the existing highway system would be obtained through improvements such as turning lanes, synchronized signal systems, high occupancy vehicle lanes and one-way street pairs. A $12.5 million revolving fund would be established to make large scale purchases of buses. This would provide buses to local authorities faster and at less cost than currently is the case. The last point in the Governor's program is a fund to support transportation improvements to aid economic development in the state.

That work led to a nationwide commercial for the famed singing group, The Bee Gees. The commercial is aired on Ch. 17 from Atlanta.

As for being queen, Ms. Ianieri said she is pleased to have the opportunity to represent the Stuart Sailfish Regatta. She applied for the honor last year but because of her age, had to wait a year.

She is looking forward to a busy weekend of activities.

Last year, she saw the races from the riverside but this year she will be on the shoreline greeting spectators and drivers and handing out the trophies at the banquet ceremony.

"It was a lot of fun," she said of seeing her first Regatta.

"I like being around people and this is a good opportunity to meet many people," she said.

Among her many duties will be presenting prizes and trophies to the winners. Efforts have been made to reach publicity chairpersons of all groups which send publicity notices to The Mirror in order to extend a personal invitation to have them, as well as the president of their organization, join us at the meeting.

"In some cases, we have not yet been able to reach the publicity chairperson or president of a given organization to invite them to join us. If you are one of these persons, please don't feel this is due to oversight or for lack of effort. We have tried. But if you have not yet been contacted, please consider this as your invitation. We would be most happy to have you attend," Campbell said.

In addition to recognizing the publicity chairpersons for their efforts and serving up some coffee and donuts, the meeting is also designed to foster an exchange of ideas. "We plan to discuss what we're looking for from our writers as to the style and form of their press releases, as well as to seek input from them as to how we can do a better job of publicizing their organization's events. We hope it will be an educational process for all of us," Campbell said.

Daylight Savings is Sunday

The days have been getting longer lately and will get even longer this Sunday.

Actually, the days have all had 24 hours in them last time we checked. But this Sunday, there will only be 23 hours in the day, yet the day will have an hour more of sunshine in it.

It's not a riddle. It's Daylight Savings Time. At 2 a.m. Sunday, it suddenly will become 3 a.m.

That means we'll be getting even more hours of sunshine than we've been getting. And, it means before you go to bed Saturday night, you should turn your clocks and watches ahead by an hour. If you don't you may be late for church or other events on Sunday.

Train nearly caused serious fire at Pine Crest Lakes

A train passing through Jensen Beach late Saturday nearly resulted in a serious house fire.

"Jensen Beach Fire" Chief, Joe Lemone said he received a call last night informing of a house fire at the Pine Crest Lakes subdivision off SR 707A. "The railroad crossing gates were down, but the train wasn't there yet. I know I'm not supposed to do it, but I zig-zagged around the gates and went to the fire," Lorcino said.

Whenever the department gets a call, the chief always heads to the fire first as he can call back to let men at the department know how bad it is and whether they'll need to bring more trucks than they originally be planning to send. Meanwhile, volunteer firemen at the station and called the trucks.

Lorcino said under normal circumstances, the trucks would have arrived about three minutes after he did. But the trucks got caught by the passing train and the firemen arrived nine minutes later. By that time Lorcino had knocked the fire down to size by using a dry chemical extinguisher.

"If I had been held up by the train though, the fire would have been a bad one by the time we got there," he said. As it was, when Lorcino arrived, the fire had already burned a hole in an outside wall of the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Tomlinson and had burned three of four studs in the a wall up to a point near the roof.

Lorcino said he wasn't not certain of the cause of the blaze, but said the home had not yet had electricity hooked up to it and that plumbers had been sweating pipes at the home in the vicinity of the blaze about an hour before the fire was reported.

Lorcino said the fire was another example of the need for a new fire station on the west side of the tracks. The county commission authorized advertisements for bids to build such a station, along Savanna Road, last week. Construction of the station is to take place this summer.

Bogus bills avoid God's retribution

Two counterfeit bills were passed in the past several weeks at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant. One was a $50 bill, the other was a $20 bill.

In both cases, the bogus bills were identified before the customer left the restaurant, and legal tender was exchanged. Neither customer knew that the bills were bad.

The waitresses identified the bills easily. On the back of the bills the words "In God we trust" were missing.

ADVANTAGES OF THE TAX-FREE EXCHANGE

QUESTION: I have heard real estate people talk about what they call the tax-free exchange and rally don't understand why it's so important. Can't I avoid paying a tax on the sale just by holding on to my property?

ANSWER: The tax-deferred exchange often referred to as a tax-free exchange is a valuable tool in estate planning.

Unfortunately, many investors fail to recognize that by holding a property for too long, they lessen the effectiveness of their equity. In other words, as an investor's equity in a property increases, his leverage decreases.

Once an investor has decided that he should refinance, sell or exchange, he will discover that the tax-deferred exchange is generally preferable to an outright sale. A sale automatically triggers a capital gains tax. Even if he reinvests the proceeds, he does not qualify for any deferral of the tax payment – unless he utilizes an installment sale or tax-deferred exchange.

Used correctly, the tax-deferred exchange allows the investor to defer payment of capital gains tax until the acquired property is sold.

A properly executed series of tax-deferred exchanges can allow the investor to avoid dilution (from capital gains taxation) of personal net worth in his lifetime.

Community Church combats hunger with double miracle

A quiet miracle has been unfolding at Jensen Beach community church in the past six weeks.

And now observed Dr John DeGangi, The miracle begins for many hungry families in Third World countries."

Love Loaves, small loaf-shaped styrene containers filled with dimes, quarters, dollars and checks, were the means to the double miracle. Families in the church had placed the Love Loaf containers on their dinner tables as prayer reminders of the project and members of the family were encouraged to contribute coins to end hunger relief.

Something tremendous has been happening within our own congregation, added Dr. John. "We've really experienced the joy that this loving sacrifice of giving can bring and it's made us all more aware of how we can respond as Christians in a hungry world."

During the Love Loaf program, which was headed by William Van Vliet and the Benevolence Committee of the church, the church conducted a hunger emphasis series at the Sunday services, exploring the many facets of Christian response to world need and culminating in a "Dedication of the Loaves" service, when participants presented their love loaf gifts.

Over $3,000.00 was collected in this way, to be used in the fight against hunger. Sixty percent will be given to different benevolences projects, including $500.00 to Church World Service.

World Vision International, originator of the Love Loaf program, will receive 40 percent for emergency relief work. World Vision is an interdenominational nonprofit Christian humanitarian agency that combines social concern with evangelism in 78 countries.

Thompson to be speaker for May Fellowship Day

The Church Women United of Martin County will observe May Fellowship Day Friday, May 2, at the First United Methodist Church in Stuart.

A salad luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m., followed by services in the church at 12:30 p.m.

Eleanor Funk is chairman for the event. Guest speaker will be the Rev. J. Clark Thompson, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church in Jensen Beach. Soloist will be Edna Horne, with interpretive dancer Mrs. Ron Reesner also on the program.

Those attending are asked to bring salads and their own place settings.

May Fellowship Day, an international observance, will have the theme "The Spirit of the Lord is Upon Me," which will also be the theme for the Church Women United's Ecumenical Assembly, set for June at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, which will bring together people of all denominations from around the world.

Celebrated on the first Friday of May each year since 1933, May Fellowship Day is designed to emphasize the potential for creative and healing relationships in every community.

A. Goode Florist opens in Jensen

It's a novel setting, with the design of the shop in keeping with the antique setting of the Ricou Building, a Jensen Beach landmark since 1909. Art and Helen Roberts like the old Florida look and are bringing A. Goode Florist to Jensen in that theme. The grand opening is Friday.

Roberts is a well known local radio personality, and his wife is an active worker in community activities in Port St. Lucie.

"I am very excited about opening our florist shop here, and look forward to being a part of the business community of Jensen Beach," Roberts said amidst the sawdust, shavings and construction work that would soon be cleared for opening of the shop.

Working alongside Roberts is Celeste Jugenheimer, who seems as excited. She will manage the new store.

It will be a combination florist shop, featuring fresh flowers, arrangements, dried and silk arrangements, hanging baskets, gifts and other florist related items. There will be world wide wire services available to send flowers and arrangements.

The Ricou Building, recently renovated in the 1909 style by Frank Wachs, Jr., has gained another motif business. Susie's Ice Cream Parlor has the old Florida design, as does the Tiger Touch gift shop.

The new florist shop will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Nettles Island Scramblers

The news reporter for the Scramblers has neglected her duties due to too much company so here goes the last four weeks of prize winners. This news travels so far away parts of the US to many of our friends that have left Florida for the summer and also to a very dear friend that didn't make it down this year (Hi, Fern and Earl).

March 30th winners: It was husband and wife week for scrambling and the low gross winners were Dan and Betty Reardan with 65. Second low gross was Don and Lee Willis with 68 and Phyllis and Ken Hodgkins with 70. Closest to the pin on the 2nd hole was Millie Slavin and on the 12th hole Russ Roly. Peoria winners for the day was Dan and Betty Reardan.

This was the last day for many of our scramblers. We had a social hour after playing on the 18th hole.

Condominium appraising is offered

A one day real estate seminar on appraising residential condominiums will be presented by First Federal of Martin County on May 2. It was announced this week by Paul Gliedman, vice president.

The seminar will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and continue with the program through the day. It will be held in the Hoke Hall meeting room in Jensen Beach.

David Scribner, real estate appraisal instructor at the University of Florida, will lead the classes, open to real estate professionals.

The seminar compares the condominium form of property ownership with alternatives, offers an identification of condominium markets, value considerations unique to condos, differences in property management, operating statements and real estate taxes, appraisal of single unit and condos as a whole and an explanation of value problems in appraisals.

For information, phone Paul Gliedman, 334-4606. The course is sponsored by the Indian River Chapter 215 of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

HUGH JENCKS
878-2856

Tom Carlile, coordinator of the Voluntary Income Tax Assistance program, reported that a total of 201 people received help in this year's stint by chapter members at the First Federal Savings & Loan in St. Lucie Plaza. That's about 100 more than the number who took advantage of this service in 1979. He expressed the thanks of the chapter to the volunteers who took part. They are Tom himself, of course, who carried the main load for the fourth consecutive year, Estelle Baskin, Jim Chester, Angelo Deckaster, Ed Eberling, Gail Gonsalves, Gene Henry, Hugh Jencks, Marion Kehoe, Henry Schmalbach and Bob Trotz. President Charlie Coffman will write a letter on behalf of the chapter to Bob Evans, the bank manager, thanking his institution for providing the comfortable and convenient facilities used by the volunteers.

Get well wishes to Gene Henry, who underwent surgery recently at Martin Memorial Hospital and, is now recuperating satisfactorily.

The tax program is perhaps the best known example of AARP members doing what the organization states as its main objective: that of being of service to them. But there are many other ways in which this objective can be attained and some of them were outlined at the April meeting by Mrs. Lois Evans of RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program). Mrs. Evans had been scheduled at two earlier meetings, but circumstances prevented her appearance on those occasions. Mrs. Evans said several members now participate in the RSVP program and said any additional volunteers would be enthusiastically welcomed. She passed out folders which contained information on the program, as well as Council on Aging stickers. The RSVP program is sponsored by the Council for which Mrs. Evans worked seven years before becoming director of the RSVP program.

Another speaker along the same lines was Cathy Clark, who runs the Senior Aid Program. This is a paid volunteer program for persons whose income is less than $4250 a year. The hours are flexible and can be suited to the convenience of the volunteer. Pay ranges from $3.10 to $3.70 hourly. Numerous openings exist now for clerical workers and drivers who possess a chauffeur's license. If you're interested, call her at Indian River Community College, 464-2000, extension 363.

Fred Wilgin gave a report on the bus service situation and suggested that President Coffman write a letter to County Administrator Welden Lewis urging county action on the proposal. He also discussed the three proposals to build hospital facilities in the southern part of the county and the Eden Park nursing home, a subject which has been quiescent for quite a few months. Recently the firm announced it hoped to begin construction in June. In order to do so, it needs a change in count zoning laws. Mill Parks, who introduced a musical note into the meeting with group singing of a song based on "Battle Hymn of the Republic," pointed out that the county commissioners are to meet this Thursday (April 24) at 7:30 p.m. room 101 of the Civic Center in Fort Pierce to consider the zoning change. He urged every member who could to attend the meeting and make their support of the change known.

With respect to the hospital proposals, Fred points out that no one of the three meets with the position adopted by the community hospital committee, which is that Port St. Lucie should have its own 150 bed hospital and not a facility that will serve a secondary role for an already established institution.

New members introduced at the meeting were Helene and Saymour Rokus, Maas Monig, Francisco Renta, Mrs. Eleanor E. Goring, Alice and George Nemeth, Barbara and George Armstrong, Mrs. Pauline Schuman, Lois and Dan L. Brennan and Olga and Theodore Lepper. Charlady Helene Forster of the membership committee said that a number of members among the 119 who had not paid their 1980 dues by the end of March have done so now and have been reinstated.

Jeanne Pogue and Pauline Caluso worked behind the counter for refreshments of cake and coffee. The cake usually given out but this time there was one left over. They were baked by Helvie Biekkola, Margareth Coffman, Angeline d'Angelo, Helen Hooper and Rose Russell.

Pauline's husband, Tony, handled the 50-50 sales as usual and hit a high mark with a total sales of $65. This made it possible to have one $15 prize which was won by Madeline Wit. Winners of the five dollar prizes were Bill Meehan, R.L. Getz, Irene German and Elmer Carpenter.

County waits for double tax response

The issue of Port St. Lucie residents having doubly taxed by St. Lucie County has apparently reached a standstill, according to Richard Kelton of Southern-Kelton and Associates, the consulting firm that is aiding the city in the matter.

Kelton appeared before the city council Monday night at a regular workshop session to present the county commission's most recent responses to the city's charges of double taxation. Among those addressed were road repair and maintenance, parks and recreation and law enforcement costs.

The county commission conceded that the maintenance of the County's local road system with county ad valorem funds was a clear case of double taxation. Although they have refused to make a cash remittance to the city for the funds expended, the commission agreed to pay "in-kind", by providing some $36,000 worth of road work.

This type of "in-kind" remittence is not in keeping with the Florida Statutes governing double taxation, however, Kelton told the council that he felt it would provide an equitable and fair return to the taxpayers of Port St. Lucie.

It has not yet been decided whether the city will be permitted to choose the road projects to be done, or whether the choice will be left to the county.

Although the city council was generally dissatisfied with the $36,000 figure proposed by the county commissioners, Councilman Gerald Girard commented, "the way these people (county commission) are dealing, we should take the money and run."

In regard to law enforcement, and the city's accusation that the Sheriff's Department does not provide any protection over that which the city has contracted for, Kelton maintained that this is "going to be impossible to prove." He did say, however, that the amount of protection would be easier to discern once the Port St. Lucie Police Department is in operation and the contract with the Sheriff for additional protection is cancelled.

The county commission also restated their offer to maintain and provide recreational programs for Lyngate and Spruhmans Parks, if the city is willing to turn these parks over to the county.

Kelton contended that the county has fulfilled its obligation in this regard and that the city cannot pursue the issue of double taxation for parks and recreation further as they refuse this offer.

"I am not at all satisfied with this," said Mayor William McChesney, "the county is obligated to come forward with more than what they have."

The council reached an unofficial consensus that they would not agree over the city parks to the county, however. Councilman Ray Neighbours offered a proposal by which the city could remit the funds.

Neighbors suggested that the city issue passes cost-free to residents of Port St. Lucie, which will afford them use of the city parks. Those living outside of the city would have to pay an annual fee to obtain a pass. In this way, the city would recover the funds without further negotiations with the county commission, said Neighbours.

The council is expected to consider this alternative in the future, while for the present, Kelton has been instructed to continue deliberations with the county commission.

In regard to road construction and maintenance, the council decided to request a cash remittance as a primary alternative, and to accept a payment "in-kind" only if they can designate the road projects to be undertaken.

Winning sandpipper combo trips light fantastic

BY MIKE SANDY

It was like a "walk in the park" for the team of Carl Schaetzach, Jack Dalton, Archie Gates and Charley Swan as that combo tripped the "light fantastics" over the 18 hole championship Saints course, to take a commanding first place in the Best Two Balls of a Foursome event which was contested by the Sandpiper Men's golfers.

The winners posted a best ball tally of 117 which proved four shots better than the second place teams in the runnerup slot were Bill Jarrard, Dick James, Harry Kessler and Frank Branca deadlocked with two other combos at the same 121 score which included Ed Reuter, Gene Gaudette, Ray Mager, Harold Roberts, John Donovan, Miles Zimmerman, Bob Clemens and Tony Cosentino.

Five stalwarts joined the "Break Eighty" group for the day with Ed Leary taking the leading role with a 74 followed by Bill Coane and Jim Cram with 78 and Col. John Huncharek and Jake Freiopack, 79.

Thursday's scheduled event will be an individual basis when the players test themselves against par.

Jim Healy, tournament chairman of the Sandpipers is finalizing arrangements for a gala day in late June or July when the members will compete in a "Meet and Beat The Press Day". An official announcement for this event will be forthcoming according to Healy and president Bob Wilson.

Cool weather keeps blues here

Despite last week's prediction of a short final season for the blues, they're still stacking around, and may for several days more, according to Tommy Stewart at the Snook Nook.

"This cold north air in the mornings is keeping them here," Tommy told The Mirror. "We may have the longest season yet."

The biggest single catch was made by Fred Hess, who came home with 66 blues out of the surf, on Krockodile. And the blue ribbons for the biggest fish goes to Herb Vernon, who landed a 41 pound snook off the Ten Cent Bridge, using live shrimp as bait.

Major catches out of the surf reported to the Snook Nook were: Bill Dianne, 10 blues on Krockodile; Dave Williams, 15 blues on Krockodile; Clara and Herb Burmeister, 51 blues on Krockodile; Sara Watson, 15 blues on Krock; Carl and Thelma Nelson, 21 blues on ribbon fish; Junior Dishman, 19 blues on ribbon fish; Tom Hargrove, eight whiting and one pompano on cut shrimp.

Also, Ralph Sauder, 15 whiting on claims; Bill Bullock, 21 blues on ribbon fish; Darrel Dishman, 20 blues on Krokb; Norton Enart and Dave Taylor, 24 blues and two whiting on Krock; Carl Meador, 15 blues on ribbon fish; Andy Jorgenson, 44 whiting on shrimp and claims; C.R. Troup, 30 sand perch off the Jensen Beach causeway on shrimp; Jim Allen, one trout, a seven pound snook and a four pound channel bass out of the Indian River on shrimp.

Ted Pack, a seven pound snook off the Ten Cent Bridge on live shrimp; George Mettler, a seven pound snook and one tarpon out of the St. Lucie River on golden eye popper; Jack Prell, two trout out of the Indian River on Mirrolure; Sam Hockman, eight trout on live shrimp.

Offshore catches over the weekend, Tom says, were made by: Lee Payne and Dale Bateman, two dolphin on Ballyhoo and Jolly Jet; Earnest Prew, one dolphin at 25 pounds, on ballyhoo; Ron Sutcliffe, a 37½ pound dolphin in the Gulf Stream, on ballyhoo.

Others have been: Charlie Krob, four trout, on shrimp out of the river; Walter Kaminski, a 12 pound blue, out of the surf on a Gator spoon; Clifford Smith, 16 blues in the surf, on Krock and ribbon fish; a party including Craig Germann, John Germann, George Patrush, Red Rogers and Lud Rupprecht, 50 blues on cut bait; Ray Elias, a 14 pound snook on live bunker, out of the river, and Earl Widman, a 21 pound snook out of the river.

Pro-Ams in split sessions

BY MIKE SANDY

Because of popular demand from area golf pros and amateurs alike, a novel competitive program has been devised by Pros Chuck Johnson of the Sandpiper Bay Resort and "Chuck Knebels Mariner Sands. The first such event was played at the Sandpiper Sands course Friday when eighteen 4 man teams competed which included one pro and three amateurs on each team. The next Pro Am is scheduled to be played at the plush Mariner Sands 18 hole championship course on Friday, May 2. Pros and amateurs are urged to sign up early at the Mariner Sands pro shop or call 283-7500.

Ironically a team headed by pro Chuck Knebels copped the major prize in Friday's event with a Two Best of Four Man score of 121, twenty three under par. Amateurs on the winning team included Squire Shaw, Frank Perry and Joe Grants.

A pair of teams deadlocked in second place 18 under par with pros Tom Cann and Joe Lopez paving the way for amateurs Bob Collins, Art Margraff, Pete Tonte, Bill Radar, George Carabachan and Bill Kenwen. Mark Nunez, a former assistant pro at Sandpiper, now back into the area, finished at 127 with his teammates Dan Busa, Lou Meriano and Seymour Fleming.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

This past week-end was extra nice for Martin County tournament tennis players. The occasion was two very big tournaments in Del Ray. The City Courts, run by Pro Ed Foster hosted a 12 and 14 boys and girls junior tournament.

I was able to get over and watch some of the action both Saturday and Sunday and was very impressed with the calibre of play. Especially a couple of 60 pound 11 year old girls banging the ball with loud grunts back and forth twenty times without a miss. Great to watch.

Representing Jensen Beach and Stuart were Jimmy Strauss, Ritchie Prentice, Joey Dieffenbach, and Laura Harnagel.

We are making progress, slowly, in junior tennis development. I still would like to see the formation of a "Martin County Tennis Patrons Association". With the purpose of promoting junior tennis, tournaments, clinics, transportation to and from meets, chaperoning, and funds to help the talented kids with equipment and coaching.

Our kids are up against tennis factories mass producing little Borgs and Everts all over the world. Jensen Beaches Ritchie Prentice lost a very hard fought match with good crisp rallies 6-4, 6-2, against one of those factory kids. Gary Cohenour Gary later defeated the #1 seed, and I believe that with just a little more savoirfaire that Ritchie could have performed a sauve qui peut on the little kid.

About eight minutes across town the Laver Racket Club was hosting an Open, 25, 35, 45, and 55 division tournament. Again, Jensen Beach and Stuart were very well represented.

Ian Laver, has a beautiful facility with some familiar faces. Brian Webb, Gen. Mgr., Wally Burleson, social dir., and Joe Sarrano, office mgr. All received their masters at Indian River Plantation.

The first thing we saw driving in, was Sally Campbell moonhalling Kerry Laver, Ians wife. It worked, as Sally went on to win.

The mens open saw Stuarts Frank Froehling ranked #1 in 35s, destroy Harry Gilbert #64 in the mens div., 6-1, 6-1 for the title.

In the womens open, or I should say female division, Cathy Rinaldi just 13, blew Carol Goys ranked #9, off the court 6-1, 6-3. Cathy resides in Jensen Beach if you didn't already know.

Mens open doubles was won by Ian Laver (Aust.) and Ian Ainsworth (Eng.) and presently asst. pro at the Plantation.

Moving right along to the 35 div., we saw Mariner Sands pro Mario Obando win a tough final against Ralph Greco 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

And finally, in the old mans div., 55 and over, yours truly defeated Ham Livingston 2-6, 6-2, 6-3. This was especially gratifying as the field included the #1, 4, and 5 ranked seniors in Fla.

The gallery included Evan Sax and, Ralph Briggs of Jensen Beach.

Today, Southeast Bank has recreated that beauty in the Florida Commemorative Collection. The exciting history of Florida is designed and handcrafted in solid brass belt buckles that are as striking to wear as they are to display.

In the collection, you'll find Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida and our native alligator. One or both of these can be yours in treasure when you make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free, or at a reduced price, or you may choose a three buckle set with a leather-covered, hardwood display plaque at a reduced price. ## I-95 in 1985?

We'll believe it when we see it. I-95 by 1985 is the hope of the local task force.

If good intentions and spirit of service counts for anything, the missing link of I-95 should make the deadline. However, remembering that the Martin County stretch of U.S. 1 was the last to be four-laned between Miami and Maine, we have our doubts.

If the task force, which has been working very well with the Florida Department of Transportation, is able to pull off I-95 by 1985, they will be miracle workers.

We wish them luck.

Stopping dirt bikes

It seems a shame that it gets down to barbed-wire fences and deputies arresting cyclists, but that is about where the situation stands along C-24 canal's banks.

The dirt-bikers themselves seem to have a death wish for their sport. Lack of consideration for residents along the banks, insults and destruction of the bank itself is the result of thoughtless bikers who just don't seem to care.

There should be some place for the dirt bike to roam. It is a fun machine. But that place is not the bank of C-24 canal, as there is a law against motor vehicles on the bank.

However, there should be some reprimand for poor manners. Barbed wire fences and arrest is a good start.

Access for fishermen is another matter. The C-24 bank is a recreation area, and fishermen should be allowed access through the fences. It is possible to construct pass-through lanes that would restrict access to pedestrians so that the fishermen could get to their favorite fishing spots.

The greatest number of fishermen are respectful of private property and do not leave a mess after their fishing trip. Their access should be insured by government.

However, here, too, the law has been broken by those driving down the bank of the canal. South Florida Water Management forbids motorized vehicles from traveling on the bank. Access should be provided for the fishermen, but they should park their cars outside the bank on either public roads or in SFWM constructed parking areas.

If the autos are allowed, so should the dirt bikes be allowed. Otherwise, it would be favoritism and discrimination.

Communications, a racer's edge

The growing sport of racing model boats is suffering a communications problem. The problem need not be.

The park the racing enthusiasts use, next to the city hall in Port St. Lucie, is owned by General Development Corporation. The city has complained to GDC that it has received many complaints for area residents about the noise level of the racing boats and the trash left at the site following racing meets.

The racing club should heed the suggestion of city manager Mike Szunyog, and use the proffered park in the western end of the city, off Prima Vista Boulevard. It should also take the ten minutes necessary to clean up the racing site after its use.

There is no reason for such a misunderstanding to occur. Only through failure of communications, and expansion of rumors, does such a situation develop.

We want to see the expansion of model racing, an excellent sport. But that expansion should be done with the help and cooperation of all interested parties.

Disclosure is subverted

What had been intended as a method of discovering potential conflicts of interest by lawmakers was turned into a circus by the media, and thus the media got what it deserved, a new bill that fairly well guts public disclosure.

We must admit that the media, especially the daily newspapers, got what it deserved.

Instead of using the disclosure filings of the lawmakers in a responsible manner, newspapers blew out of importance ownership of this and that, laughingly comparing the wealth or lack of wealth of the many public officials in the state.

Writers booted at what was owned; how many cars, how much real estate, how much insurance, stocks and bonds, with no real reason for that disclosure except its shock value.

The stories were an obvious invasion of the lives of the officials. The disclosure to avoid conflict became a fun game by daily newspapers to embarass public officials.

We are pleased that a law that was intended to do good and is used to embarass is being changed. The loss of fun and games to the sensation-seekers makes it all worth while.

Doubled-- with laughter

I love bridge.

The only problem is that most bridge players don't like me. I have one serious flaw -- I play bridge to have fun.

When I go down a trick or two, I never tear my hair out, put myself on the torture wrack or commit suicide. That's like I tell myself, and prepare to forget the whole thing until the next go-around.

The people I've been playing with lately are rather tolerant folk -- with not too many post mortems of my quixotic bidding. Even Lois Reffel, my beloved landlady who goes down and plays with the pros at the duplicate club is politely uncritical -- she hasn't post-mortemed me yet.

Perhaps she's merely tolerant of the idiot ways of newspaper people, who seem to have been surrounding her lately. We of the inky trade are notoriously unorthodox, and people tend to do their cluck-clucking and their tch-tch-ing behind their hands at our foibles. As a whole, I guess we are to be treated gently as slightly unstable characters.

But I have my memories of the working over you can get from duplicate fanatics if you fail to play and bid according to Howle or Goren or Sharift, or whoever is the current hero of the GrandSlam set.

My favorite memory goes back to my Oak Ridge days, when the Oak Ridger compositors' room sometimes dent and I decided to broach the vale of the duplicate pros.

Leigh Gerth was as big a renegade as I was over the bridge table. He and I had well together, because neither of us believed in artificial bids. Neither of us was above a bit of bridge in the coffee club bid with three little clubs in our hands. In short, we bid 'em as we saw 'em.

For several weeks we went up and braved the experts, who take umbrage at the slightest deviation of conduct. Most of them were proud possessors of several hundred master points, with a few life masters scattered among their midst. That means they have attained enough winning points to put them in the rarified strata of the all time bridge greats, and they wear their points like a diadem of rare jewels. It's the unique life master who doesn't feel several cuts above the rest of the players in the room -- he or she is THERE, and makes no time in letting you know about it.

The crowning event, for Leigh and me, came one evening when we found ourselves opponents to two life masters -- one a doctor and another a dentist in the fair Atomic City.

I got a whale of a hand, and from our initial bids, it appeared that Leigh had one, too. I found myself bidding seven no trump, and being soundly doubled at it.

To make a long story short, I made the bid with little or no difficulty.

Quite to my surprise, I found myself being lectured for the next 15 minutes by the life master on my right -- on how if I had bid and played the hand properly, I never could have made it.

That's why I laugh a lot at post mortems, and at life itself. In the latter as the former, if I had played it right, I couldn't possibly have made it.

srl srl srl

As to post mortems, there comes some good and some embarrassing ones out of the recent glorious Easter Day.

The first is an embarrassment, and an apology. In our follow-up story, we put the crowd estimate for the sunrise service at the Jensen Beach Sunrise Service at between 300 and 400, a figure given us by a friend who attended.

Not so, says the Rev. J. Clark Thompson.

"We had 1,400 programs printed, and we ran out," he tells us.

We accept the spat on the paddies. I should have checked with the church before reporting the number. But it's understandable for anyone to make such an error, at that time of the day, at least if they're anything like me. Come dawn I'm lucky to have one eye open and it's a tough job counting a crowd with half an eye.

srl srl srl

The second post Easter story comes across the state from sister Ruth Anne, who attended Easter service at the imposing St. Peter's Cathedral in St. Petersburg.

She tells of one woman who came into the service, and was greeted at the door by a vestryman with the traditional "Christ is risen, the Lord is risen indeed."

The woman continued into the church, where she was met by the usher. As she was being seated, the usher said "Christ is risen, the Lord is risen indeed."

She turned to him somewhat pettishly with

"Yes, I know. The man at the door told me all about it."

Peacocks have pizzazz

We lost a peacock last week.

What it was doing on the ground at that time of night, four in the morning, I don't know.

Sherri heard a shot. Salli heard a shot. Jack Serantoni said he thought he heard a shot. Someone had shot a peacock on the beautiful Peninsula estate.

That morning, I drove by the laundry room and saw the beautiful peacock lying there, dead as a doornail.

At about ten, I called Jack and asked him if they had found the peacock. He said that he had, and there was no bullet hole in it. It seems that the peacock had been killed by a fox, or a panther or one of the other animals that roam silently in the large estate area. The chest of the peacock was torn out by whatever killed it.

Again, what that peacock was doing on the ground at that time, I couldn't be about to tell you. They fly up in trees at night, or fly to the rooftops of the buildings where they pace back and forth, keeping everyone alert in the home before stopping, so that you rise up in bed and say, "What was that?"

The peacocks are in heat right now. They are fanning out their magnificent plumes to impress the peahens. The peahens fluff their tails and stir the sand and mud into dust clouds to show their appreciation.

I drove my car into a peacock slowly, waiting to see him move out of the way. He was right in the middle of the road. He was so proud of his plumage he didn't move at all. He just kept preening for show, hoping that the peahens would accept him as the mate for that time.

I blew my horn, but the peacock didn't even turn around. I think that he felt that if he couldn't see me he was safe.

There are about 100 peacocks and peahens on the estate. Their cries sound like a dying wolf's wail. Let one begin and all begin to sound that mournful cry.

Even the young ones will pack up the cry quickly. We saw them fresh out of the egg, looking like a bundle of down. They grew quickly.

If you have ever seen a peacock parading, you know how magnificent they are. They are so proud of their beauty they seem oblivious to all else. It is as if they feel superior to everyone and everything around them.

They have pizzazz. They have class.

Who else has a doo-doo that looks like the chocolate candy kisses we used to buy. That's class.

I was walking the dog one afternoon and Bennie, who loves to tease the peacocks, chased one. He caught it, much to his surprise. Suddenly, as I was yelling for him to stop, he turned around with about six tail feathers from a peacock in his mouth.

No one was more surprised than Bennie that he had caught a peacock. Needless to say, the peacock took off at a high rate of speed flying into the sky to reach the limb of a tree. Bennie dropped the feathers immediately, tucked his tail between his legs and took off for home.

The peacock, on the other hand, stood on his perch and looked in pained anguish down upon the scene of a shocked me and a frightened poodle.

They have class.

The time of heat is about over. Elsewhere in this edition, I hope you'll see the peacock coming and going. It's a sight to see.

Pink Panther strikes again

O.K., O.K., I know it's not easy to pack nosegums into a suitcase, much less keep them alive long enough to get them to Iran.

But it was the thought that counted, right?

For those of you who may wonder what I'm talking about, my column in last week's issue of The Mirror suggested a way to bring Iran to its knees. The plan was to gather the more than abundant supply of nosegums we have on Hutchinson Island into suitcases, then give the suitcases to our friends in Canada. They would store themselves more phony passports, coat themselves with Cutters insect spray, then return to Iran. Then they'd open the suitcases and we'd have a bunch of miserable Iranians scratching and itching and begging for mercy. Before the Canadians arrived in Iran, President Carter would have bought up all the Cutters and Screen-Prufe, and would hold those supplies hostage until we got the American hostages back.

Since my column appeared in The Mirror last week, I've had it pointed out to me that the task of gathering the nosegums into suitcases may be an insurmountable one. And, since I could find no volunteers to go to the beach on a windless night to attract the nosegums to their body -- and would never be insane enough to volunteer for the job myself -- I have concluded the plan just won't work.

So, what to do?

I gave fleeting thought to the possibility of sending mosquitoes, instead of nosegums, as it would at least be easier to tell when you have a suitcase full. But again, there were no volunteers to serve as bait.

Besides, after Mirror reporter Michelle Naspanski read my column, I decided to steer clear of insecta solutions. She's normally quite critical of my columns, but last week's effort drew her harshest criticism -- to date. And, she's too feisty to use as nosegum or mosquito bait. The poor things wouldn't stand a chance.

So, I decided to use a solution inspired by her.

Not long ago, Michelle commented on the striking similarity in appearance between Iran's President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and Inspector Clouseau, as played in Pink Panther movies by Peter Sellers. In fact, she went further to speculate that Bani-Sadr really is Sellers and that Sellers is just making a new Pink Panther movie. She said one day we'll all wake up and hear Sellers reveal his true identity and tell us it was all a spoof.

If her theory is right, the crisis should be over soon, as it can't take more than five or six months to make a movie.

But if Bani-Sadr and Peter Sellers are not one and the same person we could probably convince Sellers that it's in our national interest for him to pose as Bani-Sadr. And, with his superior acting ability, I'm sure he could convince the world he's the real Bani-Sadr and that the other one is a phony.

Once that's done, and Sellers has Khomeini in his confidence I'm sure our sweet-talking Sellers could persuade the Ayatollah into giving up the hostages -- or at least into joining him for a stroll along the beach on Hutchinson Island some windless night.

Whatever the ruse, I'm sure Sellers is more than capable of pulling it off. After all, have you ever known Inspector Clouseau not to get his man?

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

A high school student is typing this for me. A friend in Jensen Beach sent me the Apr. 3 copy of the Mirror. I read with interest the Letter to the Editor from Eileen O. Rice, and shared with her the memories of former years.

My dear husband served in the Expeditionary Forces in France in the first World War, and he often recalled the misery, cold and hardships they experienced while there. It does not seem that the countries that we rescued from the German Army, ever appreciated the many dead, injured and maimed soldiers who suffered for a cause that was supposed to make the World safe for democracy. Credit must be given to these brave men who left their homes and loved ones, and have never really been given the honor that they truly deserve. I look forward to any future letters that Mrs. Rice may write to you.

I am over 84 years of age, and I do not have too many years left, but I hope and pray that this Nation will again take it's rightful place as a leader of the free world, and that once again we all may enjoy peace. Thank you.

News Digest planned for blind people

The Martin County Taping Studio for the Visually and Physically Handicapped, Inc., located here in Jensen Beach, is making plans for a new service, a "Second Sight News Digest" to bring the blind up to date on news not covered by radio or television.

According to a spokesman, the idea is "being borrowed from the Palm Beach chapter of the American Red Cross, which has been producing a successful "talking newspaper" for the past ten years.

The cassettes will be one hour in length, and will fit on home tape machines or those on loan from the Library of Congress.

The studio's agonizing concern, right now, is expanding the usage of the talking books and other materials which are available free of charge to qualified persons.

"In the Martin-St. Lucie County area," the spokesman said, "there are more than 4,000 persons eligible to use the talking books. Only 203 have taken advantage of this service."

Anyone who knows of an unsighted or handicapped person who would benefit from the service is asked to contact the studio, telephone 334-7888.

Volunteers are screened and trained for their special services. New volunteer monitors and ones in training include Tom Ayling, Bill LaFayre, Fran Hubenet, Virginia Burch, Eleanor Marshall, David Rutt and Jo Connolly.

New narrators include Claire White, Betty Crisp and Jane Heerdrun. Gwen LeFurgy is training to be a reviewer, and Ira Crowther, a retired minister who is visually handicapped.

The Martin County zoning board voted to hold hearings on changing Jensen Beach zoning to comply with county zoning. Jensen at that time had its own zoning board and map.

First graders in Jensen Beach Elementary School had their Easter stories published in The Mirror. The writers included Alice Roberts, Melba Martz, Susie Fulton, Robin Mosley, Tammi Dessemer and Barbara Bossert.

Frances Langford Evinrude won third place in the Chub Cay billfish tournament, boating two blue marlins and a white marlin.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

I have been very disturbed by some of the recent criticism of the Port St. Lucie Community Center. Especially that by one of our new councilmen and the Beany family. Apparently many of our newcomers are unaware of the fact that the Port St. Lucie Community Center is not owned, supported, or paid for by the city, county, or General Development. It has been built and supported financially and otherwise by individual people of the community. We have to charge rent. How else can we pay the bills? Who will pay them for us? Will you? The men and women who have built this facility with their own hands, services, and financial support surely deserve praise not criticism. We are continually trying to offer more activities for all ages. Recently we had a dance for the preteens and teens. Did you support it? We will be glad to have another one if you will. Have you donated any time, money, or effort to help us serve you? If not please stop in we'll be glad to have your assistance. There are many classes now being offered through I.R.C.C. and more can be added if you want them and will attend. Without the willing hands of many members of our community there would be no Port St. Lucie Community Center at all. So next time you feel impelled to complain please get the facts first. Thank you for listening.

Rio Civic cards on April 29

A card party was held at the Rio Civic Club last Tuesday, April 15, with a good group in attendance.

The door prize was won by Olga Larsen

Prayer Day planned

The Campus Crusade for Christ International is planning a National Day of Prayer service on April 29, from noon to 1 p.m. at the band shell in Stuart

The local fellowship will join with people throughout the United States and Canada in the day of prayer and fasting, with special prayers to be offered for guidance for those in authority in helping them solve the economic and military crisis with which the country is faced

The date April 29 was chosen because "on a spring day, April 29, 1607, Jamestown pioneers planted a cross at Cape Henry in what is now Virginia Beach and claimed American for God as His vehicle in spreading the gospel to every nation," a spokesman explained

"In recent generations, however, America has slipped away from this Christian heritage, and many believe it is now experiencing the righteous judgment and chastening of God because of its disobedience"

Music and spiritual leadership will be offered at the Stuart service

New truck added to fleet at Jensen fire department

The Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department has a shiny new addition to its fleet of trucks

On Monday, a brand-new 1,000 gallon a minute pumper truck arrived at the station, delivered here personally from Chicago by Peter Darley of the W S Darley Company, manufacturer of the truck

Fire Chief Luciano said the truck is a welcome addition to the fleet and said he feels the county got a real bargain on it compared to the price of many other fire trucks of comparable quality

Luciano was most proud of the top console feature of the truck "The controls are all up top, behind the cab, where the man operating them can have a clear view all around of the fire and of traffic on the road On other trucks, the controls are on the side and that sometimes prevents the operator from seeing all of the fire and sometimes means he is on the road, exposed to passing traffic," Luciano said

The truck holds 1,000 gallons of water and has a seating capacity for five firemen It also features a lifetime guarantee on the pump

Until the new fire station-community center building is built on Savanna Road, the truck will be located at the Jensen Fire Department on Palmetto Road But when the new station is finished, it and another truck will be housed there

"This is the first truck in close to 30 years that the county has bought for the Jensen Beach Fire Department All the others have come from donations from the community," Luciano noted

The addition of the new truck brings the Jensen Department's fleet total to eight trucks The department also has an ambulance converted to a rescue vehicle and a chief's car The price of the new truck was about $47,000

NEW GARAGE—The new wing at Elliott Museum which will house the antique car and truck collection is up, and awaiting completion of the interior for the big move from the vehicles' present home, the former all which now is the bottom of the U formed by the addition. Museum Director Janet Hutchinson points out the lofty garage door which will enable traffic of vehicles of any size.

Exterior of Elliott wing complete

Signs of big things to come are in evidence at Elliott Museum, with the exterior completion of the 4,500 square foot new wing which will house the museum's impressive antique car and horse-drawn vehicle fleet.

As soon as the "garage" is ready for occupancy, all of the cars, carts and fire engines will have a home of their own, making room for many other refinements within the present museum, one of the finest of its kind in the south.

According to Janet Hutchinson, museum director, step two will be the construction of an authentically designed clinker-built doubled ended dory in the space currently used by the cars. The dory designer, artist Pat Kelsey, will be an "exhibit" in himself as he constructs the boat of ancient heritage, which will be the crowning touch for the Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge.

When the boat is ready, Miss Hutchinson says, a community celebration is planned, with members of the Coast Guard to be on hand in full dress, and the Treasury flag floating from the yardarm.

While the boat is being built, members of the Martin County Historical society will begin work on the "Gracious Living Wing," into which the present car area will be converted. It is to include a series of stage sets, with the interiors to be designed by Eleanor Pierce, Shirley Bland, Jane Dickerson and Betty Mnure', under the direction of Helena Waller.

Gordon Brewer and Andrew Mattson will set up the George Wein collection of needlepoint and its accompanying 17 pieces of antique furniture.

Another collection which will enhance the "gracious living" atmosphere will be more than 100 Royal Doulton figurines from the estate of the late Walter H. Sieling Jr.

Overall consultants will be Jim Wills and Bill Bell, nationally know design experts who live at the Dunes Club, and who are donating their time to the Elliott project.

The new and old wings have taken safety as well as authenticity into consideration, thanks to architect Peter Jefferson. Double-fire doors have been installed, which would prevent the spread of fire should it occur in either wing.

Mrs. Hutchinson anticipates that it will take nearly a year for completion of the entire project. Meantime, the museum is open every afternoon, with admission remaining at the original cost of $1 per person.

Summer tennis ranch offered at Crane Creek

A "Summer Tennis Ranch" program for children ages 4 to 18 was announced by Michael Baldwin, Tennis Director at Crane Creek Racquet Club at Martin Downs in Palm City.

Gavin Ford, our head tennis professional and I, have over nineteen years of combined professional tennis experience," said Baldwin. "Our unique approach to instruction includes semi-private lessons, video taping and ball machine practice which allows our students to fully understand their strengths and weaknesses."

Classes begin June 2 and continue through August 31, Monday through Friday from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. Two week sessions for children 8 to 18 include 30 hours of instruction.

Street dance was a ball

Shades of Mardi Gras' The street dance-Bar B Q held Friday, April 11, by Indian River rivalled the gaiety and converadarie of the famous New Orleans celebration It was their second annual affair, hosted this year by Bill & Ruth Hennessey and Frank & Gail Lawson, with lots of help from the very capable committee members, Al & Theo DeSmit, Fern Knoebel, Jane & Frank Nolan, Shirley Hamel & Bette Joseph, and others With such willing help the 130 residents of Indian River enjoyed barbecued chicken, potato salad, cole slaw, rolls, coffee, soda pop, cupcakes and of course, beer Four grills were kept busy to feed the group The colorful lights and swaying palm trees provided just the right background for the singing and dancing The music was provided by very talented Jack Torregrossa and Russ Derreich Although the vocal renditions needed refinement, the group didn't lack enthusiasm as they "tripped the light fanastic" Musical encouragement was rendered by Jack Joseph on harmonica, Ernie Hugnagel on guitar and Bil Hennessey on vocals A perfect Florida night, a sharing of talent, many willing hands and congeniality of good friends and neighbors made it a memorable party Thanks everyone

Your reporter spotted the horseshoe pits being used after she heard the "klink, klunk" of the shoes hitting the stakes Although it wasn't a really organized game, the fellows were having fun anyway' Let's use all our facilities around the park

More are staying longer

Folks are going north in spite of letters saying the weather's not too good yet, as 35 left last week to make the season total about 125. Some OBPers said there are more leaving sooner this year, so records for previous years were checked That's not so, here's the record: for mid-April 1975, 70 left for a 300 total; 1976, 50 left for 256; 1977, 80 for 255; 1978, 60 for 340 and 1979, 50 for 300 So, unless this years records are way off, maybe John-the-mailman's pleas of stay longer for the better weathers have been heeded

Now the sound of the grass mower is heard daily, as the maintenance man keep the part neat and trim, also the OBPers are getting their summer flowers ready and those that must leave are taking the prize ones with them, leaving the others in the care and attention of those who stay all summer Park has flowers everywhere and is getting prettier by the day

"My grandfather gave me a little tiny sailboat when I was six years old, and it committed me to a lifetime curse," he told The Mirror.

Ever since the onset of the marriage of Travis and Edie Ferrara, the household has always included a boat, and on occasions has been their home. Their present luxurious abode is no exception.

The Campbell residence, located north of the Evans Crary Bridge on the banks of the St. Lucie River, is the dream home of every large family. Its deceptively modest brown exterior, blending into the landscape, camouflages a capacious interior.

It is definitely a house to be lived in and enjoyed, despite the treasure trove of antiques and imported collector items with which it is furnished. In nearly every room, sliding glass doors open to the river breezes, and the swimming pool, set in the bottom floor of a two-story screen patio, is the focal point of the "Children's wing," the full first floor built into the hillside slope of "Pineapple Ridge." There's no necessity nor excuse for little wet feet or the wet paws of the swimming Schnauzer Tara to track through the main part of the house.

The Campbells have a small formal living room, but it is seldom used. Most of the living is done in the large comfortable family room where, in warm weather, the star attraction is the riverfront, with glass doors to the broad verandah open. In cool weather, the conversation grouping is centered around the handsome fireplace at the other end of the room where the makings of a fire lay awaiting the touch of a match.

One pleasant and thoughtful aspect is the "powder room" located just inside the front door. No need for guests to wander through the bedroom wing to look for the facilities. And that bathroom is an artistic gem, with its oriental shell washbasin, gold-plated fixtures, and exquisite tiling.

The "mama and papa wing," complete with study for Travis, is also an artistic delight. Travis Campbell is a big man, and everything is built to scale. Even the desk chair in his study has been tailored to fit. He was measured for it, like being measured for a suit, so both the head and foot rests are really just that, for him alone.

Some of the most attractive decor throughout the home includes Edie's handiwork — pictures done in decoupage. Edie is also a gourmet cook. Travis says, and the large kitchen with its massively handsome Belgian breakfast and luncheon table is her favorite domain. The Campbell kids — Beth, Stephen and Scott, eat well from mama's cuisine.

"Steve loves to learn all he can about history, and is curious about every antique he sees," Edie says.

It was Steve who researched an old newspaper found in the back of the English hutch which augments the Chippendale dining table and chairs in the formal dining room. The paper was torn and dog-eared, and printed in French, but Steve's research dated it in the 1840's.

Beth's room is a showcase for her collection — dolls. Her dollhouse is surrounded by dolls of all types, from Raggedy Ann and Andy to foreign dolls from the many ports of call the family has put in during their travels.

And Scott's room is full of mice. Not nuisance mice, but the nice kind, like E. E. Milne's Mrs. Mouse, dainty little finger puppet mice, an antique mouse trinket box — any variety, as long as it's mousy.

The kids also have their own little recreation room, just off the pool, where they can come in and watch television, or listen to Beth play the piano, at which she is proficient. The whole lower floor is a junior-size domain.

But for the whole family, the star is that big boat at the end of the dock. The 66-foot Trilogy (so named because of the three children) is not only a constant source of fun for the Campbells, but a floating guest house when company comes.

The Trilogy is undoubtedly one of the most impressive yachts seen along the river. But it can't begin to compare with the Campbells' former yacht, the 103-foot Reverie, on which the family, for a time, lived aboard. (Wags called it the Sewall's Point Navy.)

It was the Reverie which took them on one of their most memorable voyages — the Bi-centennial year trip which was spent cruising up the Atlantic Coast.

"We took the kids out of school and hired a teacher from the public school system, as their tutor," Travis reminisced.

Actually, they had two teachers aboard, Joanne and Tom Wetzel, with Tom doubling as first mate. The high point, and perhaps the main point of the trip, was to see first hand the Tall Ships which graced the New York and Boston harbors during that historic year.

Being a member of the boating audience to the Tall Ships spectacular in New York harbor was an unforgettable experience.

"There must have been 20,000 to 30,000 yachts of all sizes there," Travis said. "There are a thousand funny stories about the boaters at that event, but I never saw New York so nice, and everybody so polite."

The whole Campbell family gained richly from that year of cruising and visiting the nation's historic eastern ports.

"If a person could choose one year of his life as the best, I think that's mine," Travis said.

Travis is at heart a wind-sailor, which he was until the family began to outnumber him.

"I gave it up when Edie told me that Scott was on the way," he said. "Three kids in a cockpit are too much."

In the interim, however, Stephen and Beth got more mileage than most people do in a couple of lifetimes.

"We were on our way from South America to Spain (aboard the Cabe San Rogue) and in the horse latitudes when Beth had her first birthday — she had traveled 27,000 miles. The captain gave a cocktail party in her honor."

That was one of the great trips. The Campbells were the only English speaking couple aboard, and they were made Queen Athena and King Neptune, as well as "Mr. and Mrs. Cruise."

Travis, who owns St. Lucie Landscaping, can frequently be found at Sewall's Point Town Hall meetings, and occasionally voluble about local issues, but he says he has no political aspirations.

"I'm always interested in who's in politics," he said. "I just like to peer over their shoulders."

Edie, however, confines herself fairly much to the home front.

"The kids keep us both very busy," she said. "They're here on borrowed time, and we want to enjoy them while we can."

ICEBOX WITH A DIFFERENCE—Travis Campbell gives the Mirror a peek into his favorite bar, an ancient icebox which they picked up in Main and brought to Sewall's Point by boat. The old box, time-blackened when they got it, has been refinished to a mellow golden-oak patina, with solid brass fittings.

THEY'RE ALL DOLLS—Those companions of Beth Campbell in her private domain. Beth's collection, proudly shown off by Beth's mother Edie, spill over bulging closets and shelves. Many of the minute furnishings in the doll house were made in ceramics by Edie.

MOUSE HOUSE—Scott Campbell has a thing for mice, as is amply evidenced in his collection of mouse dolls, figurines, and a closet-full of books on the subject. Scott's mice hail from everywhere, from the family's many travels and as gifts from friends.

SUNKEN POOL—The swimming pool in the Travis Campbell home enjoys a singular privacy, hidden both from the street and the river in its enclosed, ground-level patio. Attractive foliage around the sides give a jungly touch to its decor.

Jim Shearer leads pack in Stay FIT 5000 meter race

The first annual Stay FIT 5000 was held on Saturday, April 19 and the prospects for a second annual race look very good.

Dr. Randy Hogg and Mr. Jim Griffin, FIT faculty members and organizers of the event, were pleased with the response. 150 runners signed up for the run and the business community responded with donations and prizes for the various race categories.

The 5000 meter race, 3.1 miles long, started on the FIT campus and wound its course through the Jensen Beach area. Dean Ernest Tesley, official starter for the race, fired his pistol at 8:00 a.m. and the race was on.

What had started as a tight group of competitors soon stretched out as the quicker runners took the lead.

In 18.8 minutes, the first runner crossed the finish line. Jim Shearer, a physician's assistant from Leland Heights, finished ahead of Chuck Areni and Barry Lee (the 2nd and 3rd place finishers).

Shearer, age 33, has been running for 2 years and averages about 45 to 50 miles a week. Although he prefers flat courses, the hills on the FIT course presented no real problem. Cliff Savage of the American Bank of Martin County presented Shearer with a $50 savings bond for his 1st place finish.

Chuck Areni, a Martin County High School junior and member of the track and cross country teams, finished 2nd. He has been running for about 9 months.

Barry Lee, a Martin County High School student and teammate of Areni's, finished 3rd. Lee runs an average of 75 miles a week and participates in many area races. When asked about finishing behind an older person, Lee jokingly said that they should keep the old ones but of these races because they make the younger kids look bad.

John O'Connor, Lee and Areni's coach at Martin County High School finished first in the non FIT 40 years or older category and 6th overall.

Eric Butler finished with a time of 26.3 minutes. Not an outstanding time except for the fact that Eric is only 9 years old. The junior runner from Jensen Beach Elementary School said this was his first race. Aside from the normal running that a 9 year old does, Eric did not practice for the event. He just signed up and ran.

As an addendum to the official race results, Joe Gilio, an environmental science instructor at FIT, tied with Jim Kupcho on the Time Prediction category. Both Gilio and Kupcho finished two seconds from their predicted times.

FIRST PLACE FINISH in the 1st Annual Stay FIT 5000 went to Jim Shearer of Leland Heights. A physicians assistant at the Indiantown Health Clinic, Shearer finished the 3.1 mile course in 18.8 minutes.

THE YOUNGEST PERSON to finish the race was Eric Butler. The junior jogger is 9 years old and a student at Jensen Beach Elementary School. He finished the course with a time of 26.3 minutes.

Polish course to begin

The Polish American Club of St. Lucie and Martin Counties is offering a course in elementary Polish language to club members and their friends.

Club president Joseph Roj reported that 12 persons have signed up already and more are expected by the time the course begins on Monday evening, April 21. Teaching the course is Joseph Sepela, a retired lawyer from Michigan.

The course is offered at a cost of $10 for ten weeks, and the price includes a textbook of basic Polish. It will be held at the Roj residence and anyone interested may call 334-3009 for more information.

In addition to the language course, the club's building committee is actively seeking to buy land in Port St. Lucie on which to build a Polish-American clubhouse. Along with the $7,000 presently in the club treasury, the clubhouse will be financed by fund raisers and savings.

The Polish-American club also sponsors a "mini-mart", which is open every Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The mart is located in the B & A Industrial Park in Stuart. Profits from mini-mart sales will be used for the building fund and other club activities.

The club, a state-chartered non-profit institution, meets every second Wednesday of the month and sponsors Bingo every Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Polish City Recreation Center. On May 31, the Polish-American Club will be sponsoring a picnic behind the Community Center in Port St. Lucie. Those attending will be asked to bring their own covered dish, while a keg of beer and accordian music will be provided.

Some 105 members of varied ethnic origin presently belong to the club, which welcomes new members from West Palm Beach to Vero. Anyone interested in joining may contact club president Joseph Roj.

Ad group fights recession talk

The Treasure Coast Advertising Federation, a tri-county organization of businesses, has unanimously endorsed a public service campaign designed to fight the demoralizing efforts of "recessionary talk".

The theme, entitled, "Recession Obsession? Sorry! We're Not Participating", is being supported by a series of advertisements disseminated by the Ad Club.

The campaign encourages businesses and consumers not to over-react to the current economic situation, but rather to consider it a normal business cycle.

"A positive attitude is the best weapon to avert a severe economic downturn in our region," said Jim Lord, Ad Club President, who noted that talk of a recession can actually lead to a recession.

"Statistics show that those merchants who used advertising as a tool to fight the 1973 recession, bounced back quicker and became stronger as a result," he added.

PROTECTS AGAINST HURRICANE BURGLARS

IT'S SECURITY!

A success story in the making daily on Venice, Florida, home office of Security Shutter Corp., a manufacturer and installer of the finest exterior aluminum shutters available today. Because these products are so effective in protecting homes and businesses from burglary and the vagaries of weather, this small company has grown by leaps and bounds, more than doubling sales every year for the last two years.

They experienced growth throughout the Southeastern U.S. and in the Caribbean Islands to install their reliable shutters. Your home or business can enjoy the same protection that several homes and condominiums in Pensacola had during 1979's Hurricane Frederic, sustaining no damage to windows or interiors, despite 130 mph winds. The beauty of these shutters is that in a half open position they serve as an effective awning protecting your home from the sun's blazing and fading effects. And with controls for operation and locking inside your home, they will make your home virtually burglar proof.

Security Shutter's growth has been phenomenal, says Bob Larsen, a retiring in the quality of their products and the pending influence of the Land Business is big in every Monday at the 100 with a prayer.

Mr. Larsen, born in Kenosha, Wisconsin, was previously a sales manager and promoter in Texas and Ohio and owned or managed some of the largest car dealerships in Illinois, Wisconsin & Texas. He and his wife, Loretta, are parents of 12 children, with 14 grandchildren, and are active in church work in the Venice area. Formerly a member of the Lions & Jaycees, Mr. Larsen is currently a member of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Association, Sarasota Shrine Club, Tebala Temple, Freeport Commandery, the Masons, Lodge and is working in Youth for Christ.

You owe it to yourself to call them today COLLECT at (813) 484-1700. Ask for Bob Larsen and he will arrange for a free demonstration and estimate at your convenience. You'll be increasing the value of your home at the same time that you protect and beautify it.

Auto Air Conditioning Center Inc.
Harry Filsinger - Owner

Each year more and more people are purchasing new cars equipped with air conditioning or are having an air unit installed in their present car, van or truck. They have found that not only does it make driving more enjoyable on hot days, but adds greatly to the value of their car when selling or trading it in.

In this locale people have come to recognize Auto Air Conditioning Center Inc., at 2207 S.E. Norman St. in Stuart, phone 283-3470, as headquarters for all auto and truck air conditioning needs.

Harry Filsinger, owner, with 20 years experience, employs only fully qualified men who know their job thoroughly and can handle any job large or small from small adjustments to complete installation on any car, truck or van. He also has a degree in refrigeration and heating and is a member of Refrigeration Society.

They are dealers for the popular A-R-A air conditioning units and carry a complete line adaptable to any car, truck or van. These in-dash air conditioning units not only add to the beauty and enjoyment of your vehicle, but are designed to take up as little space as possible.

The authors of this 1980 Community Profile suggest to our readers who need their present air unit repaired or recharged, or are contemplating having a new unit installed in their car, that they see Auto Air Conditioning Center Inc.
